The East African Colonies

SINCE THE WAR THE PEOPLE OF BRITAIN have been chiefly concerned with rebuilding their industries and their homes, and defending the programme laid down by their government for economic recovery. At the same time it is evident that time and money have been devoted to the British colonies in East Africa and that progress is being made in carrying out the policy laid down some time ago for developing the natural resources and encouraging the native population to adopt modern methods of industry and agriculture and improve living standards. Mr. Hale Williams, Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, returned to Britain recently after visiting East Africa and brought back some interesting facts concerning progress which is being made there.

* * * * *

Comparable in size to Western Europe East Africa has a population of between twelve and fifteen million people. At the present time some areas are thinly populated because of the tsetse fly, a pest which infests large sections of Tanganyika and Uganda. The government is undertaking a programme of extermination and it is hoped that these areas may soon be made more habitable. As part of the plan for economic expansion, a large hydro plant will be established in Uganda which will provide power for copper, steel and cotton mills to be set up in that district. Although Britain is at present short of steel, Mr. Hale Williams urged that the government should make the allocation of steel for East Africa to provide railway equipment which is urgently needed. The establishment of heavy industries and the setting of more British people in those colonies was also strongly recommended by the Under Secretary.

Industries To Be Established

* * * * *

It was also reported that mass education is being energetically promoted and that there are extensive facilities for training the native population in modern methods of tilling the land. The importance of agriculture in the East African territory was emphasized and it was pointed out that there is much new land to be brought under cultivation. However it was also pointed out that there is danger there of soil erosion and that it is important that settlers should be carefully advised and that over-population of the area should be avoided. The need for British settlers in East Africa, to teach the native population European arts and crafts and to lead the way in raising living standards was stressed by Mr. Hale Williams. It is to be hoped that Britain's plans for the development of these colonies will continue to advance and that industry and agriculture will prosper.

REGINA Sask. There may be an irrigation project in operation by 1949 on the Piapot Indian reserve in southern Saskatchewan's Qu'Appelle valley. But the man who prompted the project won't be there to see it.

Tribe members recently said goodbye to Missionary Elmer W. Smith, a Mormon missionary to the band for the last two years, who returned home to Grace, Idaho.

Mr. Smith's plans involved the use of spring run-off water for irrigation. Indians and missionaries would construct the dam. Preliminary plans are already drawn up.

Western Hockey Players Well Represented In Major Leagues

WINNIPEG LEADS

Winnipeg, Man., the "Gateway to Canada's Golden West", is the birthplace of more National Hockey League players than any other city. Fourteen of the 90 players in the League this season were born in Winnipeg.

Toronto is next with six native sons performing in the N.H.L., and is followed by Montreal with five and Saskatoon with four.

Out of the 90 N.H.L. players only eight were not born in Canada. Four of these were born in the United States, one in Scotland and one each in Ireland and Finland.

The four American born players are Bill Mosienko, who was born in Chelsea, Mass.; Pete Babando and Frank Brimsek of Boston, born in Hanburn, Pa., and Evelyth, Minn., respectively, and Norm Dussault of Montreal Canadiens, who first entered the world at Springfield, Maine.

Adam Brown of Chicago Black Hawks was born in Johnstone, Scotland, while Jim Conacher of Detroit first saw the light of day at Markham, Scotland. Jimmy McFadden, Detroit Red Wings' Calder Memorial Trophy winner of last season, was born in Belfast, Ireland. The N.H.L. player born in Helsinki, Finland, is Ranger rookie Pentti Lund.

Of the 81 players born in Canada, 34 were born in the Province of Ontario, which is tops among the provinces. Saskatchewan is second with 20 native sons performing in the International hockey circuit. There are 19 Manitoba-born purchers in the League, 12 from Quebec and six from Alberta.

Stallion Kills Self In Plane

LONDON. Djalal, a high-strung French stallion, went mad with fright on the first leg of an air trip to the United States recently and killed himself in efforts to kick his way out of the plane.

The four-year-old horse winner of races in both France and England, was sold recently to an American syndicate of breeders for $225,000.

Seventeen dogs, all barking frantically, were roused in the plane with the frenzied Djalal and were still yapping when the pilot took off again after making an emergency stop at Bourgbray airport to get rid of the canines.

Officials at Bourgbray said "from the pilot's account it is a wonder the horse did not kick itself out into the air."

One official said Djalal "had a rough time in the air and actually killed himself."

British "Mums" And "Dads" Plan Trip To Canada

LONDON —Thoughts of a "summer holiday trip to Canada on the United States may send thousands hastening to Canada's British "mums" and "dads".

The parents of girls who married Canadian and American servicemen during the war, some want to go just for a visit, some perhaps to stay. And with an effort now becoming national through the United States and Canadian War Brides Parents' Association, that "some day" looks considerably nearer.

The idea was born two years ago in Oxford and spread through England and Wales. The organization now embraces more than 4 000 members, not including clubs in Scotland yet to be affiliated to the national body.

A similar organization has been established in Holland where hundreds of Canadians married Dutch girls during the war. The Dutch association hopes to organize a Canadian agency to enable Dutch wives in Canada to save for trips to childhood.

In British branches of the U.S.C.-B.P.A.—they're looking for a shorter name — are autonomous and control their own funds. Many a pound of national tea and butter and jars of jam from meagre larders of members go toward success of social functions through which funds are being built up. Most clubs also have plans through which members can save constantly toward a trip.

Most members just want to see their daughters again. But in many Canada, described in letters from daughters now spread from Halifax to Victoria, hold a special appeal as a country in which to settle. It is said.

The two passengers were from Three Hills and were returning from Edmonton. Four of our local girls, Evelyn Johnson, Joyce Dickens, Reina Birchall and Helen Prah were seen walking through the place, and Helen reported they had every thing explained to them We understood also has learned a good deal about aviation. MANY SCHOOLS SUPPORT JUNIOR RED CROSS

(By J. W. Chalmers)

A recent meeting at Central High has resulted in the formation of still another Junior Red Cross group in the Killam inspectorate, under the presidency of Stuart Peddlesord. The secretary and treasurer are Gwen Chisolm and Peggy-Lou Chesser. Other executive members include Jim Reddie, circulation manager, and Terry Conaway, Gloria Howard, John Snodsma. Doris Sherwood, Bob Albright and Joan Fischer. The present membership is about 35.

Two other Red Cross groups are active in Central High. One is the K and S group consisting of the correspondence class from Grade Five in Killam and Strome; the other includes the Grade 7 and 8 home economics students at Sedgewick, and is called the Rittenhouse Group. Other schools behind the Junior Red Cross groups are organized are Meeker, Daysland, Hamilton, Burleigh, Firth, Bodo and Bentonia. Some of these groups have been in existence for over ten years.

The Junior Red Cross is a service organization whose motto is "I Serve". Its purposes is to: 1. Develop Citizenship in its members through promoting thoughtfulness for others, good posture, maintenance of health etc. It offers courses in Water Safety, First Aid and Home Nursing. The Central High group has a project in International Correspondence, which includes the making of a parcel to be sent to Europe and French students to send to J. R. C. groups in France. Home economics and wood-working students will possibly have time to make articles for the inmates of crippled children's hospitals and veteran's hospital. It has also been suggested that the home-making classes prepare Christmas candy for patients in the hospitals at Killam and Hardisty.

Alberta Director of the Junior Red Cross is Miss Kathleen Normore, of 1506—10 St. E. Calgary. Teachers or pupils interested in the formation of a Junior Red Cross group are invited to get in touch with Miss Normore for further information about this splendid organization.

UNDER STUDY OF GRAIN MARKETING

A $2000 cash contest designed to encourage a study of grain marketing has been announced by Stanley N. Jones, President of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. The contest is open to all prairie farmers and their families, and cash prizes ranging from the first prize of $1000 to the last prize of $10 will be awarded.

"The future welfare of prairie farmers is so completely bound up in grain marketing," said Mr Jones, "that farmers should make a study of methods of marketing with no open mind, then decide for themselves on the method designed to bring them the best results."

Advertisements appearing in this paper from time to time will deal with the theme, Freedom of Choice. In referring to this theme Mr Jones said: "I believe that farmers must be given freedom of choice in Grain Marketing, that the farmer who wishes to sell his grain at a fixed price through the Wheat Board should have that privilege, but also that the producer who prefers to sell on the open market should not be denied that right."

Prizes involved in the contest, announced elsewhere in this paper will be awarded for the best letter on the completions of the following statement: "I believe in Freedom of Choice in the marketing of grain because....."

The opening "Sing-Along" was led by the host president, Hilbert Danielson bringing a word of welcome, and the Circuit President Emil Anderson of Bardo a greeting. Pastor Maakestad led an hour "God Speaks Thru' His Word." The following morning there was Bible study by Pastor Johnson of Ryley. The business session was then carried out with officers elected as follows: President, Phillip Anderson of Bardo, Vice, Rolf Jacobsen of Sedgewick; Corr. Sec., Ila Moen of Bardo; Rec Sec., Elder Danielsen of Sedgewick; Treas., Alice Danielsen of Edmonton, Pocket Testament Leaguer Sec., Trudy Christensen, Edmonton Home Helper, Bonnie Mae Jensen, Ryley.

PERSONAL STUFF

— By A. W. R —

The other day I heard of a conversation which took place between two women. One of them had been up to Edmonton and the main point of the conversation was that she had spent, she had been told, more than she should have spent, but such articles were so high priced." All of which dawned on me that the price of living has definitely increased something different. It's always that way in the cities prior to a holiday season. You can't pick up any bargains during the regular routine of business and when the bargain counters are offered at 9:00 a. m. store opening hours, you just can't walk in all dressed up like our average woman likes to go to Edmonton. You would be much better equipped to enter a boxing and wrestling ring. If your finger nails grow, the better to beat off the bargain hungry females in the push on a ten cent sarong.

• • • •

Items like this always remind me of the time I went on a shopping tour with one of the weaker sex, in search of a gift for her. I have been on such an expedition; you're the luckiest man alive. After walking through dozens of silk finds and reputations, and after seeing every hat in town of every color and style, shape and price tried on, and after tramping weary mile upon weary mile, we settled for a $1.25 hat in the front part of the store.

• • • •

Now the thing is that such just can't happen to your home town and of your best sense. You can't use a steady monotonous voice repeating "next please, next please" until you want to throw the kitchen sink at the speaker; instead you may hear the cheery, "good morning Mrs. . . . and how's little Johnny this morning?" Much better is it not. At least it is not nearly so boring.

• • • •

Just now when thoughts of your Christmas shopping have got you on edge, you would be well advised to watch the pages of your Community Press, read the ads of your local merchants, and patronize them. Take time to look at their stock before you do they all render. Buy now and pick up your purchase just before Xmas A visit to these stores will amaze you Stocks are really complete this year prices are competitive, and service is of a high order.

• • • •

Don't shop in the cities if you can possibly avoid it. Keep your money nearer home Be careful of all the high pressure advertising which is designed to catch the unwary. It is my opinion that city concerns which resort to country advertising are not the most reliable ones

• • • •

This paper does not solicit ads from the cities nor from concerns outside our circulated territory, and we are careful about those which come without solicitation. We most firmly believe in buying at home and giving our best service to our best customers. We find that this policy pays dividends. Try it and see

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

SINGING INSIDE ::

By ANNA E. WILSON

CHRISTINE looked out the window and laughed. Old Mr. Norton's new copper had fallen across his face and he slept peacefully in the warm sunlight.

Don't seem to have much interest in things since your granny died." Christine nodded knowingly "Sleeps in and in the way, like. Such old people don't last long once they've settled."

Nancy giggled. She was a fresh and pretty seventeen. "Doesn't he look darling with his white hair and his face as round as a baby." Bet he's read that newspaper three times this morning."

But Old Mr. Norton wasn't sleeping. He was day dreaming, in the past and very much of perspiration. Very uncomfortable too, but beautiful.

It must have been the face of his granddaughter, Nancy, peeping out from her wedding veil as she tried it on prinking a little in plain view of his chair that made it all back to him. In the soft light, Nancy had looked much as her grandmother, Allie had looked all those years ago.

Grinning could see himself, a tall, shy young man in striped pants and a cutaway, waiting while Nancy came towards him up the aisle. She'd been a little thing; so small he could look down on the top of her head with its blond curls peeping demurely through her veil as they waited for the words of the minister.

He, he hadn't been sure, there'd been an aching uncertainty that tortured him as that he trembled and his knee shook making the reception and then, Allie had turned her face slightly upwards and smiled, and the light from the silver candles had fallen on it and his heart had melted and run away from him and had never completely come back again for part of it had been caught and securely trapped in Allie's. The minister's words were almost meaningless for something far more important had their words was happening, something real and deep and fundamental. He and Allie were discovering a love that was to run through all their lives until the very end—and yet it had so nearly failed in laughter.

Like all the young men around, he had danced himself half in love with Katie Chilman. Katie had a good voice and fine white teeth and the night of Mrs. Kennedy's barn dance she had worn a smoky red dress with a red flower to her hair like some Bill Norrevan, whose father owned the bank and they'd made a fine couple there on the floor. Katie'd been so full of colour that he couldn't take his eyes off her and hardly heard his cousin, Nat, interjecting Allie.

"Give her a good time." Nat had said, leaving them to join the group around Hattie.

It had only been to politeness that he turned to Allie, to find her standing at Bill Norrevan with just the same look he was looking on Hattie. He hadn't known she was beautiful until she had looked up at him with those cornflower blue eyes that were full of a shared sort of happiness and he'd been conscious of a small shock, like the pork of an electric needle.

They were changing the music and the dance was over. Katie was talking to Mrs Kennedy, her colour as red as a rose, as the musicians swung into an old-fashioned waltz. He had turned to Allie, meaning to ask her to dance but Bill had cut in. "My dance, Allie." And Allie had followed him as docile as a kitten.

Left alone he had looked about for Katie and she had smiled at him clean across the room. He could still remember the way he'd felt—hot and cold and awkward with a sort of starry pain. He'd crossed the room, his head swimming, feeling taller than he was, and flushed his arm in Katie's. they'd danced. Katie looking her long skirt just a little off the floor; he, conscious that his shiny buttoned boots were just a little tight and that the sweat was running down beside his collar.

They hadn't talked much but he'd taken her to dinner. Someone had placed them next to Allie and Bill. Katie'd been very sweet to him, while Bill made a great to-do over Allie.

He had taken Katie home that night and for months had gone about in a mist of seventh heaven, taking Katie to the skating rink, to the box socials; and always they'd run into Allie and Bill. Passing Bill, Allie had held her head high while Bill was sure to be looking into Allie's cornflower blue eyes or holding her arm just a little tighter than necessary. Pretty soon folks had been accepting them as almost engaged couples, inviting them everywhere together, to the spelling bee, to the community singing.

At the spelling bee, Allie and Bill had spelled down the big line and were facing each other Allie pink and excited, Bill's face red and concentrated. Katie was wearing her red dress and Bill couldn't take his eyes off it.

They had almost finished the words in the spelling book when Katie blew a kiss into the room that she had been wearing in her hair and threw it through her fingers, looking at Bill Bill had stumbled, repeated wrongly and gone down on the word "contemptible" Fudha, who had been sure Bill would win, gasped, then laughed as an excited Allie spelled "contemptible" in a small, determined voice with an "e" and went to sit by Bill, knowing well that the mischievous Katie had intended to bring about his confusion.

It had been the first of a long, romantic singing that things had come to a head. Katie had sung to a lonely, contented an old love song, looking straight at Bill and everybody knew that her heart was in her eyes and in her voice as that Bill went to her just as a child is drawn to a comet, while Allie turned her pencil pink face to her cousin, Nat, and in the choral singing that followed, sang in a clear, high soprano that topped the watery notes of Katie as a bird soars above a marsh.

After the singing, he had taken Allie home. They hadn't talked much, walking along through the silent street, smelling Mrs. Jones' syringa and the late roses in the minister's garden and neither of them caring. He'd pressed her hand so gently at the door and asked her to the hospital at Ryde's.

No, he hadn't been sure. Old Mr. Norrevan thought that he was, and till they stood there in the light from the candles, and then he knew sure for always. For the look in the overbearing blue eyes had been the very same look that she'd bent on him there at Mrs. Kennedy's dance but held mistaken it then, thinking it meant for Bill and not for him. Conscious again of the tiny pangs of pain and jealousy, Grandpa smiled at the little dramas of love and flight in which he and Allie and Katie and Bill had chatted their love for each other.

The pages fluttered to the ground and he'd seen sweet about his neck. "Tell me what it was Mr. grandpa, were you and grandma ever naughty—were you ever sort of happy and carried?"

Old Mr. Norrevan caught the dimpled hands in his wrinkled ones. "It didn't show much on the outside face," he said softly, "but we were singing inside."

Aussie Invents Egg Pulping Machine

By C. M. Smith

A lecturer in charge of Agriculture at Gulgong High School, New South Wales, Australia, John Meade B. Sc. Agric. (Sydney), has patented a machine for the extraction of eggs from the shell. The machine not only handles large quantities of eggs expeditiously and with a minimum of crushing, but also removes practically every trace of skin, shell or foreign matter. The pulp is transferred to 28 lb. milk containers, and brine-cooled by a heat exchange machine to a temperature of 36 deg. Fahr. The tins then go into a special refrigerated chamber for blast freezing, at a temperature ranging between zero and minus 10 deg. Fahr. At the end of 12 to 15 hours, the pulp is frozen solid, and will keep indefinitely if stored at a temperature of 10 to 20 deg. Fahr.

John Meade

A battery of six Meade machines with a capacity of 40,000 dozen eggs each eight-hour working day is operating successfully in Sydney and more are being built for use at other points in Australia.

Mr. Meade is one of the technical advisers to the New South Wales Egg Marketing Board. The financing and development of the idea was mainly done by the Egg Marketing Board of N.S.W.

Girl operatives working at the moving trays of eggs on the Meade Egg Pulping machine. Each tray holds 30 dozen eggs. The needles that puncture the shells run to work at the far end of the tray.

Last year 2,500,000 lbs. of eggs were exported from Australia in the form of frozen egg pulp. The method of packing makes it possible to utilize the pulp within eight hours of the freezing chambers and thus an equivalent in eggs in shell will reach consumers in Britain in prime condition.

Egg Marketing Boards had found that breaking by hand for pulping was costly.

With Mr. Meade's machine girl operatives place the eggs in a cup in a container. As the eggs are carried on the conveyor towards the pouring position, they are given a final examination if an expert "candler" and are each in turn inspected under a strong light which shows from below are taken out to remain pulp of high quality.

The eggs are poured rig at a time from a funnel by a needle, operated by a foot treadle, and the contents remained almost instantaneously by suction through the hole in the lower side of the shell and passed into a special screening and homogenizing machine the Meade can emulsifier, which removes any trace of skin, shell or foreign matter. The pulp is transferred to 28 lb. milk containers, and brine-cooled by a heat exchange machine to a temperature of 36 deg. Fahr. The tins then go into a special refrigerated chamber for blast freezing, at a temperature ranging between zero and minus 10 deg. Fahr. At the end of 12 to 15 hours, the pulp is frozen solid, and will keep indefinitely if stored at a temperature of 10 to 20 deg. Fahr.

By JANE DALE

Ma makes real good apple pie;
Cinnamon buns and doughnuts too
She makes scrumptious chocolate cake
But let me at her Irish stew!

When I'm hungry tired and blue,
Then I think of mother's style,
Oh I fall asleep to dream
Not of pork or fritters nice
Not of pies or sweet iced cakes
Nor of buns or doughnuts there;
But I dream a dream ev'time
I spend taste my mother's stew!

Ma makes wondrous kinds of bread,
Rich sweet dumplings and biscuits too,
But she make most anything
But give me her Irish stew!

Russel Beresford was home a few days this week. Nice to see you. If we did not know the 'wifey guy' was a steam pipe, we'd think you had turned pugilistic on us while you were away. Russ had the misfortune of being in the midst of an explosion while working for the Regent Oil Co. in the Ledue-Calmar oilfield a, and he received a very bad burn.

A few young people met at the Al Keegan home Tuesday night for the purpose of forming a Ski Club here. Al Keegan was elected President, Kenny Drover, Sec-Treas., and in spite of himself, Pete Gossard is head of the entertainment committee So far they have about 30 members and hope to get lots more. Remember skip is free and the real purpose of the Club is to teach the young folks to ski (and we old ones too). Some goals outings have been planned, so come on. Everybody welcome.

Much interest has been shown by the boys around town in learning the art of woodwork in Al Keegan's workshop. Amongst other things, casting a 45 degree angle on a power saw, and turning wood on a lathe.

The Junior Red Cross of grades 7 and 8 was formed recently. Marjorie Gendrich is President; Mary Nolana Sec; Kenneth Arnold, Treas, and Beverly Erkland, Reporter. The group decided to sell 1949 calendars.

The prospects for a school paper are better than ever. Profit from same will be used in equipping the school with a motion picture projector.

The Council is working hard to make visitor's day a success. We hope to see a good turn out

We also had some other visitors last week. They were in the form of high school inspectors Messrs Reeve, Rvet and Miss MacFarlane who attended classes a couple of days.

[—]

A number of the Lougheed people were pretty sleepy on Thursday. It couldn't be that there was a dance Wednesday night could it?

The Cost Of Government

LOVE WILL FIND WAY — Joan Dredge of Brisbane, Australia, is shown in Vancouver with her husband, Clifford Phelps of Reedley, Cal. They met in Australia where Phelps was with the U.S. army. He returned to the U.S. in 1944 and Joan couldn't join him because the Aussie quota was filled. So she came to Vancouver and the next step is for Joan to get across the border. (CP photo)

TAXATION IS A MATTER which is of interest to almost every citizen since in recent years income and other taxes have been a considerable item in the budgets of most Canadians. During the war, the need for increased revenue was obvious, and there were few who questioned the necessity for them to contribute through taxes to the support of Canada's war effort. While there have been reductions in income taxes and in some other kinds of taxation recently, it appears unlikely that they will ever again reach pre-war levels. Recent figures issued by the Canadian Bureau of Statistics on the cost of maintaining the Federal government show that there has been a tremendous increase in the past ten years. In the year ending last March 31, there were 115,370 Federal civil servants and their annual salaries totalled $236,799,609.

Now Less Than In Peak Years

In 1938, there were only 44,143 civil servants and their annual payroll was $66,500,000. This was calculated by the Bureau to show that in the ten years between 1938 and 1948 there had been an increase in the number of employees of 161 per cent, and in the salary increase by more than 256 per cent. It was pointed out that these figures do not include revenue postmasters, employees paid by the hour, and those working for crown corporations. While all proper allowance for increases in cost of living probably less than it was in the peak years of 1946 and 1947, it is higher than it was before the war, and it is expected that the cost will be higher this year due to increases in the salaries of civil servants. The rise in the number of government employees at this time is said to be due to the expanding activities of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, the Department of National Health and Welfare and the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Trend Towards More Service

There is clearly a trend in these times for the government to increase its services to the people in matters of health, welfare and various forms of social security. This trend is by no means confined to Canada. It has been evident in the United States for the past two decades, the people of England have shown that they want more legislation of this kind, and Australia and New Zealand much social legislation has been introduced. There is no doubt as to the benefits derived from such services, but in demanding them the people should realize that they increase the cost of government and that this cost must in the long run be borne largely by the public. This problem is not one that is faced with the Canadian people in living memory, but has become more almost troubled in the past ten years. While it is most desirable that we should progress soundly, it should be understood that such progress is certainly dependent upon public expenditures, and that as a result, higher taxes are to be expected.

Two girls, talking home together, were discussing their current beau. Interests, that is.

"Now, I ask you Isabel, how could I fire him? He's so devoted, pretending to believe me when he knows I'm lying to him?"

"Why, Mary, you are breaking more and more crockery than your wages amount to! What can you do about it?"

"I don't know, ma'am. Maybe you'd better raise my wages."

* * * *

"I had a beauty today. I got up at seven, had seven dollars in my pocket. There was seven of them for lunch, and there were seven horses in the three-o'clock race at seventh."

"So he came in the winner?"

"No, he came in seventh."

* * * *

A girl who was in love with a jockey had persuaded her mother to see her dance side in a race. Mother took up her position near the rails, and when the horses flashed past and disappeared she snapped her mouth like a vise.

"You ought not to marry that fellow," she said, coldly. 'I dithe a hair. I told him to look out for me, and when he passed he never even raised his arm."

"My last two housemaids were too fond of policemen, and I had to discharge them on that account. I do hope you won't give me any trouble of that sort."

"No blooming fear, mum," answered the maid quickly. "You see, my young man's a sanitary man."

"Oh!" said the nervous old lady to the bus conductor, "I do think the driver wouldn't go quite so fast round these shabby corners."

"That's all right, lady," said the conductor, "You just want to shut your eyes, same as he does."

Young wife: "My husband is frightfully run down."

Doctor: "Business worries, perhaps?"

"Oh, it can't be that. His business has just been wound up."

"Courtesy to the boy on my right, sir."

Estimates 600,000 Acres Of Land Suited For Irrigation In Central Sask.

SASKATOON. — John Mitchell, head of the soils department at the University of Saskatchewan, estimates approximately 600,000 acres of farm lands in central Saskatchewan are suitable for irrigation.

Under Mitchell's supervision, soil areas in central Saskatchewan have been assessed from the irrigation standpoint over the past two years.

The surveys have been carried out in order to find how much land is suited to irrigation when the proposed Elbow dam is constructed.

Contents Soil Surveys

In 1947, teams under his direction conducted soil surveys on over 1,000,000 acres of farm lands in central Saskatchewan, 500,000 acres were found to be suitable for irrigation. This year's four extensive surveys covered another 600,000 acres. The findings are still being tabulated.

But Mitchell is a conservative estimate, said an additional 300,000 acres of good irrigable soil were found. Added to last year's figure, this means that about 600,000 acres of farm lands in central Saskatchewan are considered suitable for irrigation. He emphasized the estimate is subject to revision.

The four extensions this year were conducted in the Pike Lake area, the Delude-Anguish region, the Bradwell-Elstow district, and the Moose Jaw-Thunder Creek sector.

Mitchell explained the irrigation possibilities at Pike Lake were actually quite independent of the proposed Elbow dam development. He foresaw a thriving irrigation development in the Pike Lake district.

In the Moose Jaw-Thunder Creek extension, he reported, the soil is largely heavy Regina clay. He said acreage in this sector is not liable to be included in any South Saskatchewan River Irrigation scheme.

Possesses Surveys

It is in the Delude-Anguish and the Bradwell-Elstow district that the 100,000 acres of good irrigable land is located.

Mitchell has commented on the several aspects of the projected irrigation development in central Saskatchewan. He believed that an irrigation project based on the Elbow dam will finally materialize, sooner or later. But—he emphasized—it is not necessarily a near prospect.

The southern Alberta irrigation development took 30 years to get on a sound footing, observed Dr Mitchell

Montana Editor Really Started Something

PLENTYWOOD, Mont. — When people start comparing against each other in supplying news for the local newspaper, the editor generally winds up in the middle, as George A. Grant, publisher of the Plentywood Herald found out recently. One of the following articles appeared in a recent issue of the Herald:

"Mrs. Ima Fine got to stop. It all began weeks ago when P. C. Peterson, Clifford Phelps' old friend, needed cabbage to bring it to the Herald office. With an eye for the unusual, the editor hopped up the ridge and featured the trunk of Mr. Peterson garden. Shortly thereafter L. M. Jenner, a newcomer from Canada, brought in a triple ear of corn. This challenged Lester Hanson of Medicine Lake who believed he had the quadruplet ear of corn to the office.

"That stopped the multiple 'birfor' for a few weeks but Peterson came back for more with a quintuplet persuasion. He was barely out of the office when Mrs. Jim Johnson straggled up the steps of the Herald office with quintuplets in her arms. Then —and hold your hats—a new freak has been added to the list. It's an eight-headed cabbage brought in by Mrs. Emil Rost of Archer. Perhaps it's because we live so close to Canada."

U.S. RESTRICTIONS HOLDING BRITISH CAPITAL

EDMONTON — Alberta Municipal Affairs Minister Gerhart said government-imposed currency restrictions in the United Kingdom were preventing a wholesale exodus of British and British capital to Canada.

Winter's Fuel Free For The Taking

LILLOOET, B.C. — High costs of fuel are not going to worry ranchers and farmers in this district this winter.

Good burning coal, free for the taking, is available in the Upper Bralorne valley

Invitation for district residents to help themselves has come from Manfred McGraw well-known Vancouver barrister, who is associated with the Hat Creek Coal Mines.

Several thousand tons of good burning coal were exposed when gasoline workers of Hat Creek washed off the overburden in June this year. The deposit is just below the Hat Creek Coal Mine which has not been operating since before the war, and 300 yards from the main road.

Offer was confirmed when a group of Lillooet citizens went out with a truck and brought back about a ton of the fuel.

They were able to back the truck to within 10 feet of the deposit.

With coal at $25 a ton at Lillooet, the engineering is causing considerable interest.

Geologists have found huge bodies to ignite in the Hat Creek area.

There are also large deposits of pottery clay which could be used in making cement, brick and pottery.

SCHOOLS USE MOVIES AND THE RADIO

(By J. W. Chalmers)

Today well over half of the pupils in the Killam Inspectorate are accustomed to "going to the movies" without leaving their own schools. Fifteen-millimeter movie projectors equipped 16? sound films have been installed in the schools at Lougheed, Sedgewick, Killam, Daysland, Forestburg, Galahad and Alliance. Films are loaned to schools at a small charge or free, except for postage or express, by the Audio-Visual Aids Branch of the Department of Education and by the Extension Department of the U. of A. Although most films are designed primarily for entertainment, most are used in the various business of tourists. There is hardly a phase of the school program today that cannot be enriched by suitable films. Science, geography, health, music and English. These and many other subjects are made more vivid and meaningful by films especially produced for educational purposes

Because of the expense of the equipment and the need for power, movie projectors are not practicable in rural schools, but a school radio is within the reach of most rural districts. Schools now having radios include, St. Leo, Alliance, Lakefield, Sedgewick, Hardisty, Lougheed, Mervin and others. Some of these have been donated by community organizations; others were purchased wholly or in part by students.

For the spring term no fewer than seventeen different weekly radio broadcasts planned for pupils in grades 4 to 11. These series deal with current events, music, social studies, literature (including novels, plays, biography and poetry) speech and French. Many of these series are produced especially for Alberta listeners by the Department of Education; others are CBC series that the four western provinces, and four more make up the CBC National series. In Alberta all educational programs are broadcast over CKUA, CFCN and CJCJ.

The Dept. of Education pays a grant of 25 percent of cost of the radio projectors and radios for all schools, but only when each equipment is purchased through the school board. Schools in the Killam Division plan on obtaining such equipment should get in touch with the divisional office before proceeding with the purchase. Under certain circumstances the divisional board assists in defraying its cost. Further information about school radio programs may be obtained from the divisional superintendent.

PERSONAL STUFF

— By A. W. R. —

Last Wednesday, December 8th, as Victor's Day at the Central High and Public Schools at Sedgewick. Of course everybody had to be there as estimated 250 people turned out. Length to be able to attend. I, along with the others, enjoyed the delicious lunch. We were rewarded repeatedly in the main hall, and from the various rooms conducted by guides to the various points of interest.

In the basement floor we found the commercial room, with a battery of the model typewriters, where we were informed that some of the girls students had already reached the speed of 60 words a minute Here also we found the projection room where a movie show was being staged at the moment, and the Cadet room which was equipped with all the latest gadgets such as an intercom communication system and the most modern winter equipment for the cadets.

On the main floor we were escorted by our obliging and courteous guide, to the music room, where we found musical instruments and a piano and from where future men and women will be sent out into the world to soothe frazzled nerves with charming music. From here we went to the Home Economics room where girls were busy demonstrating on the new electric sewing machines and sewing tan and cushion covers. I was requested from all sides to comply at least once, every variety of food on the ladies table right here I must honestly retract my and all previous statements, and replace them with the new one "It is not surprising to me that the students eat their own food, for truly it was delicious"

We then visited the home science rooms where even in this advanced and enlightened age the home science of cooking are still being taught. We were shown some of the latest ranges and refrigerators, and found both to be very efficient, good and some not so good

It was with a pang of regret that we stood on the spot where the electric eye used to be in the Assembly Room. It was there I had most of my fun as a student.

The mornings lingered longest in the Shop Room witnessing the working of power tools, electric hoists, saws and modern tools.

The Dormitory too was thoroughly "gone over" from the Rec Room to the sleeping quarters and from the kitchen to the modern bath rooms

A feature of the affair here was the presentation by Dr Chalmers of the Governor General's medal to Miss Rosemary Manning

Miss Ruth Lennox of Lougheed is now employed at the Killam News office in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Larson and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Rule spent some time in the Capital last week.

A shower was held at the H. T. Erickson home in honor of Mrs. Morris Hart (nee Rose Fiscus). The evening was spent in making bride's book. Rose received many lovely gifts for which she gracefully thanked all those present. We all wish Rose and Morris the very best of luck in life ahead.

Mr. Hugh Walther spent most of the past week in Edmonton where he attended a meeting of the Presbytorial of the Presbyterian Church.

Jean Roberts and Pat Marra spent Sunday at Lougheed.

C. Fraser spent a few days in Edmonton during the past week.

The curling season has opened up again with a few games having been played in Killam.

Other visitors to Edmonton during the past week were, Len Walker, Martin Jacobs and Jim Grant Sr.

We see that Ted Patten, Leo Hirth, Lloyd George, Bill Brede, Doug Kinney and Charlie Manning are back in our midst again. I guess the bush didn't agree with them.

The Hart-Fossen wedding dance on Friday Dec. 10th was a big success with everyone enjoying it.

The highlight of the week was the boy's day. This was open house at the Dormitory and High School for all those that wished to see the very heart of our education.

Louis arrived back at the Dorm on Tuesday. We are glad to report that he is in fine shape.

— — — —

Have you seen the new "water plate" John G. has invented? If you want to find out how effective it is just ask Percy or Ralph.

CENTRAL HI LIGHTS

We wish to thank everyone who visited our school last Wednesday, and also those who so kindly helped us in making the day a success.

Thanks to Mr. Blakeney, we all went to the Dorm to see some films which the Student Union presented on Dec. 9th in the afternoon.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

COULD YOU REMEMBER?

By Matthew F. Christopher

She Had Never Been Concerned About Men In School—Or After!

He was famous now, and he would not remember. If he did remember, he would pretend he didn't. He wasn't only Freddie Hampton of grade-school days, who used to sit behind her in classroom and run his fingers through her hair, and feel about her upturned nose with the empty spot in her mouth where a tooth was growing. Why, he could see every time she laughed. He wasn't only that Freddie Hampton. He was the Freddie Hampton in one of the famous radio serials who had risen on three different shows.

It was like a fantastic dream, Cathy thought. She cherished the memory of those wonderful days when Freddie used to be nonchalant about her existence. Now he didn't even remember her name. He had been concerned about him in school. So had she.

He was in town now, visiting his uncle. The senior class girls had really made a fuss about him.

"Boy, is he cute!" Geraldine Arnold had commented, with eyes that rolled around big and round and a well-practiced Geraldine look directed to him a whistle.

Mary Carol had suddenly become all a-dither. Mary had only lived here two years and she had not known Freddie personally but she had heard him many times on his radio programs. "Oo-oo!" she had cooed happily. Did he speak to you, Geraldine?"

Why, of course! He used to sit right across from me in school until he—" And Mary should have known.

He sat across from you, all right, Cathy thought but I was the one who had sat directly in front of him. Whose hair he used to pull, and whose neck he'd tickle for fun—if he never noticed you Geraldine!

He could have used so much help with all his girls around, but she hadn't. She had hardly said a word. She didn't think she had ever said a word.

She gazed across at the Saturday afternoon audience that crowded in a thin, gaily-colored stream down the theatre aisle. Cathy sighed and shook her head. Her thoughts were far away from the radio show's grand finale. She helped to cue it in, however, by pressing that certain rare spot that no thing warmth that almost invariably worked when she felt an ache of loneliness coming on.

Mrs. [illegible] softly, but hard enough for her mother to hear. It's [illegible]

"All right," and there was both a pause and a cord.

Cathy left the radio playing. She picked up her black purse from the telephone stand, took out her gold-plated compact, and walked in front of the mirror. She touched her fuss lightly with the powder puff, crammed her lips. She lifted her large, blue eyes in interrogation. She put a long, slender finger through a curl and pushed it back slightly upon her head. Finally, she glanced at her nose. Darned, upturned thing, she thought.

She reached Lowcrest Boulevard and for a few minutes stood under the shade of a cherry tree and looked out upon the vast, green lawn that arched down toward the blue, peaceful lake. There were small, green bunches on the lawn, with pillows on most of them. There was a tree among all the rest.

It was a short tree. A maple She looked at it, sure, at the bench beneath it. There was someone sitting there, but once upon a time she stood to sit there with Freddie Hampton. He'd have both arms draped upon the top of the bench, and one leg crossed over the other. And there'd look at the millions in the lake, feeling the soft, fresh breeze caressing their cheeks, blowing through her hair—the same breeze that ballooned the white sails and sent the tiny boats whipping over the blue water.

They would talk and talk, and remember things she could not even remember now, if she tried. Lots of it, though, she did remember, were about boats Because Freddie had liked boats. All kinds of boats. Sailboats, motor boats, canoes, yachts. He probably has earned enough by now, she thought, to own one of each kind.

She wanted to cross the boulevard to the other side. Took a step, changed her mind. Why continue being silly like this? she asked herself seriously. Why not go home, forget there ever was a Freddie Hampton, or a Freddie Hampton?

There were no cars coming. She crossed the boulevard quickly. She stepped upon the curb, then the lawn, feeling it yield like a carpet under her feet. She felt the combrish ner against her cheeks, ruffling her hair a trifle. She tilted her head slightly, to get the benefit of the sweetness in her wind throat.

She walked on slowly, quietly. She thought about stopping and lying down on the short-cropped grass, but she kept on walking.

Suddenly she realized she wasn't far from the maple tree. The bench was beside it, with the man sitting on it, the sun painting a leafy pattern across his black hair and soft, too-wide shoulders. He was looking out upon the lake. He looked kind of lonesome. Cathy gazed at the back of his neck.

And then she saw that the man had his arms draped over the top of the bench and that one leg was crossed over the other.

"Freddie!" she whispered, and her throat stood instantly.

He must have heard because he turned around then, and a smile came over his face. A smile that brightened his brown eyes and put color in his cheeks, that seemed to breathe life into him.

"Cathy!" he exclaimed softly, and he stood up.

She seemed to be frozen to the lawn for a moment, but suddenly the roots that held her melted away and she broke forward him. Tears burned her eyes. But, oh, so happy tears!

EVEN THE ROYAL "BOO" WAS UNDER A SPELL!—There was only one lodge of excitement in England throughout the British Empire on that memorable day when the birth of a son to Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. Every scrap of information about the royal blessed event made headlines. Most concrete scrap of the day was the official bulletin issued by the royal obstetrician, W. Gilliatt, and posted outside Buckingham Palace. The grand duke seems to have been as excited as any other father for his spelling is a little off the beam. Note the word satisfactory in the bulletin. ## Manitoba Still To Retain One Licence Plate

Two Canadian provinces — Manitoba and Quebec will retain the one-time single licence plate for automobiles during 1949. British Columbia motor vehicles will sport drop yellow licence plates with black letters, starting with the next year. The colors are just a little different from any chosen in North America.

Manitoba's plates will be n-ered with black on ordinary yellow and will show the year with not name of the U.S.

Saskatchewan will issue two plates with coloring of deep maroon background and white letters.

Terms has gone everyone just a bit better. The cars will be tagged with gold plates bearing black letters.

Production On The Increase In Southern Alberta By Irrigation

By TORRES BRIDGE, CP

LETHBRIDGE, Alta.—Sugar and steaks are contrasting products of Lethbridge, fast-growing city of the south of Alberta, and if you don't think they have much in common, read on. For that juicy steak you'll eat some time next year, right now is on the hoof in the Lethbridge feed yards, munching away on the pulp of sugar beets, after the sugar has been extracted.

It is an example of the rounded-out economy which is shielding.

Not so long ago, in the '30s, Lethbridge was founded on coal—and it still is around here in abundance. Also once rattle, because the buffalo fed gone and the Indians had to be fed. Then hard wheat, still the wealth-et crop. But relatively recently came irrigation on a large scale, and that is the word in Lethbridge today.

For irrigation made possible the sugar beet and one out of every 10 pounds of sugar which Canadians eat is produced right here; it brought vegetables and a canning industry, and last year 1,500,000 pounds of frozen peas were shipped in Ontario direction. It provided extra fodder for cattle, and it removed much of the curse of drought from a country which at best has a low rainfall.

It is also bringing more population per square mile—raising it gradually from three persons to 17, a stable population which should get along come boom or depression, dry year or wet.

There's oil around here too, not a great deal in production yet, but enough to encourage Alberta's general optimism in this direction.

Irrigation

Take this matter of irrigation and forget for the moment the big wheat farms of this area which produced 12,000,000 bushels of wheat worth $15,000,000 in a year and the large cattle ranches as big as 52,000 acres.

For irrigation makes possible the smaller farms of, say, 160 acres They plant about 25 acres to sugar beets from which a farmer today can get $200 an acre, some more to vegetables for canning which will bring $130 to $150 an acre, the rest to hay, oats, some wheat, these mostly for feed; and they add cattle and sheep.

About 350,000 acres now are irrigated in southern Alberta, but further big projects are afoot. There's the St. Mary-Milk river development, for instance, south of Lethbridge, which will have a dam extending 10 miles long by six wide, and add another 600,000 acres. It will make possible 2,000 to 4,000 farms. Another about 2,500,000 acres in southern Alberta may be brought in, and this is part of a larger western picture which envisages similar developments in central and southern Saskatchewan.

Sugar Beet Plants

It is fascinating to visit the sugar plants at Picture Butte or Raymond (see later on, the one now building at Taber), and see the beets come in on belt conveyors, get stamped and sliced, and see white granulated sugar come out at the other end of the plant. It is just 12 hours from raw beet till it's ready for your porridge

You can taste it along the way, from the shredded whole beet, already somewhat sweet, through the thicker and thicker syrups, until a sticky brown mass mercifully turns to pure white sugar as it is whirled at high speed, the molasses content going off through filters.

Fifty thousand tons of beets are scheduled at Picture Butte alone at the moment and 1 700 tons of sugar are processed there daily making more than 250 tons of sugar a day while the crop season is on.

About 17 per cent of the beet is sugar What is left is pulp and molasses. That goes to the cattle feed yards which have collected around Lethbridge and some 30,000 cattle worth about $15,000,000 on the hoof, think a good eating when it is mixed with grains You think so, too, for much of that sugar you put in your tea, and much of that beef in your mainstay, came from the same thing.

A great, big, white, city sugar beet.

Not that all western cattle are raised around Lethbridge—not at all, but a lot of them are; most of the others just have to be without beets.

And not to get in the hair of more populous Calgary, with its 100 000 people, or neighboring Medicine Hat, all southern Alberta doesn't bring to Lethbridge It's fold in the more southern part, about 100 miles south of Calgary and 50 miles north of the international boundary, an area which needs a city of its own, which is fast growing Lethbridge with 18,000 people and 20,000 predicted, a place of wide, tree-lined streets and meadow.

It's down near where the Crow's Nest pass leads into British Columbia, where the K-ite Valley railway runs west through Cranbrook, Nelson, past industrial Trail and on to Penticton and Vancouver. It's the way southern Albertans and southern British Columbians want the trans-Canada highway to run, tasing their claims on density of population and the soft Chinook winds which would make a highway operational the year around.

Love For Children Will Make Duke Of Edinburgh Ideal Parent

LONDON, (CP) —Parenthood will mean many adjustments for the tall, knit-boned Duke of Edinburgh who since he won the hand of a Princess has had to walk beside her in the full glare of publicity he once tried to avoid. Already, as consort of the future queen, his life has curtailed far more observance of formalities than is natural to him. As the father of a possible future monarch, he will be expected to set a stern example in patience and devotion to duty and to adhere more closely to traditional form and custom.

On the other hand his natural love of children — manifest on numerous occasions when he has played boars and horses with the young Duke of Kent — should make him a lovable fun-loving parent.

During many of his public appearances with the Princess he has been photographed stooping to laugh and talk with small children. At a recent function recently he said to the five-year-old son of a city administrator "I expect you'd rather be home with your rocking horse."

His own happy childhood has probably contributed to this record, although he was born a Prince of the Hellenes, he had his share of fun as a games-loving schoolboy at the modern public school, Elgin, Scotland, where he went at 13 years of age.

Earlier at Salem school, Baden-Germany, he displayed a happy character trait that later on leaned him to private functions

Jackie Cameron has taken over the Star Weekly route, formerly delivered by Robert Thorpe.

Al Keegan and Johnny Miles are busily engaged in converting Hardisty's place of business into a combined Bakery, Jewelry Store and Confectionery, to accommodate the business recently purchased from F. Crosier. The Wilder family has moved into the Crosier house, next door to Mr. Metson.

Mr. Herb Bricker was a Friday visitor in Edmonton.

Mr. Walter Cooper, pilot instructor of the Hardisty Flying School, did not come down this week, due to the very extreme cold, and his weekly visits have been changed from Wednesday to Friday of each week.

The dance Tuesday night put on by Elston's Garage, proved a great success with a very large crowd in attendance, and everyone reporting a very good time. The weather was very good also. Refreshments generously served, and entertainers were all present and good. After a vote of thanks to Dick Elston, the crowd joined in "Auld Lang Syne" and the merry song, For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Thank you Elston, we had a wonderful time and are very much afraid you have started something.

The Chili Club meeting was held Friday night in Strang School with about 35 present. Mr. Wilfred Hodgson's talk was present as cubmaster, and after a very interesting meeting, a delicious lunch was served by the members. The next meeting of the Club will be at the home of Pete Gaumond in Hardisty on the 3rd of January.

Mr. and Mrs. Elston Shaw were in Edmonton last Friday.

Gus Johnson left Tuesday for Dauphin, B. C. to join his wife who has been visiting her folks. Mr. and Mrs. Edmonton accompanied him as far as Edmonton where he intends taking a job for the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Crouch motored to Edmonton Wednesday and before it set, parked their car for the night in a hangar. Due to the extreme cold there was no room in Garages. We heard Jim say that he thought he was the only man around here ever to do so, and declared it was the first time. We haven't all got a doctor working at an airport.

In compliment to Miss Myrtle Sayers, a January bride-elect, a Shower was held in the United basement on Tuesday the 7th. About 25 guests were present. For the shower the basement was decorated with pink and white streamers flames were placed on tables and a duet was sung by Miss Yvonne Morrison and Yarlene Quinlan. A delicious lunch was served after which Miss Sayers opened her many gifts and her many friends sang, For She's A Jolly Good Fellow".

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Swain and his brothers Mike and Johnny were past week end visitors here.

Curling got away to a good start Monday night with the opening game at the local bonspiel. The ice is in fine shape and competitions keen, as everybody is going all out to make it a success. Nice too, that Bill has begun feeding the rink for shuttle and ice should soon be ready.

Be sure to see the Carnival and Magic Show sponsored by the Canadian Legion on Jan. 16 and 17 at 8:00 p.m. in Kiefer's Hall. Door prizes will be given away and there will be a show every night. For kiddies at 5 p.m. Admission is free, everyone welcome, so make it a date.

The high school is well on its way to having its school paper out by the 15th of this month.

A dance was held at Cricklelade School last Friday night.

A fair crowd attended the Stags sponsored by the Legion on Friday, Dec. 10th. A number of prominent citizens was prime.

Boston Bruins Heaviest Team In N.H.L.

For the third straight season, Boston Bruins have iced the heaviest team in the N.H.L. The average weight of the 17 players on the Boston club this season is 177.5 pounds. Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs are close behind the Bruins in pounding with an average of 176.5 and 176.4 pounds respectively.

Average weight of the 16 players on the New York Rangers ranks as an even 174 pounds. Chicago Black Hawks have a 172.2 average while Montreal Canadiens are the lightest team in the League with an average of 170.7 pounds per player.

Top weight for an individual player in the National League this season is 200 pounds and there are only five players in the loop at that figure. They are Wendy Dumart and Jack Crawford of Boston, Butch Bouchard of Montreal, Harry Watson of Toronto and Doug McCaig of Chicago. Bobby O'Connor of Rangers is still the lightest player in the circuit at 142 pounds.

Last year Boston had an average of 180 pounds while two years ago the average was 179 pounds. A year ago Toronto had an average weight per player of 176 pounds. ### KITCHEN MEDITATIONS

"Twenty Below!"

By JANE DALE

Wrap yourself up warm Johnny.
Mind, it is twenty below.
There is ice on the water trough
And diamonds on the snow.

Don't stick out your tongue, Jacky,
Against the cold iron gate.
Remember, it's right frosty now.
Don't cry when it's too late.

You can hear the late train whistle
Though it's six miles away.
Just like it's coming in the lane,
The air is sharp today.

Mind, now don't get cold, Johnny,
And play out in the cold.
Even when it's twenty I know
A child must have some fun!"

UNEMPLOYMENT IN B.C. REACHING PEAK RECORD

VANCOUVER—William Hegarton, regional superintendent of the National Employment Service, said unemployment in British Columbia is developing into a chronic situation.

He estimated that by the end of the year the number of unemployed in the province would rise from the present 22,000 to 25,000, highest in history. Today, there are only 1,000 jobs available, he added.

"Seasonal layoffs, coupled with an influx of 600 persons each week to the province, can be blamed for the rise," he said.

THIS IS A JOB THAT YOU CAN DO

By Edward L. Bose, Medical Director, Saskatoon Board Of Manitoba

If you had Paul in the papers that a large number of people had lost their lives in a train wreck, or in a fire, or that a mine had caved in entombing a whole shift of miners you would quite naturally think this a shocking disaster. You would be even more concerned if you learned that catastrophes could have been prevented. This social or epidemic prevalence is a fine old normal attributes but did you ever ask yourself the question—does it disturb me as much to learn that more than five thousand persons in Canada died of tuberculosis last year 264 of them in Manitoba.

Yet tuberculosis, as much or more than these other disasters is preventable. If all the cases of tuberculosis could be found and treated the disease might be eliminated within the life-time of the young generation Tuberculosis presents a challenge which we have so far met only in part. The toll taken by this disease has been reduced as much as 75 per cent. since the turn of the century and it is possible to reduce the other 25 per cent as well.

Each year at this time part-time by the Saskatoon Board offers you an opportunity to enter in on the campaign against tuberculosis when you are asked to buy Christmas Seals. In Manitoba the money raised by the sale of Christmas Seals is and always has been spent within the Province for the prevention of tuberculosis, through the services of specialists and clinics. The whole Province has been covered and we are well on in the second round. This intensive and greatly increased program to discover new cases and seek out unknown sources of infection among apparently well people is provided by fully equipped and modern mobile x-ray units. It is financed by the Christmas Seal Sale and the fund-raising activities of the Associated Canadian Travellers. Not one cent is spent for sanatorium treatment which is free to the individual requiring it.

Tuberculosis is a communicable disease which can be kept from spreading by treating in sanatorium all those who have it in infectious form. The prime requisite in both prevention and cure is, of course that the disease be discovered in its early stages Tuberculosis in this early stage and often even when more advanced does not produce symptoms—so the only sure way of detecting the disease in a person is by x-ray, and in a community by mass x-ray surveys.

Great strides have been made in controlling tuberculosis. In 1900 it was the first cause of death it is now seventh. This is a considerable victory yet is is not enough as it still remains the leading cause of death between the ages of fifteen and forty-five and is the most wasteful disease in life-years. Surely this is a challenge.

There is no much human suffering that is unavoidable, it is something to know that here is one place you can really help. You can be a partner in the campaign against tuberculosis by buying Christmas Seals. This is a job that you can do.

Rust-Resistant Wheats Add 40,000,000 Bushels To Harvest

(From Article by Duncan Dunbar in Toronto Saturday Night)

Without sowing an extra acre, farmers in Western Canada harvested 40,000,000 more bushels of wheat this fall than they would have done ten years ago. That's almost as much wheat as the Canadian people eat themselves. And 40,000 000 bushels would fill almost one-third of the yearly supply under contract to Britain.

The 40 000 000 extra bushels represent the increased yield achieved by the introduction of rust-resistant wheats to western Canada. At current wheat prices, they also represent an additional $56,000 000 in the value taken from rust-resistant wheats have been grown in the west, farmers have gained at least $400 000 000 for a total outlay for Canada of only about 12 000 000.

Warns Of New Racket In Christmas Parcels

OTTAWA Don McClymont manager of the Better Business Bureau of Ottawa and District Inc., issued a warning to business establishments to be on their guard against accepting delivery of Christmas-gift parcels addressed to them without having been ordered.

Mr. McClymont said that at least one man claiming to be a war veteran had made deliveries of gift merchandise to local offices and had collected payment from a clerk who had been assured that the manager had ordered the gifts Later the clerk had found that no order had been given.

"The racket disappears by the time the police receive the manager, after having collected up to $10 in payment," Mr. McClymont declared in explaining the procedure. "The articles are not worth anything like the amount collected. We have also learned of other criminals and lamps in the Ottawa district."

The bureau manager said that the police had been informed of the racket and were watching for further incidents. The co-operation of the public was requested by Mr. McClymont.

NOTICE TO READERS

There will be no issue of the Community Press next week. The next issue will be dated January 6th.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. B.—

As my readers will notice elsewhere on this page, I once again will follow the custom now adopted by many weekly papers in the west, and refrain from publishing a paper for the week between Christmas and the New Year. I did not follow this procedure last year, as I had enjoy ed a holiday during the summer, but this year I found it impossible, due to the increased pressure of business after my business to relax and rest from my labors.

Although I will not be publishing the paper for Dec. 30th, I will be on duty at the plant all week in order to catch up on the heavy volume of Job Printing which has piled up on our during the past few weeks. Your subscription renewals will be gladly accepted as will your change of address for the first issue in January.

It is my sincere wish that you and yours may enjoy one of the happiest Christmas seasons of your life, and that the turning of the new year will herald for you the peace and contentment of mind to which we all strive from year to year.

A motion was made to have a new sign made to be placed at the highway entrance to town. This will be a V-shaped sign which may be seen by both east and west travelling motorists. Mr. Reg Johnson, who made the first sketch, will also make this sign.

Mr. Guenard reported on the possibility of a Stampede in Hardisty next year. He had attended a meeting at Stettler. If the Stampede is held, it will be the 17th and 18th of June. D. Dickson and H. Bricker were delegated to meet with the Legion, and like to arrange for a joint sponsorship of the Stampede.

UNITED CHURCH CHOIR PRESENTED WITH GIFT

(By C. R. Rawson, Lougheed

The venerable Robert McChesney drew our attention to the time when we may be reading a book in a rather dark room, and coming to a difficult passage we take the book to the window in order to get more light. In like manner, when reading the Bible and we come to a passage that seems to be beyond us, we take the book of Christ who illuminates the sacred pages for us in our attempt to grasp the fuller understanding of the holy scriptures.

Just as we need divine help to interpret spiritual things in the new Book, so we need the same help when we are in need of enlightenment when the Bible was born in a stable in the little town of Bethlehem nearly two thousand years ago. The world was in turmoil. The national and spiritual state of God's chosen people was at its worst condition. They were subject to a foreign power to which they paid heavy tribute, and in addition were in spiritual bondage to a distorted form of religion which gave no power to mind or soul. In the fullness of time God sent His own Son in the likeness of man to change and purify this Himself a people who would be instrumental in bringing the message of God to all nations.

As Queen Esther was said to come to her people for a special purpose, so Jesus Christ was born of God to minister His power in his day; so the Prophets brought their timely message of warning and encouragement and as Jesus came, not only with a new light for the old truth, but to establish and usher in the dispensation of the gospel of the grace of God, just as all true followers of the lowly Nazarene are called to stand at the cross-roads of life in the present civilization and direct men to the "way" of life, the narrow straight "way" the way out for the struggling masses of humanity, bewildered by the mass of conflicting interests

Come let us observe this glorious season in worshipping the Christ born as a babe in Bethlehem, who now reigns at the right hand of the Father. He is the way of truth and righteousness. He is the Saviour of every son of Adam who will receive Him in simple faith. He is the Light of the World.

DIVISIONAL TRUSTEES HOLD REGULAR MEETING

(By J. W. Chalmers)

A regular meeting of the board of Killam School Division was held at Killam on December 10th, with all members being present. Tenders were opened for the sale of the garage at Quarrel School, and the highest tender accepted. The board also approved the sale of an old piano and an old furnace.

The board expressed its appreciation for the efforts put forth by the residents of Central Hi on the occasion of Visitors Day, and directed the divisional secretary to write to the trustees extending appreciation.

It was decided to purchase a Dittomachine for the Dayland School and, with the consent of the local board, to charge the cost against the trust funds of Dayland S. D.

Approval was given to the holding of school festivals in 1949.

The trustees discussed plans for co-operating with Forestburg Community in an effort to provide instruction in local arts and home economics to students in Meister, Round Hill, Creek and Killam schools. The board members were sympathetic to the idea, but deferred definite decision to a later date.

During the day the board inspected the divisional repairman, the secretary supervisor, and the salary

THE STORY ON OIL WELLS AT KILLAM AND SEDGEWICK

(By TowerPetroleum Ltd., Calgary)

"Tower No. 1 Well north of Sedgewick has been abandoned and must be turned, as uneconomical test for that particular area. Our objective was the equivalent of the D6 formation in Leduc, which was found in our well south of Killam, but which we landed with salt water at that location. Our hope in the well north of Sedgewick was to pick up the same formation higher structurally, or where it may have been pinched out, so that there might be some accumulation of oil which coincidentally had been laid down many millions of years ago, when the Devonian seas were covering this part of the land.

The well was abandoned at the depth of 5315 feet, and it is possible the D6 equivalent might have been found had we persevered longer, but it was felt that even so, the depth would have been too great for economical production.

Sunray-Pacific is now about to drill a test near Lougheed on some acreage controlled by us.

Representation committee of the A. T. A. Salary negotiations continues. The next meeting of the board will be held in Killam on Jan. 14th, 1949

BERLIN—WERE THE DEAD AID THE LIVING — Thus small neglected cemetery of St. Thomas in Berlin serves the living as well as the dead. It borders the major axis of the Templehof airfield, most vital spot in the airlift operation. Fog lights and landing lights at this town on those hugs poles keep the operation going in fog and at night. The reflected light, falling on the tombstones at night, gives an eerie effect to the scene. However no graves were desecrated during the airlift operation despite Russian charges to that effect. Funerals, too, are being conducted as usual.—B.N.B photo.

The main interest in town during the past week has been curling. The popular sport got underway with a mixed spiel beginning Monday night of last week, with 16 rinks entered. This continued for three nights and then the farmers took over the rink for a three day spiel, with 24 rinks entered. This spiel came to a final close Saturday night. Winners will appear later. The ladies curling club served at the rink during the spiel. With the new lunch room added to the south side, the ladies report the task of serving is much simpler than in former years. The mixed spiel is to be continued next week.

The honored guest received many useful and lovely gifts arranged under a small Xmas tree. Mrs. Wm. Burrows assisted Maureen in opening her parcels, after which the honored guest made a speech of appreciation. A delicious lunch was served at the conclusion.

Overheard at the rink one night last week during one of our young ladies' curling matches: "Be careful Dan, little pitchers have big ears you know and they might be press reporters too."

Our two oil drillers, Norman Jack and Gene Arneson returned home on Friday night for the holidays.

Don't forget to stay for the evening, and see the gay colored lights and the decorated evergreens all up and down main street. If you want to see a fairyland, come to Lougheed during Christmas and we guarantee you will not be disappointed.

Mrs. Redpath and son are visitors at the L. Barthel home.

Mrs. A. McClure and daughters of Irma are visiting at the Rogers, Wheeldon's my visiting, as Mrs. McClure better known as Phyl, is once again in the Post Office helping during the Xmas rush, whose her quiet efficient service and gay smile are appreciated by all.

As their birthdays are almost the same time the three decided on a bang up party. The evening was spent in playing various games, the most interesting one being truth or consequences, which proved to be a lot of fun, for all. A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Reed and Jim, after which Jean, Merle and Phyllis were presented with gifts.

Diversified Farming

WHILE FORTUNES HAVE BEEN MADE from the growing of wheat on the prairies, and many farmers who have not made fortunes have provided ample comfort and security for their families, the people of the West have always been aware of the uncertainties associated with the success of each year's wheat crop. The amount of rainfall plant diseases, early frosts insect pests and the trend of the market are all factors which each season determine the results of the farmers work and while much has been done in the way of controlling these hazards the wheat crop is still a certain source of income. However many parts of the prairies are exceptionally well suited to the growing of wheat that it has been planted in preference to all other crops and Western Canada has long been one of the world's foremost wheat-producing areas.

* * * * *

Many Awards For The West

In spite of this, agricultural experts and economists have frequently pointed out to Western farmers the need to undertake more mixed farming. The desirability of varying the use to which the land is put in order to make the best use of it, and to avoid impoverishing it, and also to ensure financial returns from sources other than wheat, should that crop fail were among the reasons that diversified farming was advocated. A large number of farmers have followed this advice. This was demonstrated at the Royal Winter Fair, held at Toronto in November, when Western exhibitors carried off many awards for cattle, dairy products and grains other than wheat. The Eastern provinces, where mixed farming has been a long-established practice, no longer won all the highest awards in that field.

* * * * *

Are No Longer Vital Matters

Exhibitors from Manitoba won ten first and twenty-seven second prizes in livestock, while Alberta farmers took eight first prizes and twenty-seven second prizes for butter. It was also shown that the Western provinces had expanded greatly in the production of rye, barley and oats. Ontario, for many years the leading province of any, produced 27,000 acres of that grain this year, while in Manitoba-Saskatchewan 850,000 acres were sown, Alberta had 510,000 acres and Manitoba 60,000 acres, producing a harvest of nearly 30,000,000 bushels. As a result of the increased mixed farming in the West, neither the success of the wheat crop nor the price of wheat are now considered to be such vital matters as they were in the past. The prairies will without doubt continue to produce a large part of the world's wheat supply, but it is interesting and encouraging to know that the prosperity of the farmers no longer depends on the success or failure of this one crop.

MANY FINE HEREFORD CATTLE CHANGED HANDS AT RED DEER SALE

DESIGNED to give impetus to breeding of fine livestock in Central Alberta, a sale sponsored by the Central Alberta Hereford Breeders' Club at Red Deer recently inaugurated what is intended to be an annual event. Managed by Wilf J. Reid, of Innisfail, the sale was a marked success, more than 50 fine animals selling for an average of $306.00 to buyers from all parts of Alberta.

Twenty-five Hereford breeders of Central Alberta contributed animals to the first sale, many of them fine selections of females capable of improving the breeders' stock of any Hereford herd. The top animals sold at good prices, a senior yearling heifer from E. C. and N. H. Stuart of Clive drawing the high bid of the day, $750.00 and selling to M. L. Herbert of Dalhousie. M. L. and R. R. Herbert continued to buy four of the top priced animals, taking one from Wilf. Edgar, Innisfail, and another from Longbred Brothers, Bowden, with senior heifers at $720.00 and a fourth, also from Edgar at $650.00. Alex Gardiner of Penticton, B.C., bought the third Edgar heifer at $580.00.

John Wilson of Innisfail judged the show preceding the sale and awarded the Champion Bull ribbon to Brilliant Beau a Domino bred two-year-old from Parsonage and Holmes, Innisfail. The Champion Female, a March heifer, 1946 from Tatloch Brothers of Bentley was bought by John Drever of Red Deer at $360.00, while the Senior Champion, with a newborn bull calf from George Calder, Innisfail sold at $380.00 to G. Owen Hirnigan, Dalhousie, Alberta.

In spite of a light overnight snow and rain, the Red Deer Sale attracted a large audience, and was held in a fine sale ring building on the Red Deer Fair ground, capable of seating several hundred spectators and buyers.

Municipalities Against Daylight Saving Time

WINNIPEG — Little doubt as to the Manitoba rural dweller's sentiments on daylight saving time was left when the Union of Manitoba Municipalities voted on a resolution coming for a stand against the system "insofar as all of rural Manitoba is concerned."

"Why bother voting on it? We know what we think of it!" an elderly delegate exclaimed as the president, Ray Mitchell, of Grandview, put the question to the delegates in the civic auditorium.

He was right. The vote for the motion was unanimous, the only recorded nonassenting vote of the entire three-day session.

PRAIRIES LEAD IN ACREAGE PER FARM

OTTAWA—How big is the average Canadian farm?

The size varies across the country, the agriculture department says.

In the Maritimes, they average about 114 acres. In Quebec it is 117, in Ontario 126, on the prairies 436, in British Columbia 253.

NEW METHOD

REGINA — Aerial photography was used to plot the course of a new power line between Melville and Yorkton, the Saskatchewan resources department reported.

The elephant's organ of scent is in the root of his mouth.

Manitoba's Woman Reeve Didn't Seek Office Or Votes

WINNIPEG - A woman who didn't campaign any office and who never asked for a vote is the only woman serving as reeve in Manitoba.

Mrs. M. E. Allen has been reeve of Erickdale since January. She thinks women aren't active enough in municipal and political life. Feminine reeves should not be the novelty they are in Canada—there are only six in the Dominion.

Mrs. Allen is attending the annual convention of the Union of Manitoba Municipalities in Winnipeg. She said in an interview her four councillors —all men—don't resent serving with her.

"Actually, the councillors and the people of Erickdale don't consider a woman reeve something out of the ordinary. They take it as a matter of course, but outsiders remain in turn."

Mrs. Allen is secretary of the local poultry pool, president of the Women's Association of Erickdale Canadian Legion and a member of the Agricultural Society's board.

She's been a widow since 1933 and has four children, three sons and a daughter. Her family approves of having a mother who is a reeve but they became accustomed to her participation in civic affairs some many years, she said.

Lions no longer exist in South Africa.

FROZEN FLAX MAY CAUSE DEATH OF CATTLE

SASKATOON — Frozen flax fed to cattle may bring about their death, authorities at the University of Saskatchewan said recently. They investigated several unusual deaths in cattle and found they died after eating frozen flax. Frost apparently brought potential cyanide in flax to the point where it becomes dangerous as animal feed.

DUTCH FARMERS TO COME TO CANADA

CALGARY — About 3,000 Dutch families will come to Canada as immigrants in 1949, J. D. McIlraith, inspector of immigration at Calgary, announced. He said all the immigrants will be experienced in agriculture and that Alberta farmers may have as many of them as they wish for a period of one year.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"How did your wife get on with her slimming diet?"

"Fine—she disappeared completely last week."

"I want some invisible hair nets for my wife," said a customer.

"Very you are sir. That will be 25 cents."

"Are you sure they are invisible?"

"Invisible!" exclaimed the salesman. Why, I've been selling them all morning and we've been out of stock for two weeks!"

Friend: "Do you fined Miss Snorelly $5 for speeding. Is she appealing?"

Magistrate: "Oh, very. But we couldn't let that affect our decision you know."

"What are you waiting for?" whispered the wedding guest.

Bride's father's a physician replied the target. He forgot to bring her.

Just returned from Egypt, she was showing her souvenirs. "I bought that wreath from an Arab boy, who assured me he had stolen it himself during excavations in the temple," she said. "I'm sure it must be genuine, because the boy had such an honest little face."

The parson met little Bobby in the village. "I'm so pleased that you like going to Sunday School, Bobby," he said. "What do you expect to learn today?" Bobby answered brightly: "The date of the parish, sir!"

Two men were discussing a mutual acquaintance.

"Nice fellow," said one, "but have you noticed how he always lets his friends pick up the dinner bill?"

"Yes," replied the other. "He has a terrible impediment in his reach."

That's Mrs. Wopperton. I've heard that she's had her face lifted!

"Has she? Well the lift must have been out of order!

"Listen," muttered the seventeen-old and sprinted along the barrel of his broken air-gun as four younger boys crowded on their tummies on the pavement.

A passer-by noticed that another boy stood leaning against the wall behind the "hunter", a toy sword in his grimy hand.

"Aren't you playing?" he asked.

"Sure," the boy replied. "I shin 'em!"

THE NEW CONTRACT

Canada will soon be making a new contract with Britain for the last year of the Wheat Agreement. Farmers have already suffered over a dollar a bushel less for the past two years. Farmers should insist, therefore, that the Government obtain a price for the fourth year considerably higher than the present price of class 2 wheat, which today is $2.63 a bushel

THE COMMON ENEMY

Two Opposing Factions Will Unite To Oppose A Common Foe

Anger inside but blue eyes snap at Cordell and the unruly lock of hair he has which is persisted to hang down in front of her eyes when Fate as new, Price $1150 or best offer Apply Maxine Bitter, Sedgewick 47-p

The object of her anger stood at the small desk at the hallway of their small living room ... a bill in his hand and gave a determined look to her face. This time she wouldn't get away with it. He had to get his foot down sometime ... and this was it!

Twenty dollars!" he roared, jiggling the bill so that it fluttered in his hand. "If it was made of silver and studded with gold it would get still less than it runs our budget for groceries. He gripped for a word ... "It's outrageous!"

Outrageous is it! Martha snapped. "It's my money and I'll spend it as I like and that's all I have to say to you this morning. I'm leaving for work. I've heard all I want to hear about that hat."

She jammed on the hat and flew out of the door, not forgetting to slam it in his face.

A purple-faced Jack Cordham was left with the bill for the hat. He stared at it in fascination, his anger simmering at a white heat.

And quite right too," said a voice from the doorway. "If I was Mr. ... I'd go home to mother!

The owner of the voice dressed in Jack's black and white checked trousers and vivid brushed his discarded ... and disappeared into the parlour. She was small, slight, ... with auburn hair ... eyes ... which had a tendency to slip off the bridge of her nose, and she carried a paper-covered book under her arm.

Her non-in-law gradually recovered if she resolved the incongruity of ... from his mouth. "Mother!"

"Mother!" Martha's grandchild ... spoke her amazement. "What are you suggesting? I wouldn't think of such a thing!"

"You've a perfect right to spend your money," Mrs. Adams retorted. "Don't let him tell you what to do about it yourself!

Dick reciprocated for once kept silent.

"I'm only trying to help. Mrs. Adams said self-righteously. "I don't want my daughter tied to a stingy man."

"Mother!" Martha snapped. "Don't talk that way about Dick. He's not stingy."

Unconsciously the two young people had drawn closer together to oppose this unexpected onslaught on their happiness.

"I'm sorry," Martha said to her husband, "about the whole thing. You were right." Dick put a protective arm around her while his turned worried eyes on her mother.

"I don't understand what's come over you, Mother," she said. "It almost looks as though you wanted to break up my marriage. I don't see how you can say the things you've said."

With the two of them together the fierce protective expression left Mrs. Adams' face and was replaced by the humorous twinkle they all knew so well.

"The results haven't been so bad," she pointed out.

Martha and up suddenly, her tears forgotten, and stared at her mother, a look of comprehension slowly dissolving her features like lookout from her mother to Dick and back.

"You did it on purpose" she gasped. "You knew we would make up. How ... why?"

Mrs. Adams corked gently and smiled her satisfaction. "Of course," she admitted calmly. "The results of my first lesson. If it worked for Caesar it would work for me" I'm well satisfied with the course now... thing useful almost on the last page.

I'll read it to you.

She read aloud a frown at her forehead as she formed the words. "In the face of danger it has often been found that two opposing factions will unite to oppose a common enemy."

"Caesar believed that stupidity she informed them. "It says so here. He conquered the Gauls, you know."

He said the new plan was nearing completion, and it would go a long way towards making it difficult for unauthorized persons to obtain licences.

"The plan is now under consideration but I am not at liberty to disclose details at this time." Mr. Basher said.

A representative of the attorney general's department said that some of the trouble lay in the fact that the licensing department was a revenue and not an enforcement department. It was felt that a change might be due in this respect.

DESTINATION OF GAME

Eskimos Move Farther North

THE PAS, Man.—The declination of game animals in certain parts of Canada is expected to result in the migration of Eskimos from the mainland and lower Arctic islands into uninhabited islands of the upper Arctic or Polar regions

A W F Banfield chief mammalogist of the Dominion Wildlife Service at Ottawa said Eskimos in the eastern Arctic, particularly in the Ungava regions had been hard pressed by the loss of caribou herds on which they lived before white hunters arrived.

Mr Banfield said he had noticed the influence of Eskimos while preparing to make a count of caribou. Recently he saw an estimated 100-000 animals coming the railway on a 10 mile front near Churchill.

He offered the opinion the decline in caribou herds is due not so much to the intrusion of whalers or hide-hogs by natives as to the use of repeating rifles by the natives.

There is a movement of Eskimos from Canada's mainland from the west shore of Hudson Island. Mr Banfield said but there are few left in the eastern Arctic already so populated by Eskimos

Fabulist Peninsula to Baffin Island people of northern Manitoba that the abundance of caribou which they are on the biennial migrations is not general in Canada and that belief in the inexhaustibility of the herds had led to their destruction in the eastern Arctic and Alaska regions

Hardisty Happenings

"The Old Gray Mare Ain't Wh.t She Used To Be" — It isn't so. The dairy heroes proved otherwise last Sunday morning when they decided to walk the 10 miles to Killam and get a mad gallop for home. No serious damage was done. The cart stayed upright as around all those corners, up and down hill, and only smashed 2½ bottles. Forget to ask you Jimmy. How did you get home?

Doris Lloyd of Brownvale is visiting at the Barney Matthews home.

Hardisty was saddened this week by the passing of an old timer, Mr. John Rohowski, aged 70. He died Tuesday, Dec. 14th in a city hospital after a lengthy illness. Mr. Rohowski was born in Switzerland, homesteaded at Hardisty in 1906 and has lived here ever since. He leaves to mourn his loss, one son, John of Los Angeles, one daughter, Rose of Vancouver, and two grandchildren.

Mrs. F. Draper is visiting in Edmonton and plans to spend the Xmas season there.

Jimmy Baker and Ted Archibald have been transferred from Provo to Hanna and both families will be moving there shortly.

Red Mattoon shipped a rich grain sample from Killam last Saturday but did not have time to get hard, as we hear he broke his broom.

Edmonton visitors this week included George and Olive Banks and Lawrence Erbland.

The Busy Bees met this week at the home of Eileen Wells. Prizes in cards went to Helen Morrison and Doris Johnson, after which a hearty lunch was served by the hostess.

The Girls Sewing Club, under the leadership of Doris Robinson, met at the home of Yvonne Morrison on Thursday, Dec. 16th. After much discussion the girls selected the name "Hardisty Teeners" for their Club. Work is really progressing as they look toward Achievement Day sometime in June, when the Home Economist from Camrose will come down to judge their work. The girl with the highest points is rewarded with a week's training at the Olds Agricultural School.

Yes, a lot of us are on the outside looking in these days. The hemorrhoid is still going strong, but has reached the elimination stage. Watch this paper next week for final results.

Belated Derby — Watch for more details of the Belated Derby to be held in Hardisty in the near future. All Belateds must be built and shoved by the contestant. Come on, all you young fellows and get busy building those babs right now. Good prizes and good thrillies too.

May Christmas open to you and your family this year new vistas of joy, happiness and contentment.

Get Break On High Cost Of Living

A model school dormitory for out-side students provides room and board for only $25 monthly.

British Columbia school trustees in annual convention recently were given details of the dormitory the only one of its kind in the province.

Last year 28 pupils from all parts of northern British Columbia stayed in the dormitory, and this year there will be 50.

Trustee G. E. Styles of Prince George, said an 8-shaped army officers' mess building had been converted into the dormitory. Original cost of the building was $30 000. Moving and remodelling cost of $17,000.

Actual cost of housing a student is $53 a month, the school board pays $4 a pupil and an additional $4 is paid by the department of education.

Mr. Greig was in the city on his first official Demon on inspection tour of D.V.A. establishments since taking his present position.

Many Homes For Princess' Royal Son

LONDON — Princess Elizabeth's son can call two palaces, three castles and three mansions his "home". He will spend some time in each every year. The two palaces — Buckingham Palace in London and Holyrood in Edinburgh — are the national state residences of his grandfather, the King.

Windsor Castle is another palace of state residence while Balmoral Castle, Deeside Scotland is the King's private property.

The third castle Glamis is the highland seat of the family of his grandmother, the queen.

The mansions surrounded Norfolk like Barnard is the King's private house.

The other two mansions are in honour of the child's parents. The first is Clarence House, 50 James the official London residence which will be ready complete with a new 6th floor at the beginning of 1949. The other is Windlesham Moor their beautiful week-end home with a 30-acre estate in Surrey 25 miles from London.

All but the latter house whose main attraction is a nine-hole golf course, have a story.

From childhood, the young prince will hear legends surrounding Holyrood House where Mary, Queen of Scots, lived for the greater part of her reign.

He will play hide-and-seek with the "ghosts" in Glamis Castle, like his grandmother and mother before him.

His birthplace, Buckingham Palace, has been the focal point of the United Kingdom in times of rejoicing for more than a century. Describing as the ugliest palace in Europe, it has never been very popular with the Royal family.

Second home to which the new Prince will be introduced as the 11-000-acre Sandringham estate where Princess Elizabeth will take him to spend a traditional Christmas with the rest of the Royal family.

His first Easter will probably be spent at Windsor Castle where the court also goes in residence for the Ascot races in the summer. There he will play in the famous corridor used by Royal princes and princesses for a hundred years.

Sometime during next summer and fall he will visit his three homes in Scotland.

West's Prosperity Barometer Of Canada's Economic Position

WINNIPEG — Increased revenue channeled through income tax collection offices in Western Canada indicate that prosperous conditions exist and that Western farmers and producers were receiving high prices, Revenue Minister Hon. J. J. McCann said.

Revenue collections in the next always were a good barometer of Canada's economic position, he said. Today the barometer pointed to prosperity.

Dr. McCann, accompanied by two of his deputies, David Sim and H. W. Hindley, is on an inspection of the Revenue Department's western offices.

REHABILITATION SITUATION OF VETERANS GOOD

EDMONTON — General situation of Canada war veterans and their rehabilitation to civilian life is good, progress has been better than foreseeable with re-establishment of the 51 practically completed, Hon. M. F. Gregg, V.C., Federal Minister of Veterans Affairs, said in Edmonton.

Mr. Gregg was in the city on his first official Demon on inspection tour of D.V.A. establishments since taking his present position.

The canada, with its 17-year life-span, is the longest-lived insect.

Ninety Boys And Girls Win Rewards For Junior Club Work

A VISIT to Niagara Falls, premium seats at the Royal Winter Fair's Horse Show, a tour of the Houses of Parliament, banquets and professional magicians, trips through farm machinery and meat packing plants—these were the rewards for application to junior club work won by 53 boys and 37 girls in mid-November.

Those scenes managed for the prairie young people the result of their year's co-operative efforts. There, under the guidance of agricultural representatives, assistants, and district farmer leaders, the boys and girls became acquainted at first hand with phases of agriculture that they'd only assisted at, perhaps, for a time at home.

Summarized in annual regional conferences, provincial competitions and provincial championships, the activities of the 4-H clubs, the agricultural societies' and Women's Institutes' junior sections, and the agricultural societies' junior sections, and the agricultural societies' junior sections, and the agricultural societies

LANGRID — WINDOVER

A pretty wedding took place in the Anglican Church in Killam on Dec. 7th, when Elizabeth May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Windover of Killam became the bride of Writer Gilbert Thomas Langrid, R. C. N. V. R., son of Mrs. Ella Langrid and the late P. Langrid of Lougheed. Rev. W. Brooks officiated at the ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride wore a white satin gown styled with sweet-heart neckline, peplum and long sleeves tapered to a point at the wrists. Her embroidered veil fell from a lily of the valley coronet and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and white carnations. Her only jewellry was a heart-shaped pendant.

The bridesmaid, Miss Arlene Parker, was dressed in rose taffeta and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and yellow asters. Mr. Ted Butcher attended the groom. Music for the wedding was played by Mrs. Brooks and during the signing of the register, Stewart Lismer sang "Because". The ushers were Allen McCoy and Wesley Cardwell.

A lovely buffet luncheon was served at the reception held at the home of the bride. Toasts to the bride and groom were proposed by Rev. W. Brooks and the Best Man. Replies were made by the groom and by the bride's father. For going away, the bride chose a brown suit. The happy couple spent a short honeymoon a Edmonton.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. R—

This is 1949, and is the time of the year when most of us are looking back and analyzing what the past year has meant to us. In doing so, it is mostly a useless effort, if we fail to note the mistakes we have made and guard against making the same ones all over again. In trying to look forward and predict what is in store for us this year, we can only guess, and in this respect your guess is as just as good as mine, perhaps better. There are one or two items of which I feel sure however, and they are that 1949 will not bring the depression which so many have already stated is at hand. This year will see the continuance of present prosperity. Again, 1949 will not, in my opinion see the western powers engaged in active combat with the Soviet Union. Just how right I am in the above, 1950 will tell me, but until then, I can hope for the best.

We CAN DO IT... because we're Free

Things go wrong when freedom's flouted;
that's what ails the world today...
Here, in Canada, freedom has a braver chance...

Because we're free, each of us has his place as shaping human destiny...

Because we're free we can speak our minds without fear... we can worship as we choose ...
we can change our jobs for better ones...
or earn in business on our own ...

Because we're free to elect one party or another, our governments must stand by policies
the majority of us support ...

Because we're free to choose one product or another, business keeps improving its wares to serve us better, thereby raising our already high standard of living.

We're free because our economic system is free
Without economic freedom, all other freedoms die...
civil rights lose their meaning ... the standard of living is lowered... the choices becomes the purpose of the State.

So long as we nurture and defend our economic freedom, we can safeguard all our freedoms ... we can bend all every around upon our liberties and our individual dignity.

The mature strength of this truth will help us toward clear thinking and courageous living in '49.

There's a tough job ahead this year, but we can do it...

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

Food For Britain

MANY THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE in Canada, other parts of the Commonwealth, and the United States have for the past eight years been sending parcels of food to Great Britain in an effort to relieve the shortages which have been acute there during that time. Many of the parcels have been sent directly to relatives or friends of the donors, but there have also been numerous shipments of food in bulk quantities, sent by governmental and various interested groups for distribution in institutions and other places where there is need of it. Recently the British Ministry of Information published an article dealing with this subject and giving a number of interesting facts and figures concerning these gifts of food which, in the words of the British writer "have been sent in an ever-increasing flow by donors in all parts of the Commonwealth and the United States."

Great Number From Canada

Since 1940 over fifty million gift parcels of food have been received in Britain. The greatest number sent from any one country has come from Canada. Canadians having sent a total of over eleven million. The next greatest number came from the people of the United States, who have sent over and over half million parcels since 1940. These, together with gifts from other parts of the British Commonwealth have swelled the total number of packages received until the end of August 1944, to fifty-one and a half million. In 1940, one and a half million individual food parcels reached Britain, while last year, they numbered fourteen and a quarter million. In addition to parcels sent by individual donors the Dominion, Provincial and the United States have sent more than 106 million pounds of gift food in bulk during the past two years. All food received in this way is distributed to hospitals and similar institutions and care is taken to see that it reaches the needy the sick and the aged.

Anxious To Share Food

Those who send food parcels to Britain or participate in the sending of bulk gifts, do so because they are aware of the shortages which exist there and are anxious to share the generous food supplies which are obtainable here with the British people. Few of these donors would wish to be thanked for what they do but it is interesting to learn that a thank you exhibition was opened in London by Mr John Strachey, the Minister of Food. This exhibition included a series of photographs showing how gifts of bulk food are collected and packed and the manner in which they are distributed in Britain among the aged and the needy. They also showed "something of the deep gratitude with which they receive the welcome parcels from overseas." While it is to be hoped that the food situation in Britain will greatly improve before long, it is also to be hoped that the splendid generosity shown by Canada and other countries during the past eight years will continue as long as there is need for it.

The Prairies Come Back In More Ways Than One

The following is an article written by Austin P. Cross, appearing in his "Cross Town" column in the Ottawa Evening Citizen, and is made up especially as he describes a trip to our fair Western provinces

I CAME back from a 3,500 mile trip to Saskatchewan with an faith in Canada renewed. The more I travel in Canada, the more I am convinced of the indestructible optimism there is in this country. The word should be the first phrase to cry forever, since by comparison, they have so little, the east so much. But to hear them tell it, that's not the way they feel They are, if anything, more than a little sorry for us.

The tendency in this part of the world often is to look toward the States, we keep up with them, they say, note how by comparison small our resources are, and forget that on an inferiority complex. Then it goes further, and we sometimes get blue about the future. There is none of that in the west.

As you travel across Canada, at least as far as Saskatchewan, you get the impression that many live and die without so much as seeing the future. Though it exists there in its own prairie frontiers, many never give it a thought. The people, the route, and the contiguous cities of Regina, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, small potatoes alongside Winnipeg, Regina and Moose Jaw, to say nothing of Toronto. Further west, of course, Battle and its faded glitter; in the watch for Calgary, while Billings and Great Falls combined can be mentioned in the same breath with Edmonton Nor is there anything in the Swan River Valley, that comes within a donkey's bray of the east, or even Saskatoon.

There is a fine spirit in the west. Sometimes it concentrates in a stiff anti-eastern line every so often which is all to the good I took to that chuckwagon operation by Calgary to Toronto to show where west-ern spirit will take you. The pres-ent fellow throws his cap over the dam and doesn't give one either.

How ever, that spirit is finer and deeper than cowboy antics during a football final.

There is a real optimism out there about the future and to them it is unthinkable that there should be any other attitude. It used to be a country of next year's crops, to the effete easterner. I should explain that, when the crop was growing a crop, by only one whole year's work go in one dry afternoon, or so it seemed. Instead of being despoiled pulling up stakes, he would bring his shoulders philosophically to say, "Never mind, we'll get a good crop next year."

The west has done well recently, and then has been the time to use the superlative adjective as the true adjective. In Manitoba, the farmers were contented as electrical devices take the place of back-breaking work. In fact Premier Campbell gives credit to rural electrification for keeping the boys and girls on the farms.

In Saskatchewan, the business is going, with power farming and urban dwelling. I saw pictures in the local copy of the Saskatchewan News to prove my point. And I saw them in fine houses outside little Sturgis as good as any city man might have, and certainly fit for Island Park Drive anytime. I remember little Sturgis as a village host on the bush of southern Saskatchewan. Today, thanks to gasoline, the farmer does not need to live one mile, may be two, from his nearest neighbor. He builds himself a fine home in town, with indoor plumbing and other luxuries. Anyone he does drive 20 miles to his farm. Why that can be done in half an hour, and in the old days with horses, it took a half an hour to take his sox or right horse to the back end of the bottle stand.

In Alberta, of course, they're out of this world, and the answer is stream as a Dead End Prevaricator. I must confess there has been the most it takes

Western Farmers Providing A Safeguard Against Any Recession

WINNIPEG — The western farmer, producer of most of Canada's exportable food surplus, is keeping a flow of money into the Canadian economy and providing about the surest safeguard against any bad recession.

As a part of this he is doing an right thing. Across the prairies are huge stores of wheat, bought by individual farmers running to $100 00 and more as of others earning around in their work clothes dressed and greasy shoppers in food stores which they haven't bothered to wash. Many are holding one or two years' wheat crop in storage, regarding them as no much money in the bank.

Much of this money is being saved because there is only a limited supply of luxury goods such as cars and farm machinery on which he spend it and it is the surplus which will stand in good stead in a expansive days.

While much is being saved much also is going into circulation for farm repairs and modernization, so particular at this level. In many places the farm kitchen is turning from the old-fashioned range to a chrome plated kitchen with an up-to-date electrical appliances and modern fuels.

Across the provinces departments of agriculture and other bodies as well as farmers themselves, are giving thought to keeping farming on a profitable level.

Alberta officials see a good period ahead as an average or large crop is small for resurrection possible. The prairies have bounced back like a rubber ball and they are a wonderful thing to see.

But don't imagine the west is purely mercenary farms, in spite of soundings. They have the spend and you have no machinery yet released by scientists to measure that. I returned like a man revitalized by a new faith. Maybe I was a run-down battery that needed boosting anyway. But one trip to the west, and you feel that your eyes have seen the glory of a far finer tomorrow, and that Laurier will be right after all, and that this the 20th century will be Canada's without a doubt

I, Yes, this Canada of ours has what crops, feed crops for livestock which do not deplete the land like wheat. Saskatchewan is somewhat concerned over a growth in wheat acreage, but has underway an intensive study designed to bring about the use of land for the crop for which it is best suited. Manitoba sees itself in a more stable condition agriculturally than Saskatchewan or Alberta, because of smaller farmers and more diversified crops

Mechanization and larger farms in some instances, and more intensive use of the soil in others, are expected to lead to more efficient and larger production, with emphasis on quality and grading, and this raises the question:

"If we take more food can we sell it?"

Generally the reply is believed to be yes for several reasons

1 Increased population both in Canada and the United States, particularly in the United States.

2 Increased industrialization in both countries which leads not only to greater demands for the higher-powered type of crop.

3 Belief that the United States is close to the bank, under present circumstances, of her agricultural production and that she will have to turn more and more to Canada for food, part of she is doing for many years.

A decisive march of the world is hungry and it is incpedent politically, economically, humane reasons, to allow it to remain so.

HERE'S the studio, Carol. And I've got the passes ready." Tom grinned like a kid at a circus and scrambled from the sedan, but Carol sedately until he called back, "Come on. We're late now."

Then he remembered and flushed. "Darn, I always forget." And he hurried around to open her door.

He swept of you, my dear, I'd've gratefully took her arm, but she grasped her elbow and rushed for the gate, waving the passes under the guard's nose.

It was all very intimidating. He'd never quite got over a five-year course during for which he'd done a insurance letter, and he could have acted more sophisticated. She looked at him a little wistfully. He was tall, broad-shouldered, with wavy black hair and warm brown eyes that sparkled when he smiled. He still he just wasn't the romantic type. A more practical, down-to-earth chap, responded more gallantly to her curve for attention. Tom always showed type of crop.

It Belief that the United States is close to the bank, under present circumstances, of her agricultural production and that she will have to turn more and more to Canada for food, part of she is doing for many years.

Economic Regimentation Threat To All Canadians -- B of M Head

FLEXIBLE INTEREST, MORE EQUITY CAPITAL ADVOCATED BY B. C. GARDNER AS STABILIZING FORCES

General Manager, Gordon B. Ball, Reports Record Deposits — Loans Levelling Off

Montreal, Dec 6 — B C. Gardner, president of the Bank of Montreal, told shareholders at the 131st annual meeting that continuance socialism was citicking the most essential foundations of the nation No Canadian, he stressed, can hope "that it will be possible to establish in this country some form of collective economic dictatorship that will supply to others but leave him unscathed. The experience of other countries makes it perfectly clear that once regimentation is established, no interest or class in the community can escape its toils."

Such an attack, Mr. Gardner asserted was a challenge to all Canadians but it placed a particular responsibility on business men. It should be hard, he said, for any concern that has been built up by enterprise to stand idly by and not appreciate without regard to the public interest. Great corporations are to the first essential, and to achieve more effective public relations business has to tell its story more completely and in a more interesting manner than by the usual annual statement.

Weapons Against Inflation

Chief among weapons in the present wide disparity between the supply of money and the things that money will buy, Mr Gardner stated, was increased taxation. Taxes must be dependent ultimately upon more rapid turnover of money. Many of the large items in capital expenditure on new plant and equipment had been postponed during the past two years, an encouraging development, but the time for that expansion had not been matched by a proportionate increase in saving The result was compelling demand for capital and consumer goods and a strong impetus to the upward spiral of prices and wages.

After expressing his approval of the Government's policy of expansion at a substantial fiscal surplus, Mr Gardner questioned whether sufficient attention was being paid to the control of expenditure. Government bodies might well be expected to give a lead in the elimination from the public budget of all but absolutely necessary outlays.

This point, the speaker continued, was also applicable to the many existing levels of taxation had a direct influence on the further extension of the public, particularly in the position of the community which might be regarded as a substantial source of revenue during the present period.

The president referred to the possibility of using a flexible rate of interest as a means of controlling the credit base and rate of capital outlay. The policy of easy money had been followed for a period of depression and unemployment and he felt that there would be a definite advantage in introducing a further element of flexibility into the interest structure.

Further he said, it was highly desirable that an increased proportion of corporate financing should be done in equity form than through the issue of additional debt.

We are proud to say the Village of Lougheed received many praises for the fact that it was very artistically decorated with its colored lights and Christmas trees. It was not only the Lougheed town as the highway 13, Edmonton to Calgary highway that could come up to us, no doubt we were all very proud of the way our appearance and lights Village, and thanks to all those who helped to make it so.

Hardisty Happenings

Red and Mrs. Mattoon took in Edmonton's bright lights over the festive week end, where they spent Xmas with their children.

The Midnight Frolic was well attended and everyone had a wonderful time. The music was good, the crowd was jolly and the noisemakers were out of this world. If you missed it, remember there is another one next year.

Speaking of frolics, we struggled out of bed the next morning to go into the opening games of the local Knockout Bonspiel.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lohins were Xmas visitors at E. Matthews home.

The Pal Club had themselves a big day Dec. 27th when they all piled in to a hayrack drawn by Red's tractor and bit for the hills. About 24 members went out and all reported good skiing and a wonderful time. That's Red for the use of your tractor and rack, making this outing possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Moffet of Vegreville, formerly with the Geographical Survey in Hardisty were Christmas visitors at the H. Perkins home.

The lobby of the Cecil Hotel has been re-covered and looks very smart. The tin walls have been replaced by a marble effect in plaster and pressboard in green and white, and the management must be commended on the smart addition of the two read-ings of the four western provinces which are contained in two wooden frames. These should prove very helpful to a travelling public.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Bricker and family motored in Skeltin to spend Xmas at the home of Mrs. Bricka parents, the P. Robertsons.

Mr and Mrs Bassett were in town receiving friendships recently

Mrs. Herman Roebuck (nee Herbert Bricker) remains in Mirik of triplets to her cow, two boys and a girl Construction Hours.

Miss Jean Monson of Swift Current spent the holiday in Hardisty with her father Mr. S. Monson.

Mr. Lawrence williams, District Agriculturist from Sedgewick was in town Thursday, and he and Pete Gerrard were busy tagging about half the Hardisty Club's calves, and by the way hope to complete next week.

Mr. and Mrs J. Brown visited at Lanigan, Sask over the holidays

There is such a thing as getting "returned soul" as well as snowed in Eddie and Kitty Matthews motored to Irma for New Years and the blizzard we had prevented their return.

Mr Joe Fry, erstwhile of Regina but now attending the Seminary in Edmonton, visited Fr. Nearing here over the holidays.

Mike and Mac McMinn have also returned to their home.

Messrs Donald and Brian Crump and James Grant left Monday night or Prince Rupert, B.C.

Mr and Mrs J. Hoit and their two children left for their home in Calgary after visiting her parents Mr and Mrs. Crawford here, Mrs Hoit Willie have been here for a while, Mr. Melver motored for Xmas.

Mrs Mills and Pawn of Sedgewick were Xmas visitors here

The Boxing Day Knockout Spiel ended with one of the best games of the season so far, between the rinks of Eddie Bellis and Jack Mattoon Both rinks played well and ended the regular end a tie. The extra end saw Matthews the victory skip Spiel on New Years Day was won by Crouch over Ed Harrison.

Mr Frank Manning of Milrem was a New Year guest at Gastmeads

Mr. Dick Baker and a ship...ate Jimmy Doyle were home over the holidays Also home were Florence McPherson and Florence Dewar.

Amongst those (and we do mean) amongst those) who got lost on New Years Day was Ed Hobson, who took the wrong turn home. Isn't he fortunate Ed we can tell you of a few who didn't get home at all Welcome home folks! We see the return of our school teachers who is mean that the youngsters are back at it again.

Born, to Mr and Mrs. Peter Carlson hoof on Thursday, Dec. 30th, a son, Clayton Peter. Congrats

Pat and Mrs. G. W. Graves visited at the F. C Saville home recently

Among the throng of folks here to the old home town for Xmas were Annie Mamro, Jean and Jim Bain, George Chopey Elieen Crouch, Bob Lord, Frank Billie, Charlie and Howard Matthews, Mr and Mrs. Bennie Hartley, Bob Robbins, Maxine Brown Inez Terry; Gerald Bronson Joan and Dorothy Perverseff, Calmon Moody, Helen and Gordon Elsagaier, Larry Clarke, Emil and Elsie Olsen

He just loaned a finished movie to the screen and made Maria Montez come home from Europe to do it over. But he also has a couple of lawsuits on his hands. ## Hardisty Happenings

Santa paid a second visit Tuesday night when the Busy Bees held their second Xmas party at the home of Vera Hendricks. Cards were played during the evening and prizes went to Vera and Louise Thorpe, after which an especially jolly accordion concert an especially nice lunch served by the hostess.

Phyllis Terry is now working in part time assistant at the P. O.

The girls of our local Telephone Office wish to thank Herb Bricker for the very timely Hardisty Phone Directories he had printed, which are proving very helpful to the girls and the townspeople. They wish to apologize too for the omission of three numbers, Saunty, Hardisty Leather Goods 76; Bert Hill 72 and Harry Saville 77, and hope you will add them to your list.

The Hardisty Rebecca Lodge held their first meeting of the new year Thursday night, at which D. D. P. Barbara Matthews installed the new officers for the year. The officers are Noble Grand, Mrs. Kathleen Mathews, Vice Grand, Mrs. Marie Keegan; Rec. Sec., Mrs. Orma Thorpe; Financial Sec., Mrs. Pauline Chopp; Treasurer, Mrs. J. Stuart.

Doug Harrison has been on the sick list and has not been in the store these past few days. We are glad to hear he is feeling better. Hurry up there Doug, the Bonspiel is on you know.

Mrs. Helen Morrison went to Edmonton Tuesday morning and there brought her mother, Mrs. Ida Robertson, home by ambulance. Thomas confined to bed, we are glad to report she is doing well and we hope it won't be too long before she may be up and about her room.

We were very proud of our boys when they came victoriously through the Regional competition of the Alberta High School Bonspiel held here on January 8th. Our local team, in Bert Terry (skip), Jimmy Fox (third), Ian Harrison (2nd) and Rodney Fraser (lead) and played their first game against Provost, skipped by Bobbie Bostak. They were two down coming home but Bert's last rock was a peach "fatty Bear" and gave Hardisty a 7 ender to win 10 to 9. The second game against Amisk, skipped by Oscar Johnson, ended 13-7 and Amisk is to be commended on the game they played, not having had ice on which to practice. From here Hardisty goes to Edmonton as come on folks, let's all out and get behind these boys. They are really bolding up their end.

Mr Evald Johnson was taken very seriously ill Friday night and was rushed to the Royal Alex hospital in Edmonton. He was operated upon last Saturday morning for rupture ulcer, and we are glad to report he is coming along nicely now

Increase In Immigration

THE FLOW OF IMMIGRATION which started in 1945 has increased steadily and since that time 264 000 new citizens have come to make their homes in Canada. These people have for the most part come from displaced persons camps in Europe or from the United Kingdom. Even the refugee shipping has been a determining factor in arranging the number of immigrants who have arrived each year. During the period immediately following the war there was a shortage of ships and many of those that were available were needed for bringing home service personnel and their dependents. Now that this aspect of shipping however, has gradually become normalized, more accommodation has been made available, the flow of immigrants has increased more and more.

About Half Are From Britain

From the latter part of 1945 until the end of November, March this year, 21 000 immigrants and displaced persons arrived in Canada. During the following month, December, 5 000 came into the country and in the succeeding months of January, February, March and April, 17 000 more have been admitted. Of all those shown here as coming from the United Kingdom, about one half were originally from Europe. Since the war the total number of such immigrants to this country has come to 43 000 and these people constitute the largest single group of immigrants to enter Canada during that time. In the year following the close of the war, 1946, 22 000 immigrants from the United Kingdom came to Canada and between March 1947, and November 1948, 18 000 arrived. Since that time, a further 2 000 have been accepted for immigration to this country.

No Decrease Is Indicated

The reason for the sudden falling off in the number of persons from the United Kingdom is attributed by officials of the Department of Immigration to the urgency of the need to settle displaced persons as quickly as possible. There are still many people in Britain who are anxious to come to Canada to live and there is now no indication that there will be any marked decrease in the number of immigrants from the United Kingdom for many years to come. There has always been a strong tendency for the people of Europe to look to this continent when they wish to seek a new home. At the present time the Canadian Government has a policy of admitting only those persons who are likely to make good citizens and who are not going to compete with Canadian workers for jobs. This is a policy that country is limited. For this reason there are a great many people in Europe and in the United Kingdom who are not being considered for immigration visas because it is felt that they would not be able to find employment in Canada. It is expected that for some years Canadians will continue to look to the United Kingdom and to Europe for the bulk of their immigrants. In spite of the fact that there are many persons in Europe who are anxious to come to this country, it is expected that immigration will be at a slower pace during the coming year. In opening her doors to large numbers of immigrants during the past few years, Canada has made a fine contribution towards solving a great human problem, but she is also acquiring many new citizens who will without doubt in their turn, contribute much to the building of this nation.

Ducks Unlimited Plan New Prairie Nesting Projects

WINNIPEG In 1940, Ducks Unlimited investigated well constructed 25 to 30 nesting projects in the prairie provinces and it is interesting to observe, with continuous restoration programme, according to Arthur M Bartlett, New York executive director.

Mr Bartlett spent six days in Winnipeg conferring with officials of Ducks Unlimited (Canada).

The proposed projects will be distributed across the prairie nesting grounds Mr Bartlett said.

For the 1949 program, Mr Bartlett expects a budget upwards of $200,000 to be approved at a meeting of trustees in March. During last years operations a total of 1,000 dams and ponds has spent $200 000 on Canada.

By spring 26 projects will be in operation as a result of Ducks Unlimited's 1948 programme Mr Bartlett stated. With these the number of projects in the province will total 200. The cost of these projects, averaging from $500 to 15,000 acres, range from $10 000 to $30,000.

Flights have full on all North American Private the Atlantic Migratory flyway from Alaska to southern coastal waters for the winter, Mr Bartlett added.

In 1939 Ducks Unlimited on Oak Hammock marsh was organized in Canada and a total of 10 years ago the first Mr Bartlett's visit to the marsh was made. The amazing agricultural development in the intervening years—cultivation and drainage of land—has almost doubled the duck waterfowl.

Ducks Unlimited undertakes to preserve waterfowl with marshes and ponds—which is second safety and protection of the Bartlett pointed out.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"I want to ask you something in confidence" began Jones as Smith and he lingered at the bar. Right! What is it?"

Well Rob-Smith stuffs to borrow dollars from me. Is he good for that amount?

"Yes with proper security."

"What do you suggest" asked Jones.

"A strong chain and padlock a pair of handcuffs and a watchdog."

Scott: "Daddy, what are bachelors?"

Father, "A bill collected, my son, is a man who considers himself pleasure."

Smith is a young lawyer, clever in many respects, but rather absent-minded. He had been sent in interview an important client, when the head of his firm recovered like this:

Have forgotten name of client Please save all over

The reply was a masterpiece of sarcasm. It ran: "Client's name Jenkins Your name Smith

Mrs. Timkin: "I suppose you've had lots of new dishes since your cook arrived?"

Mrs. Simkin. "Yes, almost a complete new dinner service."

An official with a very annoying manner was making his inspection of an aerodrome.

On this particular afternoon a parachute practice was being undertaken by a number of pilots, and the official asked question after question of one man whose job experience and originality while falling through the air.

"Supposing your parachute fails to open while you are coming down?" he asked finally, "What do you do then?"

The pilot said had more than enough by this time: "Take it back and change it," he replied.

Smith dropped his pencil on the floor, bent down to pick it up and struck his head on the edge of the desk. For some seconds he remained motionless, then he sat up, rubbed the injured part and looked around him. Suddenly his expression changed to one of horror and he leaped to his feet, shouting wildly:

"Mother, shall I have a little sister one day?" "Why?" "Well it feels rather a bore kissing the cat."

Lawyer (patronizingly, to client anxious for divorce "My dear young lady occasional tiffs are bound to occur in your married life. But think of the joy to be got out of it."

Client: "Exactly Get me out of it."

* * * * *

A certain musical executive, who used to enjoy delivering after-dinner speeches in rather too wide length, now expresses himself with the most commendable brevity.

Asked to explain his reformation, the man-by-man abasement-ly replied: "It was a remark I overheard. During a pause in one of my speeches, I overheard one man say to another, "What follows Bamborgrer?" And the other fellow replied, "Hedonday."

Practising With Barbara Ann Scott In Chill Grey Light of Early Morn

By JEAN LOVE GALLOWAY
Written Specially for Central Press Canadian

OTTAWA — Barbara Ann Scott, world figure skating champion, leaped into the glaring flood lights of New York's famous Roxy ice stage on Dec 5th Described as "Talent on Toe and Tinsel," Barbara Ann next to the UN as Canada's informal ambassador who has skated into the hearts of the world.

This is it Barbara Ann thought as she stepped on the ice alone. Here was the big moment she had been preparing for, the opportunity of a lifetime to show the world what a Canadian girl could do.

I stopped at the Minto Skating Rink here just before Barbara Ann went to the New York and found the Queen of the Blades hard at work.

There was no glamour about it there in the chill grey light of early morning the rink banked by spectators' dead lights. There was no symphony orchestra, no scintillating costumes—there was only the few great artists all have to perform before the audience is upset before the footlights in an exacting routine but calls for concentration rougher than that Barbara Ann was doing and turns over and over again until each double performance is attained Lectures of concentrated skill that only to those who have practised can assure you that no matter how skillful the performance its finale must be polished and free

When I walked in her practice Barbara Ann was wearing a canary yellow skating outfit with a light green pullover a beret of her head was a tight-fitting yellow knitted bonnet tied snugly under the chin. And she wore a pair of fleecy white gloves

Up to a small sound box at one end of the Minto rink a pianist fingered out snatches from Little Dutch Mill and The Donegal Jig Tune He wore a brown fedora hat pulled down well over his head and a great coat over a heavy sweater. Rink was no place to play piano

Barbara Ann pats to her first hour as there a coach Instead was a rare bit of sandwich up under the bun And there every two young skaters bonnie to taking bonnet at the other end of the rink Obviously the bobs piano was described as Ballin Land Bitty

Will you give me that ending again, please" Every few minutes Barbara Ann would stop and in the gallery. She seemed happy that nonesuch had come to watch her She bought me a cup of tea and we talked about New York

She explained that in New York she would have to skate on small ice instead of a large one as in the Minto Club or Maple Leaf Gardens This calls for alterations in a skater's technique It seems you feel cramped and cramped on a small area of ice after being accustomed to performing on a large rink

Melville Rogers is manager of the world champion light now Barbara Ann practised without music under his direction for the next hour. Rogers plunks a chair out on the ice He sits down in his big overcoat. He wears a homburg and leather mitts, and no glasses.

Sliding around on his chair, Rogers watches every movement of the famous skating queen. He punts sick from the slightest defect in form. Rogers pulls cigarettes as he coaches and is absolutely unconscious of anything but the action of the skater before him.

Practice Gets On

But long after the pianist had gone home and the coach had left Barbara Ann's practising continued. Her next session was with a dancing teacher who arrived to give her tips on injecting the grace of the ballet into skating When the ballet teacher has had enough, Barbara Ann practised alone trying to correlate the rhythm of music, the routine taught to her and the art of the ballet into her very soul

Finished about an hour before the dawn ever the big parade Miss convertible presented to her by the city of Ottawa. Bearing the significant

Farmers Are Warned Of Possible Lower Prices For Their Surpluses

OTTAWA. - Dean A M Shaw, chairman of the Dominion Agricultural Conference, and Canadian farmers must realize that the prosperity of the past few years is at an end that they must have to accept lower prices for their products.

At the second session of the three-day conference, Dean Shaw said he seemed to be agreed that agriculture was facing an unmodified future conditions

There was a feeling of insecurity and a vagueness about it- long ago

We have an agriculture country that has been highly organized and our farmers are in a sounder position than they have been in the history of many of us here

Canada was troubled since soon things that were happening in the United States. One problem was the fact European Recovery Program their own level.

Canada could not be used to buy farm products which were surplus in the United States. Canada could try exchange agreements but there was no guarantee that the Canadian and American governments

Dr Shaw said there may be a considerable increase in summer fallow in the West and the result may be increase in wheat acreage

He felt grave need by the government for flattened and rapeseed needed during the war years were too high and sugar beet production of rapeseed was super ab gather too that the war slowing was gone. Soybeans, too, would have to be considered.

Prairie Moisture 41 Per Cent. Of Normal

REGINA — Rainfall in the past autumn averaged only 41 per cent of normal for the three prairie provinces, according to an estimate made by the Searle Grain company and released recently

These fall rains after harvest and up to freeze-up constitute the only moisture received available for the coming crop that will be needed on stubble land.

But non-fallowed land, however, contains additional reserves These consist of the rains that fell during the past growing season and the fall before that The Searle estimate places the reserves at 35 per cent. of normal for the prairie area

Reserves by provinces are estimated as follows:

Stubble land- Alta 38 per cent; Saskatchewan 39 per cent, and Manitoba 54 per cent

Summerfallow- Alberta 82 per cent Saskatchewan 78 per cent, and Manitoba 104 per cent of normal.

You and Your Bank

How much you borrow, how much you save ... how much you put in, how much you take out ... that's your business. Your right to keep your private affairs private is a cherished principle of Canadian banking.

NEXT time you are in your bank, notice how many people keep their cheques face down . . . just like you . . . while they make out their deposit slips. Notice how they close their passbooks before handing them in—and get them back closed too.

Canadian bank service is recognized by everyone as confidential. Every employee, when he came into the service of your bank, took a solemn declaration of secrecy. Your relationship with your bank is the most vitally confidential business relationship you have.

Contrast this Canadian way with conditions in lands where freedom is denied—where every bank is a political tool, every banker a public official working for the State! State monopoly of banking, proposed by socialists here, would open your banking transactions to political inspection.

Dynamite Shifts Rocks--

WHILE drilling rocks for blasting in slow work, it is one of the surest methods of breaking up very hard rock, particularly of the ingge head' type and is certainly the method which requires the smallest amount of dynamite. Because this is a matter of general agricultural interest we are here giving detailed instructions for the proper use of explosives in blasting boulders.

There are three general methods of handling boulders, blockholing, mudcapping and underpinning. We shall deal with blockholing first.

Blockholing

The essentials of drilling a hole are the number and loading it with a sufficient small amount of explosive. The hole should be drilled about half way through the boulder and it may be much deeper, or smaller. It is also best to remove the dynamite cartridge from the paper shell and push it by means of a wooden stick. The dynamite is then pressed tightly around the wire and the hole is then filled up with clay tightly tamped in small quantities with a wooden stick. When the proper amount of dynamite has been put in, it is packed tightly with a round wooden stick which is flat and so tamp it firmly into the bottom of the hole.

The blasting cap is then pushed to the lower end of the fuse and pressed gently into the dynamite in the case of the caps which is provided with a wooden plug. The dynamite is then pressed tightly around the fuse

PTA MEETING STUFF

Reader Visitor's Schools Council Rep. Mr. A. W. B— will remember the recent ... y held at the Divisional ... Sedgewick, and will also recall a ... of what they saw there ... I for... lunch to please me and ... s the co-operation of members present and at the same time, found things, of which I was not too pleased.

• • • •

Firstly, I did not like the overcrowded conditions which I found. It is not healthy nor proper to cram too many children into a given area, which is not properly heated nor properly ventilated. We found the condition prevailing more especially in the primary rooms which are the former rural schools. Here I found the smaller children in inadequate housing, improperly heated and very poorly ventilated. While I realize that congestion is perhaps necessary due to prevailing circumstances, I hope it is only temporary. I understand the Divisional Board has plans to add on improving this obviously unsatisfactory condition.

In the main building I found that rooms of ample in case of fire are not adequate, and that steps are underway to remedy this situation, the plans have not yet been completed. There should be no ... done delay here.

• • • •

In also stressed that much could be done to beautify the grounds surrounding the schools and the Town A little landscaping, a few trees and shrubs planted, a few frames repaired and such a little painting done.

• • • •

The day really afforded the tax payer an opportunity to see where his tax money is going. On the whole I was quite well pleased.

• • • •

My readers in far off places are anxious to know what conditions are like around here. Well, as if we but put it to work.

Legion's Old Time Dance At Sedgewick on Fri. Jan. 21st.

LOCAL PLAY IN LEGION SPIEL FOR ALBERTA GETS STARTED

Curling rinks representing Sedgewick, Lougheed and Provost are on Sunday last at Sedgewick to play off for a district representative to meet other district winners and eventually to decide a provincial winner.

In a round-robin series, the team from Lougheed was declared winner, and will now meet the winner of the Daysland-Camrose series.

The weather man has a habit of doing just what he pleases. We had a week of warm weather during the Xmas season, and then New Year's Day was a terror, as was Boxing Day. At present we have above zero. The crop conditions will be just what they have belonged to southern.

Now just by way of observing what it means when I say the weather man does as he pleases, since the above paragraph was composed, we have had two weeks ago the mercury fell a pleasant 50 above; that evening a wind came up and on Friday it was down to a body 40 below zero, and Saturday the same mercury fell 30 below zero. Since then we have had a couple of balmy weather and in 24 hours away down below zero. To day (Saturday) it is clear and mild, the weather is very nice, but the forecast is for colder weather to-morrow, and also for we have it.

• • • •

All the above notwithstanding, it is my sincere hope that 1949 will be a year of gladness and contentment; one of sober contemplation by mankind everywhere; peace of a permanent kind; one more simple things of life; one of less demanding and of more giving, when mankind will give up terra wealth to money, but that wealth of kindness, generosity and goodwill which is abundant in all of and crop conditions are here. Well, as if we but put it to work.

Standards Of Nutrition

ACCORDING TO THE REPORTS given by authorities on the subject nutrition standards are today undeniably low in many parts of the world Europe it is reported that undernourishment is increasing among mil lions of children as the effects which have been made by the United Nations International Emergency Children's Fund and other such projects I pressure them as well as it is possible to at this time. Among the children examined in Austria Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Greece and Italy medical doctors have found what they report as "a picture of stunted growth anemia, undernourishment, defective hygiene and of diseases such as tuberculosis, transmissible and parasitic infection." As a result of this chronic malnutrition which affects not only the children but all age groups, workers are more tired and lead productive per person there is less per cent lower than in the more advanced countries.

* * * * *

Conditions in West Improved

From Western Europe comes a somewhat more encouraging report. There, it is said, nutrition standards have risen during the past six months due to good weather increased food production and increased supplies of farm machinery and fertilizers which have been provided under the Marshall Plan. With this help the food diet in many parts of Western Europe has reached 2650 calories as compared to 2,300 at the same time last year and 2,000 which was the standard in that part of the world before the war. It is reported that bread consumption rose by 18 per cent, while increased supplies have been shown in France and Belgium. While bread supplies have increased meat has become more scarce and the people of Western Europe will have about 25 per cent less meat for another year than they had before the war.

Problems Here Less Serious

While in Canada there have been no such problems as these nutritional standards among the people of this country are not as uniformly high as could be desired. Some shortages of food are admitted but the cause of faulty diets here the blame is said to rest largely on the part of many as to proper habits of nutrition. Recent surveys in this country have also led to a factor in lowering the quality and the amount of food consumed by many Canadian families. During the early part of the year it was calculated that 25 per cent of the families of wage earners and low salaried people had not purchased amounts of food. Wages have been more or less that prices have also advanced considerably so it is doubtful whether this situation has changed greatly. At the recent Dominion Provincial agricultural conference on Ottawa farmers were warned that the war demand for food is at an end and that they must face the prospect of having fewer buyers for surplus products. With adequate standards of nutrition in many parts of the world including our own country it would be a great benefit to users if a way could be found to overcome economic barriers and other causes of the accumulation of surplus farm products. In all that of products could find its way to those places where it is needed a million standards would rise and farmers would remain prosperous.

New Restriction Imposed On Poultry Imports

OTTAWA The government announced it has restricted imports of live poultry and hatching eggs in an attempt to keep Canada free of Newcastle disease a virus which is often fatal to poultry.

Live chicken turkeys pigeons geese ducks or other barnyard fowl and hatching eggs for raising other domestic poultry will be prohibited entry unless these imports is accompanied by a permit issued by the agriculture department. The prohibition which applies to all countries of the continent of origin of the fowl also applies to hatching eggs which may have been exposed to the respiratory infection.

Live poultry from the United States may be accompanied by a permit issued by either agency or endorsed by a veterinarian of the U.S. bureau of animal industry.

The agriculture department said similar restrictions will be required for the import of hatching eggs from all foreign countries. Official veterinarians of the exporting countries will be required to certify that the eggs come from flocks free of Newcastle disease.

NEW MARKET FOR SUNFLOWER SEED OIL

WINNIPEG Lifting of the ban on sale and manufacture of oleomargarine in Canada highlights a table published Manitoba product ranked second.

This year commercial products of sunflower seed were limited to Manitoba Sunflower seed oil is an ingredient which may be used in the manufacture of margarine. At present all fats and oils are under federal control with Canada reports on a quota.

This year commercial production of sunflower seed accounted to 22,000 000 pounds taken on 50,000 acres in southern Manitoba.

Farmers' Tax Paying Simplified

Farmers have their income tax troubles simplified by the forms announced

They file on the four-page T1 General same as used by business and professional men, instead of the old form page T1 Farmers

The hardly-more "net worth statement required from farmers last year has been modified, though simplified.

Farmers were asked to reveal information about their finances that no other person in Canada was asked for.

The hows were heard far and wide especially in Ottawa

Now if a farmer pays his income tax on a yearly cash basis, he does not file a "net worth" statement.

But, if he chooses the five-year accrual system, he still files the "net worth statement)

Only 5 per cent of farmers have been the normal system although farmers asked for it

Farmers have three systems for tax returns. The take their choice of an annual cash basis, a five-year accrual basis or a five-year average cash basis

Last year 200 000 Canadian farmers filed returns an increase of 20 per cent over the previous year

Are the over-all Canadian picture income Canadians filed returns last year than the year before and the amount of income tax declines increased by $20 000 000

Urges Greater Investment In Canada

MONTREAL —Finance Minister Abbott suggested to investment dealers that Canada's industrial and economic power steadily rolling forward — now presents two great challenges Those are

1 Revising for the stabilization of Canadian savings to serve greater industrial and economic development

2 Promotion and financing of Canadian enterprise to Canadians to eliminate the need of United States investment, now costing Canadian industry roughly $275,000,000 a year in interest and dividends.

Mr Abbott told the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada that Canada is on the threshold of its fast and most dynamic period in national development

Hanging his talk from Canada's colossal indebtedness to her post-war de velopment of budgetary surpluses Mr Abbott made the things known

1 Canada's exchange problems with the United States have taken a turn for the better In Sept 30 Canada had $454 000 000 in exchange reserves an increase of $247 000 000 over the six-month period April 1 Sept 30

2 The Dominion's budgetary surplus for the first eight months of the current fiscal year now has risen to $300 000 000 compared with $175 000 000 for a similar period last year

3 Monthly increases in budgetary surpluses are expected to continue until at March when the fiscal year ends but they will not total the $1 000 000 000 some people may have expected

Mr Abbott said that despite a record financial peak Canada ended the Second World War with a debt which was colossal for a country of 12 000 000 people

Height of Canada's indebtedness was reached Dec 31 1945 when the total gross stood funded debt amounted to two less than $16,887 000 000

Rickets Termed The Deformity Of Ignorance

About one Canadian child in nine bears the physical evidence and the psychological unhappiness of deformity due to rickets, Dr. L. H. Pritchard, in an article—"Rickets the Deformity of Ignorance"—in the Christmas issue of Health, Canada's National Health Magazine published by the Health League of Canada.

Dr. Pitt Chief of the Nutrition Division of the Department of National Health and Welfare also further states that 20 children die of rickets every year. He emphasizes that this trend never happen because rickets is a preventable disease. Rickets is only possible, in a body that lacks Vitamin D although it is associated with the calcium and phosphorus metabolism to apply too.

"It is a disease of children for it wreaks its havoc during the growing period bowing or distorting such parts as legs, backbones, chests, pelvis, head teeth and jaws. states Dr. Pitt. Many of these deformities cannot be cured. Children who have suffered from rickets could go through all their lives with defects that may make them lame, unsightly or prone to pernicious tuberculosis, digestive troubles and in women complications in childbirth.

The author states that Vitamin D is the only vitamin which could be obtained in adequate quantities from food, except under special circumstances. It occurs in fish liver oil, in butter to the required need.

Yet our authorities state that at least half of Canada's children receive Vitamin D as such. So they say. What little they get mainly is found in the egg, from the butter yolk, cream of butter and a little in reliable source in most cases.

Dr. Pitt states that also vitamin D is derived from such foods as a regular consumption of cod liver oil, from the sun rays, from irradiated foods, and from irradiated milk. Dr. Pitt reveals that the department of National Health has distributed to Canadians 1,227,000 lbs. of cod liver oil. Dr. Pitt says and has proved by means of tested children and dogs, that cod liver oil is not harmful to health.

New Simplified Income Tax Form

OTTAWA — The revenue department introduced simplified income tax forms which it said will be used by 2,000,000 of the 3,500,000 individual taxpayers who must file 1948 tax returns.

Minister Minister McLaren said the new forms are a pocket-size folder and will be known as Tax Tabulations.

The new forms also changes the basis of reporting taxes. Whereas up to now the size of income has governed the forms to be used, this year the source of income is the governing factor.

Thus all individuals whose earned income is derived solely from salaries, wages or bonuses and whose investment income does not exceed $1,000 a year may use the short form. Those in receipt of more than $1,000 per year will use the long form.

The short form is a condensation of the old full-length one. For those with the old income tax forms will be no page-by-page reading and the form is only four pages long. Instructions are printed on the back.

LOUGHEED FACTS

We hear Killam defeated the Daysland team in hockey last Thursday with a score of 8 to 5, with the help of Earl and Ken of course, the all-star players from Lougheed.

The dance Friday night was well attended and everyone reported a good time. Music was supplied by the Western 4. The Elks are sponsoring a Valentine dance in February for posters.

The weather took a quick change for the better last week when the temperatures went from 25 below to 30 above, so the Girl's Club took advantage of the mildness and went on a tobogganing party at the Skoberg farm last Thursday. Howard Pope furnished the mode of travel. After an hour of rides, the merry party enjoyed a delicious lunch at Skoberg's and a sing-song before going home.

Nearly everyone of us took forward to a quiet peaceful Sunday. It's wonderful to sit back and relax in an easy chair and listen to our favorite program or a church service Sunday morning. We get very engrossed in listening when some kind-hearted soul decides to use an electric fixture. This generally always happens between 11 and 12 a.m. when many of the older folks who cannot attend services are hearing a service on the radio. So please folks, if you have no electric fixtures soon you will appreciate your kindness if you will leave it until after or before 11 a.m. and twelve noon on Sundays.

Three rinks of curlers attended the Hardisty spiel last week. They were skipped by, L. Reed, H. Probst, O. Probst and A. Matheson. The latter rink won 3rd in the Challenge. Several rinks are at Killam's big open spiel this week.

A ladies rink skipped by Mrs. L. Reed, with Mrs. J. Birchill (3rd) Miss Zarowski (2nd) and Mrs. G. Hilditch (lead) motored to Hughenden last Saturday for the ladies spiel and won the grand challenge. Their first two games were against Provost rinks and the final one against the Hughenden rink which was our own spiel last winter. Congrats ladies. We're proud of you.

Sow Good Seed
and
Reap More Dollars
Many thousands of farmers have found that when they sow good seed they harvest better crops and so reap more dollars. The best seed obtainable in the world today is Canadian REGISTERED SEED, true-to-variety, with a pedigreed ancestry, of high germination, free from weeds and other impurities, well cleaned, graded, guaranteed and sealed in the sack by the Canadian Seed Growers' Association and the Dominion Plant Products Division. Registered Seed is at a lower price now than it has been for some years past. This season offers a good opportunity then for farmers to use more Registered seed so as to improve the quality and yield of their crops. By using some Registered Seed any farmer will certainly reap more dollars.

"BRIDESMAID"

By J. A. CARROLL

It Was Not A Case Of Love At First Sight, Nor Was It Being "A Sort Of A Crowd"

STANDING there with my eyes closed, listening to the deep solemn notes of the organ, I realized that the last time I had been in church had been a wedding too. My own. Now, when I opened my eyes I saw the bride coming down the aisle, a beautiful picture in white. Albert was waiting at the altar for her, smiling, his dark eyes adoring her.

I went back in my mind's eye to the events that had led up to the marriage. The first

Lougheed Facts

The Lougheed Legion held their regular meeting in the hall last Monday evening, with a good attendance. The regular business was attended to, after which the members enjoyed a social evening.

Birthday congrats this week go to our Postmaster, who passed another milestone last Saturday. He said he celebrated the occasion on Friday evening with a friendly game o cards with Ivie and wife, and of course the good eats prepared by F W (friend wife). I'm sure everyone joins me in wishing him the best of birthday greetings and many many more of these.

The Social Dance held in United Church last Wednesday, Jan 12th, attracted a large crowd and was a dazzling success from start to finish. Both young and old participated in the games, relay races and contests, while for favorite dance, "Finding the Tail on the Donkey," provided many laughs for all, and the champions were Norman Lee and Marion Lee. Mrs. O. Probst won a prize for guessing the number of beans in a jar. In the ring throws the winners were, Mavis Marlowe and Art Bleeh. The advertisement contest was won by Marie Jark and June Marlow. Mr. Hodman then gave a current events contest of 1947, and Eleanor Chorney and Mavis Marlowe were right on the beam in knowing the happenings of the world. The relay races proved to be loads of fun, especially the one where the men wound, and unwound everyone had a bugging good time. The evening was brought to a close with a delicious lunch which consisted of hot dogs, ice cream, cookies and doughnuts and other goodies of everyone went home tired but happy and all reported a very good time.

Visitors at the Orville Probst home during the week end were: Annie Lawrence of Hardisty and Mr. Percy Bailey of Carr.

Mrs. M E Bar returned home last week after a prolonged holiday in Edmonton. Enid they wanted her to stay another month longer, but she couldn't bear the thought of staying away from her easy little home nor her Lougheed folks any longer.

Dave Read and wife of Ocma were recent week end visitors at the Harry Pedersen home. Mrs. Pedersen returned to Edmonton with them and spent a few days in the city and at Evansberg Alberta.

Mrs. Whitehead and Bobby from Caldonia are spending a few weeks at Mrs. Whitehead's parent's home, the N Batchelors.

Mrs G. Mariow spent a couple of days in Edmonton last week.

Mr and Mrs Ray McCracken returned home from the Coast last Wednesday. We are pleased to report that Ray is resting fine.

A large number of friends gathered at the Henry Lien home last Sunday afternoon for a party and shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. O. Leaf. Two couples were given the shower Miss Zarowski, the winners being, Mrs O Langrud and Selma Birchill. Mrs Rowland then gave a very interesting reading entitled, "The Typhoon Girl" (in case you didn't understand, it was a telephone operator). Selma and Jeanette Birchill then sang, "Now Is The Hour". This was followed by a lively community sing-song in which old and popular songs were enjoyed by all. Lunch was later presented with a lovely assortment of gifts for which she graciously thanked everyone. A delicious lunch was served which brought an enjoyable afternoon to a close.

Mr and Mrs. Leaf left on last Monday Obert will resume his duties with the C.P.R. and his wife will remain at Killam until a later date. We wish them the best of luck.

Henry Potter was a business visitor to Camrose Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Matheson and family visited with Mrs. Matheson's parents last Saturday.

PERSONA STUFF

—By A. L.—

I was one of the 35 citizens Bottrell enough to be here to attend the Joint Boards of Trade meeting held at Hardisty last week, and while I am not intend to comment excessively on the meeting in this column, I would like to give you an opinion or two of my own on some of the various subjects discussed and let you in on some of the conversation passed around before and after the meeting.

Perhaps the subject uppermost in the minds of all of us today is the exporting of our natural gas to other provinces and even to the U. S., and while a large number of people had very definite private opinions on the subject, a public declaration could not be pried out of them for all the tea in China I have been asked on several occasions for my views on the matter and have never "polled any punches" in my replies. I am strictly against the exporting of our natural gas at least until such time as communities in Alberta desiring it, but have been properly served. While I know that charity is a most needed talent, I nevertheless am a firm believer in the time-worn adage that "charity begins at home". Of what use is it to give your last dollar to a needy friend and then apply for the old age pension to feed yourself? That must be far-fetched but I think it fits the situation.

* * * *

They tell us that industries are crying for our gas. No doubt, no doubt at all. Well the gas is here, let them come and use it. We have the gas, we have the space, we need the industries There's the answer. If we ever hope to make Alberta the province it can be, we must guard against being exploited in the future as we have been in the past. Never yet, to my knowledge, have the people of Alberta received their just portion of benefits from what is rightfully theirs, first.

* * * *

Now we are told that if our gas should reach Spokane, Portland and other centres, that they won't pay a higher rate and we would be expected to pay the same. It's like buying a Canada-made binder in England cheaper than in Canada. Just (we dream) add up to make sense.

Let our slogan be, "Keep our gas at home and build industry in Alberta."

Selfish? I don't think so.

* * * *

No need to remind the people who live here, but for the benefit of those of readers in distant places, let me say that our weather here is much the same freezing by day and night the year 'round. Some times during the past ten days my thermometer has registered as low as forty degrees below zero. Yes, the past ten days have been cold, and at this writing there no signs of letting up either. Brrr.

BOARD OF TRADE MEET HELD AT HARDISTY

JOINT

Some sixty civic minded citizens representing Boards of Trade from Hardisty, Sedgewick, Killam, Castor, Wainwright and Edmonton, gathered at Hardisty on January 21st to discuss matters of mutual interest to all concerned. The meeting was in charge of Mr H Bruber, President of the Hardisty Board, who welcomed the visitors, and introduced Mr. Reuben, member of the Executive of the Provincial Board, who in turn presented Mr C P Pain, of Castor and President of the Alberta Board.

Mr. Pain explained that the purpose of the meeting was, "to hold an informal get together to discuss various problems which confront towns and villages, where suggestions and experiences could be taken home by individual board members for mutual guidance," and "to inject some new enthusiasm into complex boards."

The meeting was unanimously in favor of electing the Alberta Board of Trade membership representing 70 different communities with over 100 elected members of trade, and stated that such a body carries considerable weight when it comes to representations for better roads, and improved tourist facilities.

The present Board is active in the Freight Rate situation and in campaigns to get people out to vote during the election, and during the Provincial Election and Democratic life.

Mr. Pain urged each embryonic Board to send delegates to the annual conventions at Red Deer, and that a strong bond of co-operation be maintained between local boards and the Provincial Board, for civic improvements. He urged further, that all boards acquaint themselves to a much larger extent.

Mr Bruden spoke briefly on Alberta, and entreated people to put about Alberta as it really is, and not as a matter of illusionation, he stated that the Medicine Hat area is the largest producer of oil and gas in Canada. He stressed the importance of Agriculture and maintained that the wealth of oil in the richest asset the province has or is ever likely to have.

Three resolutions were presented all of which were passed after some discussion They were as follows:

1. That the Federal Government be requested to set up a Highway Commission to proceed at once with the trans-Canada highway.

2 That the Federal Government be requested to allow the setting aside of certain amounts of income for dividends (not now permitted to do so) to create a retirement fund for old age, free from income tax.

3 That Alberta's Natural Gas be used in Alberta for Alberta industries exported, and that industries be invited to come to Alberta if they desire the use of this natural resource.

Mr. M. G Merner, Mayor of Wetaskiwin, was present and brought of fraternal greetings from that city.

Mr Struthers, Supt. of Edmonton Division of the C. P. R., outlined the importance of a local Board of Trade and emphasized how much weight a board carried in dealings with large corporations such as the C. P. R.

SECRETARY M. B. PLASSTAFF TO GO TO WETASKIWIN

Mr. Cecil J. Brown, Sec. of the M. D. Flagstaff since its formation into the large unit, has been appointed as Sec Treas. of the city of Wetaskiwin, and will leave to assume his new duties on or about April 1st.

A Tenth Province

ANOTHER MILESTONE IN CANADA'S history will be marked shortly when Newfoundland officially becomes a part of the Dominion. The Dominion was originally planned to be a union of all parts of British North America but neither at the time of the confederation of the four colonies in 1867 nor in the succeeding years when the five other provinces were created did Newfoundland show any serious interest in becoming a part of Canada. The matter was discussed in the year 1895, but no action was taken and the proposal was soon completely dropped. When it does officially become the tenth province it will mark a bid has been referred to as the "rounding out" of Canada and Canada is welcoming the people of Newfoundland as partners, not joining a colony, and more prosperous nation.

* * * *

Inevitably many difficulties arose in the process of arriving at terms for the union which were acceptable to both Canada and Newfoundland. However final settlement has been reached and many observers believe that any serious difficulties will arise in the future. There have been elements in both countries who have opposed the union, and one representative of Newfoundland who came to Canada to take part in the making of the final arrangements refused to sign the agreement. However it is to be hoped that these who have entertained the thought of the two countries will before long see the advantages of union, which have been pointed out by the success of the federation of the other nine provinces.

* * * *

Criticism In Both Countries

The people of Newfoundland will soon share in the benefits of unemployment insurance, family allowances and other provisions made by the Dominion government for the health and welfare of its people. They will on the other hand, bring to Canada additional revenue in the form of taxation and their industrial and natural resources. Fishing is one of Newfoundland's principal industries and when it is joined with that of the other provinces it will make Canada the leader of all other countries in the fishing industry. Newfoundland also manufactures pulp and paper and copper gold asbestos nickel and other minerals of economic importance. Each of these products will be of considerable benefit to the development of the resources and industries of the new province, and the people of Newfoundland will as time, be interested in the progress of the Dominion as a whole. Any temporary disadvantages will be overcome in time, but there is little doubt that future events will show that there are many advantages for both parties in union and that there will eventually be general satisfaction over the addition of this tenth province to the Dominion of Canada.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

The business man called at a friend's office. After a while he accepted he asked. Don't you ever office boy getting slow?

Fine. He's got everything a need up that I can't get about without him.

Departing friend: "Well, good night, Hoge. I haven't kept you up too late."

Hoge: "Not at all. We would have been retiring up soon, anyway."

After the week-end guest had departed, the hostess was tidying up.

There she exclaimed in disgust. I knew that friend of mine was a lot to be trusted. I've just counted the towels and one of them is missing.

Was it a good one," asked husband seriously.

The best we had." It was the one with Grand Palace Hotel woven in it.

"Suppose the private didn't say but just thought it, what would happen?" "Nothing would happen." Then, said the private as he walked away, "I'll bray it at that."

After a successful business career Robinson retired to lead the life of a country gentleman.

One of their new neighbors calling on Mrs. Robinson, remarked:

I hear your husband has taken up hunting. Do you approve of that?

I don't know about approving," said the sportsman's wife, "but it makes life more exciting. We never know which to expect home first my husband or the bear.

"Edith," he whispered. "will you marry me?" "I don't know, Tom," she replied reply. "Ask me when you find out," he said, rising, "send me word, will you? I shall be at Ess (corrects) until the w'eek. If I don't hear from you by then, I'm going to ask her."

West Provinces Seeking 24-Foot Highways

VICTORIA B.C. — Western Canada, in planning future main highways envisions 24-foot traffic widths as a minimum, observed Hon. E. C. Carson, minister of highways, after conferring the recent highway conference held at Ottawa.

The minister would not hazard a guess as to how many miles a prediction as to the final results of the Ottawa meeting. Nothing will be known until the Dominion has studied the proposals offered at the conference.

Mr. Carson, however, was enthusiastic over the fact that the west had shown what it can do in urging Federal aid in ending the Canadian mass highways traffic across the Dominion.

It was evident that the western provinces were also a unit in preparing for the future, and I was delighted to find that a minimum traffic surface of 24 feet was accepted as the standard. In Ontario however they have adopted 22 feet, while the Maritimes are content with 20 feet surface. The conference had a sufficient width to care for heavy traffic such as trailers, big heavy and trucks and it must be adopted for the whole of Canada," he said.

This Man Couldn't Pursue His Destiny

EDMONTON — For want of one Canadian dollar, Drumheller's Gordon Joseph Bates, of Leiton, Hertfordshire, England, is blocked by red tape from pursuing his destiny.

His odd story was revealed by an Edmonton Government official who thinks Bates' situation so ludicrous he plans to supply the needed dollar and cut the tape. Here is what has happened:

Bates was born in Drumheller. He was taken to England as a child. Now married, he wants to visit Canada. To do this he needs to complete the arrangements in his birth certificate. That important document is at the Bureau of Vital Statistics at Edmonton and before he can get it Bates must pay $1.

Bought, except that the British Exchequer, became of strict monetary regulations, will not allow Bates to send a Canadian dollar out of England to Edmonton. On the other hand, regulations here do not permit the Alberta Vital Statistics branch to forward a birth certificate before the $1 is paid.

Biggest Sauerkraut Whopper Of Year

FAIRBANKS Alaska Brothers of it cold.

Why one Alaska winter the mercury fell so fast it jerked thermometers off its nails and railroad engines used frozen steam as coal-substitute.

That's the biggest sauerkraugh tale I've of the year. It belongs to Delta, an Emrat Alaska railroad-haggage clerk and part-time photographer. $300 in cash and a free plane trip to spend New Year's day in Hollywood.

No one was more surprised than Emrat when the three judges, members of Fairbanks Chamber of Alaska picked his story as the best among 3,216 entries. It was entitled "Mouse Clerk Charlie and the Quick Freeze."

Emrat had dropped around Christmas eve for the announcement. Instead he got up a few extra dollars by shooting a picture of the winner. He'd have had to pay himself.

He said his astonishment at winning was even greater "because every word of the yarn was true."

HIT! A BIG MARCH.—Look at that! Is that right in that direction? There were thousands of youngsters throughout the land who did the very same thing during the festive season. 8.72 6. photo.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

"Lucky Lady" By Lillace M. Mitchell

Had Miss Clare Been A Loquacious Lady, She Supposed She'd Have Asked A Man, "Whatcha Mumbo With Me That You Don't Cotton To." Shucks!

EVERYONE was sorry for Miss Maidenform on the day of her mother's funeral. Once the Maidenform family had been one of the very third or fourth firms in the city to wrapper had entered and so the others of the Maidenform outfit.

Now they did something about their pity They determined amongst themselves to keep poor Miss Clare occupied and amused and entertained and mustn't that she would have no time on her hands for grieving or self-pity

Every other day one of us would entertain her Everyone would arrange for the afternoon bridge or Miss Clare, bless her poor old-fashioned heart should have to assume the roles and responsibilities of hostess. Not that we expected her to be more than a mere figure-head, but we did expect her to be present and to act as if she were enjoying herself. Afternoon of bridge with no more than two or three tables. It would have been impolite to suggest it would be more entertaining to play pool and

I hopped off the first two or three times I was asked to take Miss Clare out. My time was not as free as was the time of many others but when my day I could see Miss Clare's grey head bent over the deck and reaching up to coax her canaries to sing. Oh, they sang beautifully, those odd days. I see now that she must have been hard put to it to get her home and keep her there. Both Hannah and Harry who had made the old mansion for years also were loath that Miss Clare had to take over personally.

Then they telephoned to me again Really, I hadn't done a thing for poor, dying Miss Clare. Not one thing! Couldn't I take her day after tomorrow? Well then Thursday? Or Sunday? Or Tuesday next? I promised Tuesday. It was the next Tuesday. Monday night there was a snow. Then the whole wedding business had ever recorded. Worse was promised or threatened for the following day. I decided to have a nice luncheon for Miss Clare, just to stave off the Monday snow and her gaunt form, had nothing better than delicious food with expensive

I made the French onion soup with whipped cream which she enjoyed, hoof-hearted broiled until the fragrance ruined from the butter hitting the charcoal, mushroom sauce that had never turned out better it took me the whole morning to prepare that meal.

Tomato aspic never better spent.

"Such tea," she moaned pleasantly. "Such tea." Where do you buy your tea?"

This was a gift Only twenty pounds are grown each year and this was a little chest of that tea."

"And you made it for me. Only me. No one else. Just you and me," she said again and again.

Under the influence of the hot tea and the warmth and silence indoors, Miss Clara began to talk Sometimes I could hardly hear her words above the wind outside and the storm. Inside there was no sound save the ticking of the clock on the piano and the purr of the person out

"I am, indeed, fortunate. They always told me I was born under a lucky star but sometimes when I was young I doubted it. Other girls had lovers, married. No man ever looked me. That strikes you oddly, doesn't it—you who have buried three husbands and married a fourth. But that's the way life is. Maybe I was the lucky one after all. You don't can tell if you've ever been really happy? Or unhappy? And some times happiness—and unhappiness, too—are relative. No marriage can be really happy. Or unhappy. My relationships must of necessity have been of both elements, perhaps. You have to take the good with the bad and the bad with the good. I married a man I like bumpy punches, pushing and shoving and selecting only the best My dear brother used to call me a born parasite. Some women—I have known them—are born to be parasites. They don't have to be. They are born that way. Some women are born to be mothers. Some women are born to be wives. But very few women are born to be mistresses. I'd been one of those happy-go-lucky ladies, even if I ever was. I suppose I'd have asked 'em to dine, Stinson, perhaps, or Hutchinson, that you don't cotton to me, huh? It went through my mind many many times, but I never said a word.

A log fell across the fireplace and startled her into silent contemplation. She filled in the time by knitting Then she leaned back thoughtfully and looked at me between half-closed lids as if she hardly saw me

"Yes," she said definitely, "I'm certainly the lucky lady." No husband to bother about dead or alive. Everybody in my own house dead and gone. The whole of the Maidenform property is mine. Every stick and stone of it, lock, stock and barrel. The Georgian silver ten set belonging to the Duke that belonged to Aunt Gronda. After she died it moved around to her sons and daughters and finally came to me. The Chippendale set—look how well it's held up—belonged to Dad—it's mine now. Rare paintings and fine heirlooms good enough for museum pieces. Everything! I've outlived them all, understand? Outlived 'em all. There they lie in the graveyard—the hull of them. Me—remnant of the wreck of their fine cement vitals—look at that rain beat on the windows, will you? And here am I—entertained and babied and made much of—merely because I'm the last of the family. The last of the great Maidenform line. Outlived 'em all. Lucky lady, eh? I'll say so!"

Redman Wheat Increasing In Popularity

WINNIPEG — New varieties of cereal grains are on their way from the research laboratories to step up yields of western agriculture

In brief minute the 28th annual conference of Manitoba agronomists reported that the two most important varieties Regent and Thatcher were the most popular in Manitoba in 1946, the former occupying 44 1 per cent of the total crop acreage, the latter 20 3 per cent.

Both, however, may soon be displaced by Redman, a new and interesting all popular variety being developed here, which last year was grown on 2 3 per cent of the acreage.

Redman is a high yielding variety of medium height and maturity. Resistance to stem rust is the best variable with Thatcher and Regent. The developers say Redman is about as good as Thatcher for baking purposes. However has topped the list with a yield of 42 7 bushels to the acre in Dominion tests in the Manitoba Brandon is recommended as the best variety for southern Manitoba

LOUGHEED FACTS

Mr E. Weir spent a few days in Edmonton recently.

The first Provincial Curling Play-offs were curled at Sedgewick lately. The Lougheed Legion rink skipped by O. Probst, with E. Stobbe, Herb Laureen and B. Whitehead, was the winner of the day. The first game between Sedgewick and Lougheed ended by a score of 11—10. The game between Provost and Lougheed ended in a tie 14—14, and on extra end, Lougheed won. Nice going boys. After the curling the players and their wives enjoyed a delicious lunch at Braden's Cafe.

A number of young people went out to the Laureen farm last Sunday evening for a sleighing party. Reilly Bax furnished the means of transportation with his team. After a couple of hours of hilarious rides, snow fights and tumbles, the merry group enjoyed a delicious lunch in the house, prepared by Mrs. Laureen. This was followed by a short session of dancing and a sing-song. All in all everyone joins me in saying thanks for a wonderful time.

Rev. Norman Pain, Pastor of the Church of the Nazarene at Sandre, Alberta, will be coming to the Evangelist at Special services beginning at Lougheed on Thursday, February 3rd. The services will be held every night except Saturday, and for all the Sunday meetings.

Lougheed Facts

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Newman and Brian left last Tuesday for a holiday with Mrs. Newman's relatives down in Ohio. Mrs. Coughlin and Ian have taken over charge of the Cafe during their absence, and of course Les lends a hand whenever needed.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Chadwick left for Seattle, Wash. last week due to the illness of Mrs. Chadwick's aunt. Archie Stockdale is the cheery host at the farm during their absence.

Rodney Bax spent a few days in Edmonton where he received medical treatment.

The Lougheed senior women spanked Mannville early in close again before the end of the day as several students again boosted their due to achieved gate. Three of the students were taken to the hospital but all satisfactorily returned home Thursday and further investigation was made to discover the cause of the trouble. Dr. Chalmers of Bodo assisted in the investigation but the definite cause of the gas is not yet known.

Mr. and Mrs. A. McLeod and family were Friday guests of the Tom Kenny home. Mr. and Mrs. McLeod left Friday night for the Coast where they will spend a few weeks holiday. Jean and Mary accompanied them to Edmonton where they spend a short holiday.

Hockey Notes

The Lougheed Juniors entered in Alliance last Wednesday for a game of hockey in a tournament. Mr. Al Black and Herb Laureen furnished the transportation. The boys beat their game to the Veteran team by a score of 5- 2, but judging by the cheerful person on their faces it didn't get their spirits down. Better luck next time kids.

The Central High team journeyed over to Viking last Saturday night and played a hustling game. Viking was victorious in a final score of 4 to 2 with overtime play. The Viking team played a return game at Killam last Tuesday evening.

On Saturday evening the Central High team and their football rooters went to Alliance for a game.

About the Weather

With the Dominion registerism record twenty to forty below all last week, there wasn't much enthusiasm around the village. Everyone seemed content to sit by the fire and toast their feet and listen to the radio. We'd get very comfortable when the announcer would finally tell us the temperature, which made us shiver all over again just thinking about it. Everyone had a different temperature reading. Quite a difference I'd say. If it can be fifty below in one part of town and only 25 in the other 10b well, when we stop to think of that terrific storm in California, we don't think it's so bad

Procedure Authorized to sign the cheques with the Secretary were the chairman and Mr. Garr. The new insurance committee will consist of Messrs Chesebro, Bax, Campbell.

The board authorized the purchase of three new typewriters for the Alliance School, their cost to be charged against the trust fund of that district. The Dept. of Public Health was requested to have a sanitary inspector inspect the Lougheed school and report thereon.

A large part of the meeting was devoted to discussion of a salary schedule with representatives of the A. T. A. ### AUSTRALIA BARS JAP WAR BRIDES

SYDNEY, Australia. — Marry a Japanese and live in Japan not Australia, Immigration Minister Arthur Calwell bluntly warned Australians.

While any Australian mother or wife who suffered at the hands of Japanese barbarians as still alive, it would be a gratuitous insult to them if a Japanese person were allowed to come here as a visitor or to live," Calwell said.

Unconfirmed reports said about 30 Australian soldiers who recently returned home from Japan for discharge are engaged to Japanese and Eurasian girls, many of whom are described as being very beautiful.

"Australian soldiers who marry Japanese wives will not be allowed to bring them to Australia," said Calwell. "I have no control over the love affairs of anybody, but have power to forbid entry into Australia of people who come within the restrictions of the Immigration Act."

My Snowman,

By JANE DALE

I built a snowman in the yard
He was a snowman of the best
I gave him a pipe and an old pork hog
An' clothes I borrowed from Pop.

I built a snowman one day
That he had whiskers
A stovepipe hat upon his hat
Lumpsie is his name.

The snow birds circle round and round
It keeps that snowman busy
To feed the birdies every day
In fact they make him dizzy

I believe now my snowman is
Not a lonesome fellow;
The birds perch there on his head
And his arms to him
That he doesn't miss my "Hello"

Beautification Campaign Planned

The Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada have again undertaken the task of promoting a National Beautification Campaign. An organizing committee has been formed and at present hard at work planning the campaign.

A Beautification campaign in the spring of the year is regarded as a prime necessity by virtually all of the leading citizens of the country today. The beautification idea which was instituted on a national scale only a few short years ago reached 241 localities last spring and in 1940, it is confidently expected that more than 600 municipalities, large and small, will enter the contest dedicated to promote a cleaner and healthier community.

Dates suggested for most localities for the 1940 effort are from the 15th to the 25th of May. May has again been designated as Beautification month and the Junior Chamber proposes to arrange an intensive publicity campaign between the middle of April and the middle of June.

HARDISTY NEWS

The Hardisty Home and School Assn. is sponsoring a Whist Drive to be held in Kiehn's Hall on Feb. 4th. Good Whist instead of the Militia Whist will be played. The proceeds are for purchasing a movie projector for the school, which is a MUST in education today. So come on folks let's have a real turnout.

The Eddie Matthews rink entered in the Irma Bonspiel last week, took second in two events, one in Chinook and the Irma Curling Club. Not only that, though Eddie lost his bet by a foot, he skipped the rink through the entire spiel. Geo. Mills, Jerry Timmins and Kitty Matthews throwing the dirt rocks between them. N' going indeed folks.

And P. S. — From our rink too comes a tale of what we call true hospitality. Lunching at the Coffee Bar in the rink after a late game, they found themselves guests of the Club, who refused remittance for the snack. Though the hour was very late (or very early) and the Garage was closed, the proprietor became an enthusiastic spectator, waited while they lunched, opened up to give them their car and said, "It's on the house". To add to that, all prizes were donated by the house town and there was no entry fee imposed on visiting rinks. Thank you Irma, our hats are off to you.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. B—

Even if I had not praised the editorial Financial Statements for various corporations and organizations, I would still have the desire of the annual meetings of these concerns, the information having come to me via the old reliable (?) grapevine. Yes, this is the time of year when Towns and Villages are preparing to hold annual ratepayers' meeting to discuss the business of each individual one concerned. It is the time when rent rayers are ride and gaudy to an think as ballsmear. It is also the time when every responsible citizen should be marking his calendar and reserving in his mind the date of his annual ratepayers meeting. He should not only remember the date but he should make it a "must" on his list of coming activities. He should be there. Even if everything your local Council has done suits you down to a "T", comes anyway. Your Council will be pleased to know that their service is appreciated. If you have a few kicks coming, the annual meeting is the place to bring it up. Get out to your yearly business meeting and let your interest in civic affairs.

• • • •

Mr. A. Edward Fox, M.L.A., gave the audience a "report at the Board of Trade meeting in Hardisty lately. In explaining his position with the party he is in, he explained Gen situation. Mr. Fox made it quite clear that he is only human and cannot stand the winds of his constituents. He would like to know what you think, so he can put your views before the government. What is your opinion on Exporting Natural Gas? What do you think about the Social Credit Government? Do you think we should have Margarine in Alberta? Do you think only a few of the things that should interest you. There is a Session coming up soon. What stand do you want your M. L. A. to take? He wants to know, so just about the time your pay cheque is being turned about the Legislative Chambers, get a wire off to your M.L.A. Tell him how you think and how you think he should think. He will do what his constituents want him to do. If you don't tell him how may do what he wants to do and that may not be what you want him to do. You see what I mean?

• • • •

The only regret I heard was voiced about Universal Preference debating the political and economic situation in Russia. Mr. Fox should put it, and Professor was for and the other side". It make no difference whether a man debates pro or con, he is almost sure to tramp on someone's toes. As I listened I thought that the Prof. defending Russia was being ridiculed by an audience who may have tuned in late and had no clear knowledge of what the broadcast was all about. It was "People's Forum" and to me it was worth listening to. I know it's a "hot" subject, but I would like to hear the topic of Margarine thoughly talked over. This is a subject, apparently, of the most vital importance. Just why the people of Canada should be denied the use of fibre is something I just can't understand. We don't have to use it, but we should have the right to do as we wish. That is why we are deficient in action. Naturally, the dairy industry is opposed, but if their plea is listened to, it could lead to trouble ahead. Next we will have entitlement trying to ban the sale of pure and Pox Farmers attempting to rid the land of mink and weasel.

COMING EVENTS

The Killam Ladies' Curling Club is sponsoring a Big Semi Formal Dance on Feb. 4th. Everybody is welcome.

KILLAM BOARD OF TRADE TO HOLD TUESDAY STAMPEDE

A general meeting of the Killam District Board of Trade was held in the Community Hall on Jan. 25th, with 25 members and friends present. The President, Hal Jones, gave a brief outline of the activities at present underway or planned for the future, portion of committees.

Tentative plans were discussed for staging the annual Stampede and Ball Tuesday. It was decided to have a 2-day event this year, with dates set for July 5th and 6th. The committee was instructed to obtain further details regarding the mid-way attractions the Garland Shows Ltd. have to offer.

Following were a report of the meeting of joint Boards of Trade at Hardisty on Jan. 21st, where rounds dance were discussed. Representatives of the Alberta Government concerning question before deciding on the request of Central Gas to other provinces; also that North West Utilities pipe line to Killam and other towns on Highway 13 as soon as possible.

The meeting was informed that the Board is again trying to obtain a music teacher to supply the growing demand in the district for this branch of education.

Following the business, Mr. Donald Cameron, Director of the Dept. of Extension, gave a very interesting and instructive talk, assisted by some slides, on "Building Community Co-operation in Alberta." He outlined some of the work that had been done in this regard, and emphasized some of the errors that had been made and warning the local Board against them. He stressed the idea that a community centre could only be a success if it considered all the needs of a community now and in the future. He said that one of the main requirements for success was the co-operation of every organization and person in the community.

Following adjournment of the meeting, lunch was served by the lady members.

TEACHERS ADVANCE PLANS FOR SCHOOL FESTIVALS

Despite extremely cold weather the regular monthly meeting of Education Club was held at Meister on January 21st. Some 35 members were present. The Chairman, Dr. Chilburn, demonstrated a new wall chart which is being considered for purchase for some divisional schools and its suitability for elementary teaching was discussed Topics were suggested for future meeting of the Club, such as school registers, planning of very bright and very dull pupils, possibilities for observation of demonstration teaching, etc.

The main business of the meeting was given over to the final consideration of programs for the Killam and Forestburg school festivals and arrangements for printing these programs. Good progress was reported by all sub-committees.

Britain's Recovery

THERE ARE MANY CANADIANS who have followed with great interest the progress which Britain has made toward economic recovery in the years since the war. Some of these years have undoubtedly been among the darkest in British history and there were times when numerical series, papers, periodicals and commentators in the United States and some in this country expressed the view that Britain was bankrupt and that there was little of real hope for her economic recovery. Others who had a better understanding of the character of the British people and who remembered the spirit with which they carried on during the war in the face of seemingly difficulties were more hopeful that their efforts to recover from the disastrous effects of the war would be successful.

Advances Made In Many Lines

By industry and sacrifice slow but steady advances have been made and today the situation is most encouraging to the British people. Production has increased steadily and the volume is now 150 per cent. of what it was in 1938. The national target for production in 1948 was reached in the first eleven months of that year. The unfavorable balance of trade which caused so much concern a short time ago has been substantially reduced and in November, 1948, it was given as only $175,000,000 much of which was outlined by European Recovery Program loans and grants. History has been made in the steel industry where production has reached the figure of 16,000,000 tons a week and the Minister of Transport, Mr. Alfred Barnes, recently announced that ship building is going ahead steadily and that by 1950 Britain's merchant fleet will be restored to pre-war size.

Have Helped Other People

Not only have the people of the United Kingdom improved economic conditions in their own country but they have given a considerable amount of aid to others. The British parliament has voted great sums of money the equivalent of hundreds of millions of dollars, to be invested in the encouragement of agriculture and the development of the natural resources of the colonies in the interests of the native populations. It should also be realized that in spite of the economic crisis the British government has had, since the war, with many complicated problems of the Empire and that during that time self-government in wider measure has been extended to some member countries of the Commonwealth, while others, like Burma, have withdrawn from it. Much has also been done by Britain to assist in the task of restoring the financial security of Western Europe. It is now predicted that by 1952 that the United Kingdom will need no further financial aid from outside sources and that the sacrifices and industry of the people will be rewarded by complete economic recovery.

TORONTO — A Christmas card proclaiming "good wishes from Toronto the birthplace of standard time", has been issued by the Toronto Convention and Tourist Association. It shows the site where the late Sir Sanford Fleming in 1878 gave an address on "Time Reckoning." His ideas were later embodied in an international conference which adopted standard time for the whole world.

Municipalities Back Anti-Grasshopper Drive

WINNIPEG — The 85 municipalities involved in the Manitoba government's anti-grasshopper campaign have signified their approval of the project, and tenders will be called shortly to obtain supplies of the new chemical to be used, H. H. Wood of the provincial agricultural department said.

Representatives of three American chemical companies, prepared to supply the new material for killing grasshoppers, have already interviewed or are scheduled to meet with the government's representatives presenting prices and outlining its proper use.

"Manitoba in facing the most serious grasshopper infestation since 1935," said Mr. Wood. "Preparations to meet this threat were started early last fall and satisfactory progress has been made."

Approximately 10 000 farms are located in the more heavily infested areas and will require control measure. It is estimated by the agricultural department.

Leslie only spent 30 minutes in hospital then returned to work the following day.

"It was only a small, 40-ton locomotive," he said.

How To Get Quick Relief From Sore, Painful Piles

If you have most pile sufferers, I feel sure I can help you too. If you want relief from the itching soreness and burning pain of piles.

Don't try ordinary treatment in different Hem Roid is an internal medicine — a small tablet taken with a glass of water that helps remove the cause of piles. Nearly that means you work without piles soreness and pain.

But I'd be honest with you. Hem Roid cannot help some pile sufferers more than it has been used on a million people who are not satisfied. I refuse to ask people to pay for something that does not help them as much as they expect it to. If Hem Roid helps you, surely it is worth the small cost. Otherwise I want you to have your money back. I'd take your word. Thousands of people are talked about such fair terms.

All I ask is you use Hem Roid as directed. If after using it you feel it has not relieved certain what you did not use and get your money back. # Predicts Decline In Food Prices During 1949

OTTAWA.—The baby was the only member of the Canadian family to get a break on food prices in 1948. Prices on baby foods, particularly midget cans of strained meats and vegetables, held about steady in the 12 months, government sources reported.

The report on adult foods was far less encouraging. With few exceptions they rose throughout the year, reaching their peak in October.

An easing tendency became apparent in November but there was no clear indication of a recession such as is developing in United States food prices.

In the U.S., retail meat prices are reported to be down as much as 30 per cent. since September, while smaller declines have been recorded in dairy products, fruits, vegetables and fats and oils.

Looking into 1949, authorities in Canada predict a decline here, probably in the last six months.

In Canada, the over-all food embraces in the official cost-of-living index showed a slight rise, to Nov. 1, but nothing outstanding. The reading was 204.7 against 203.4 at Oct. 1, 182.7 at Jan. 1 and 170.7 at Dec. 1, 1947.

The food picture had its brighter side. Reports placed before the dominion-provincial agricultural conference early in December forecast a drop in food prices in late 1949 as a result of good harvests and general improvement in the world food position.

Hume Ryerson of Brantford, Ont., president of the Canadian Fruit Wholesalers' association, foresaw a "fairly stable or warning price level," for practically all vegetables next year.

There was, he said, "definite" probability of a reduction in the price of potatoes. Plums, prunes and raspberries also would go down."

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

The tobacconist was unable to supply cigarettes other than Turkish so a well-known but very pungent brand.

Gloriously 4-ke exclaimed—Turkish! Yes, he agreed the packet, took out a cigarette and placed it in his mouth, and was about to light it—when his hand was stayed.

"No, no," the tobacconist protested—"not inside the shop."

He "I wonder where all the good-looking girls are to-day," she "I think they have gone off with all the well-mannered men."

A woman approached the clerk in a fruit market and asked for a pound of grapes.

"My husband is fond of them," she said. "Tell me, do you know whether they have been sprayed with any kind of poison?"

"No, ma'am," replied the clerk, "you'll have to get that at the drug store."

Grandmother Green didn't like changes of any sort.

The dial system of telephone service was no exception.

"Don't you think you will like it, Grandma?" asked the daughter of the house.

"No," replied the dear old representative, "if I get the wrong number who can I blame it on?"

Culbertson came down the stairs holding a very damp blister in her arms and announced that she had been giving it a bath. Her mother looked up and asked crossly:

"What tweet did you use to dry that kitten?"

To which Culbertson replied hotly, "I didn't use any tweet. I wrung him!"

Humble Guest "Er — have you ever walked in your sleep, Sir Reginald?"

Rich Host "Certainly not! I may have walked . . . ."

NEW SAFETY RULES FOR TRUCKS, BUSES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

VICTORIA — Trucks and buses on B.C. highways must carry safety signals in case of breakdown — just like trains — under new Highway Act regulations passed by order-in-council.

Signals must include two flares or reflectors, fusees or red lanterns for use in the dark and two red flags at least 12 inches square for daylight. They must be placed 100 feet behind and in front of the vehicle in case of breakdown.

The new regulations cover vehicles with capacity of more than nine passengers or half a ton.

Other new sections limit the speed of vehicles with solid rubber tires to 10 miles an hour on the highways, and logging trucks with semi-trailers attached to 15 miles an hour unless the semi-trailer is carried on the truck.

Hill Disappearing Near Swift Current

HALLONQUIST, Sask — There's a sinking hill in this district, 40 miles southeast of Swift Current and it seems to be disappearing fairly fast.

One old timer said that in 1909 the hill was normal except that it looked shunted off.

In 1911 the hill began to crack up and portions sank from six to eight inches. Today a valley, three-quarters of a mile long and 50 feet deep has developed.

One engineer said he believes a vast bed of quicksand may be underneath the ground. Others suspect underground water erosion.

CLAIMS TO BE THE ONLY GIRL ON BOYS' HOCKEY TEAM

WINNIPEG — Andra McLaughlin claims to be the only girl in North America registered with a boys' hockey team.

Andra, 13, appeared at the skating club carnival here. She is a forward on the Cheyenne, Wyo., high school boys' team.

RAILWAYS CARRY RECORD CANADIAN FREIGHT IN 1948

OTTAWA — Canadian Railways carried the greatest amount of freight in their peacetime history in 1948.

The total for 53 weeks ending Dec. 25 was 4,860,952 cars as compared with 3,944,798 cars in 1947 and the pre-war record of 3,680,415 cars in 1938.

HONEYMOON WALTZ AT THE STORK — Lt. Archibald Sinclair and Louise H. Mayer, boss of Metro Goldwyn Mayer Motion Pictures and his bride the former Loreen Danker. They were photographed as they cut a conservative rug at the Stork club in New York. They were married at Totem Arizona recently.

HALIFAX OPENS HEART TO 250 REFUGEES—A [illegible] Christmas [illegible] The Walnut, [illegible] of the school at Halifax N.S. hosts 250 non-[illegible] and children who had left their Russian-dominated countries journeyed out of this little ship and presented themselves to immigration officials. Halifax's mayor, J. E. Ahern heard about the group. So he spoke to officers of the Halifax Press club. Within a few hours the men and women of the Press club were planning a Christmas party for the 75 children who were aboard the immigration officials are processing the group of refugees but the intention is that they will be given [illegible] in Canada. Above are a group of children who attended the Christmas party.—N.S. photo.

PHONE CALL PUZZLE IN SEARCH FOR GIRL—Sylvia Rosen, 22, pretty French brunette from Toronto, has been missing from her home since Dec. 12. Although her purse and some clothing were found near the Humber river, she is a good swimmer and police have discounted the drowning theory. Surplus had $4,000 in the bank, but only $2.25 with her, police report. A telephone call received by the missing girl is the mystery link in the search. Foul play is feared.—N.S. photo.

OFFER EYE TO PAY FAMILY DEBT — Charee Amyot of Bonfield Ont., and his wife have volunteered to sell one eye each for $10,000. They say they want to assure the future of their seven children.—N.S. photo.

GIRL SOLVES THEFT — A 17-year-old schoolgirl sleuth, Helen Timbre, of Fort Erie Ont. and her 19-year-old boy friend Robert Haun, of Fort Erie, are credited with the arrest of a suspect in a recent $1,250 jewel theft. The man is reported to have confessed to the crime. Helen noticed a man lurking near her house on the evening. With the recent chain of robberies in her mind she became suspicious. She told him to get away from the house and backed up her words with a golf club. "Just for the excitement I decided to walk up the business section. Sure enough the same man was lurking in the shadows. But just then a police cruiser pulled up to the curb and I pointed him out. The police drew their guns and started down an alley after him. Police arrested a 22-year-old Toronto man who is now released on $1,000 bail.—N.S. photo.

A Message to MUNICIPAL DISTRICTS

The Alberta Motor Association believes that the Municipal Districts are doing good work in extending the benefits of good roads to the rural population.

Any communication is vital to farmers and rural residents, to assure easy marketing of produce, to keep down the cost of their own supplies, as well as to give them the everyday conveniences of modern living.

With Provincial Government assistance, it is to be hoped that the good work will be continued and extended in 1949. A word to your M.L.A. would do no harm.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

WINGS IN THE BLOOD

Air Hostess Who Disappeared With Secret Papers Could Not Give Up Flying

By Faith Yingling Knoop

KIRK WARREN always made a perfect take-off. Lorena admitted. Once again, she felt the surge of joy as the plane left the ground to soar into the world of sky and cloud. Lorena Brent smoothed her air hostess uniform and smiled wryly. She hadn't expected to meet it again. For tomorrow she would marry Olin Agnew and become a housewife.

Outside the fog seemed to have no top. Kirk was flying by instrument and knew. No wonder that the regular flight's record had been cancelled today. But it was Christmas Eve, heavy stockholder in Air Highway had chartered the plane to carry him to Detroit Kirk and his co-pilot, Pete, had been assigned to the flight. Then, with Kirk's hostess unavailable they had asked Lorena to make one more trip. Lorena surprised herself by the eagerness of her acceptance. She had not even phoned Olin of her flight. Olin did not approve of other than business calls on his office phone.

Lorena turned her eyes from the window to her lone passenger. The back of his bald-ish head and fat, red neck were framed in the early edition of an afternoon newspaper When he had finished the paper, Lorena's work would begin. All the hostesses dreaded J. B.'s irascible demands. Well, today," she thought to herself, "I can give you the worst, J. B., without slightest surprise on me."

Lorena's mind flew back to the past crowded months. When Chandler plane burst into flames in the air, Lorena determined to give up flying. But Kirk Warren Chandler, her brother was the second in the Pemberton family to die in an airplane crash Their father had fallen in a plane with a defective propeller Their mother had only Lorena left. She loved flying more than anything else in life; she had her own pilot's license. But to continue flying now would be unfair to her frail mother. And then, one night, Mrs. Pemberton quietly slipped away, to join her two invalids.

Then Kirk Warren came, Charles' best friend in all-force days. At his first, strong handclasp, Lorena had almost forgotten that she was engaged to Olin Agnew. Almost at once she and Kirk quarreled "Charles was proud that his sister was carrying on the Pemberton tradition. And here you're quitting—quitting flying and failing him. You, who have wings in your blood! A bluebird electing to live in a rabbit hole! Engaged to a man who has never flown, except on business."

Lorena had answered, clenched fists at her sides, deep hurt concealing into gray ones, "A woman needs security, for herself and for her children. I've had flying for me and my mother."

Lorena came to herself with a start. J. B. was calling her, above the plane's hum, beckoning her, with an impatient finger. As Lorena leaned over him, he pointed to a newspaper headline. It blurred while she read, "Millionaire J. B. Hollimore Bankrupt. Plane for Investigation."

J. B. watched the girl with his pig-like eyes in puffy face. "Sew?" he chortled. "But they haven't got me yet. J. B has one more trick up his sleeve." He leaned over to open his traveling bag. He extracted a bottle Lorena's heart thudded. A glint of metal also was in the bag's corner J. B was a crazy man. He drank from the bottle and replaced it Lorena, as an air hostess, was a regulated nurse, under five feet five inches tall, weighing less than one hundred twenty pounds, in her early twenties, possessed of "poise, charm and personality." She proved very qualifications now. "Would you like a little lunch?" she asked, with brisk and tomato juice?" she coaxed.

At the roar of the plane, Lorena opened the door to her supplies. Half hidden by the door, she still could watch J. B. She reached for the tomato juice, a sleeping tablet. If she could give J. B. the sleeping tablet in his tomato juice— But J. B. was again fumbling in his traveling bag Then he stood up, swaying Was he coming back to her? Lorena waited, tense and alert. J. B. did not look around. He stumbled toward the pilot's compartment and tried the door.

As Lorena started down the aisle toward the lurching figure, Pete, the co-pilot, stepped from the compartment and escorted J. B. back to his seat. Over the passenger's hand, Pete winked at Lorena. Pete had the situation in hand—or did he? J. B. was asking Pete to open the traveling bag. Why ask help in opening a bag that J. B. had himself opened and closed a half dozen times in the last few minutes? Lorena suddenly knew the answer. Almost as soon as the butt end of a revolver fell on Pete's head, and the co-pilot sprawled in the aisle, the hostess was at the front of the plane.

While Lorena stepped around Pete's unconscious form, J. B. reached the half-open door of the pilot's compartment. But she was beside him almost immediately. She pulled his pudgy right arm upward and sent the shot from the thing in his hand harmlessly over Kirk's head

In after years, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Warren remembered with wonder the next few minutes in which they acted as a well-rehearsed team. While Kirk ripped off ear phones, and set the controls, Lorena struggled with the madman. While Kirk got him under control, Lorena flew the plane When Kirk and Pete returned to the controls, Lorena returned to J. B., who now wept: "I only wanted to get to the border."

Then, while she soothed J. B., Lorena heart was singing the words she would tell Kirk that night. "We belong to each other, for we both have wings in the blood. Some time we'll all fly together—you and I, and our children."

Canadian West Not Woolly Now

EDMONTON—The West ran take off that 10-gallon hat anytime now.

If the Lions Ranger should ride into Edmonton on Calgary bucking for a hitching post, he'd wear Silver down to his knees.

He could find accommodation for himself, but Silver would have a mighty tough time.

Edmonton and Calgary boast but a single hotel-free stable between them.

No livery stable exists in either of Alberta's two largest cities. Edmonton's last "horse hotel" closed its doors a few months ago, to make room for construction

Although the proprietor is licensed as a hotel, he does not put up transient sags for the night. High feed costs make the practice prohibitive.

Calgary's annual stampede swell during which the West once again comes into its own has become a gesture calculated to create interest and atmosphere for the tourist.

University Professor Amazed Finding Tropical Creatures Near Medicine Hat

EDMONTON — It isn't that Professor E. H Strickland of the University of Alberta doesn't like the people of Medicine Hat, Alta., but he thinks the strangest creatures on this continent live in that vicinity

The professor has taken several trips to the southern Alberta metropolis just to look at some of the oddities that live in the area. Here is what he found

In 1942, scorpions were found along the banks of the Seven Persons Creek, even where it passes through the city of Medicine Hat. This is very far removed from any place one would expect to find such scorpions in Texas or Arizona, certainly, but not in Medicine Hat

He told of a trip he made to the city pushing around fur wire-worms in the soil." He unearthed a mother and young of a tropical spader known as solpugids

These spaders are admittedly tropical and are abundant in Africa. They are just able to exist in southern Sicily and have been found in southwestern Montana and Nevada west of the Rockies

On another visit, Prof Strickland captured a number of wasps which he sent to a world authority. The expert returned them saying they must have been mislabelled because they never have been found so far north

After Prof Strickland assured the wasp expert they were found at Medicine Hat, the amazed man decided to visit the city for himself

He really joined the charm of Medicine Hat but I don't feel happy in believing that it has grown such a menace for tarantula and others" said the professor. "They have converged on it leaving in their wake a variety of scorpions, white ants, solpugids, horned toads, kangaroo rats, hognosed vipers and the seeds of the cactus plant

"Whatever may be the true explanation, all these typically southern forms do inhabit the vicinity of the Cypress Hills (near the city), while they have been seen east or west. One certainly cannot feel satisfied in attributing this phenomenon to a surprisingly haphazard importation of freight cars and automobiles at the ports of entry

"The only explanation I have to offer is that they may have been native to Alberta for millions of years"

Prof Strickland thinks the creatures may have escaped the ice age because the 4,500-foot hills above be signs of glaciation above the 4,400-foot mark

Manitoba Farmers Have Record Year

WINNIPEG — For Manitoba farmers, 1948 was the most prosperous year on record. This was the gist of a year-end review statement by the province's new minister of agriculture, Hon. F. C. Bell, who released tentative statistics showing that farm production last year was higher than ever before.

The average net return on production in 1948 was estimated at $5,000 per farm compared with $3,600 in 1947. The province's gross return from agricultural production for the year totalled $251,500,000 against the previous record of $241,000,000 in 1947.

Paratroop Officer Gets Unique Revenge

RIVERS, Man.—At the joint air school, they chuckle over the revenge of Lieut. Brichto.

He is a 130-pound lieutenant from Quebec City and he was with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry whose soldiers have been learning to be heavyweight

Because he is so light, he is always the first in his plane to jump, the last to land. This has its aggravations for a little man

Lieut. Brichto's revenge is this: Because he is so "stiff" most soldiers as they pass him in the air.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. B—

This week the Community Press starts out on a new Publication Year". You will observe at the top of this page, that the number of this issue is No. 1. As there are just 52 week in a year, a weekly paper changes from 52 back to 1 and also changes the volume number, which number shows the years that the paper has been published.

The past year has been a good one for the Community Press in as much as the firm has handled all the commercial printing and advertising it was capable of handling. The volume of national advertising held up well, indicating that business in Canada is still holding up.

Just when we are commencing to appear on the air, I need time to express our thanks and gratitude to all our customers everywhere for their continued loyal support. We shall promote your business and shall continue to strive to give you prompt and satisfactory service.

As more and more business firms are finding out that advertising dollar for dollar, is a good time to appear when spent with their local "Community Paper" which covers and also serves more than one town and its surrounding districts, this paper has found that its advertising columns are being taxed to full capacity by "local" business firms up and down the line. As a local paper should the Community Press caters to the "local" advertiser. This paper does not solicit "outside" advertising, nor related to compete with local firms. Your Editor does not believe it is considered fair to compete the paper with odds from all over the Province inviting readers to trade elsewhere, and also accept odds from local firms inviting people to trade at home. We make our living between the territory extending from Killam to Hardisty. We spend our money in that territory as far as possible and we give the advertisers in that same territory any "breaks" possible. That is only good business.

• • • •

As a further illustration of the advantage of a "Community Paper," I notice that Geo. Editor of the Chauvin Chronicle has purchased the Wainwright Star, and will incorporate the papers at Wainwright, Chauvin and Chauvin into one weekly Community paper serving all three towns and districts.

Another good illustration is the "Enterprise" published at Alliance and which gives thorough and satisfactory coverage for Alliance, Lougheed, Forestburg and Meteor.

• • • •

For those of us who have been through the mill, comes the certain knowledge that in times of stress and recession or depression many of the smaller towns cannot support a weekly paper adequately. But we also know that by covering and serving three or four such towns, the publisher is nearly always assured of enough patronage to make ends meet and buy an occasional cigar.

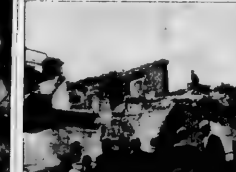
PILOT SPENDS FIVE NIGHTS IN BUSH AT 40 BELOW ZERO—Bush pilot's nightmare was the description given by Felix Cryderman, back in his Geraldton, Ont., home after five nights in the open in temperatures around 40-below zero after his plane crashed on icy Chorus lake. 50 miles east of Geraldton. The wrecked plane is shown here. The flight was a routine job of taking food to the Indians at Chorus lake. -I.N.S. photo.

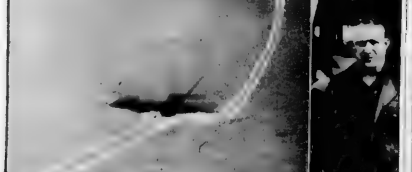
DADDY'S HELPER—"Light bulbs, Daddy"—coming right down!" J. E. Readyhough, general store proprietor at Wallace, near Listowel, Ont., needs no ladder to reach store bandage on the top shelves. He just calls his daughter, Elaine, one. She stands on his hand as nonchalantly as though walking on the floor.

ELLIOTT AND FAYE ATTLE "ACCIDENT"—Elliott Roosevelt and his actress wife Faye Emerson pose smilingly for photographers in their apartment at New York, seemingly to refute stories that a mutual spat was responsible for the left wrist wound for which Miss Emerson was treated at Vassar Brothers hospital. Miss Emerson is revealing her bandaged wrist in her stuff. The Roosevelts vigorously deny that the wound was self-inflicted. Eight stitches were required to close it. After the private half-hour interview at the office of the Duchess county attorney, it was announced that the investigation is terminated and the matter was closed. -I.N.S. photo

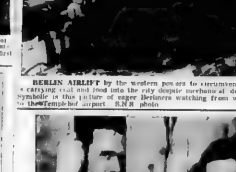
He was found by the woods with emergency rations, an axe and a bottle of milk tablets, and spent the first night with Indians. Veteran of the Fleet Air Arm in the Second World War, Cryderman is shown here.



BERLIN AIRLIFT by the western powers to circumvent the Russian blockade of the German capital still is carrying vital aid food into the city despite mechanical difficulties, weather obstacles and Soviet red tape. Symbolic is this picture of eager Berliners watching from war-bombed buildings as a huge plane flies in food to the Tempelhof airport. -I.N.S. photo



MAROONED FIVE DAYS, PILOT RESCUED—After 5½ days marooned on the ice of Lake Chorus, 50 miles east of Geraldton, Ont., after his plane crashed, Felix Cryderman, 35, bush pilot has been brought safely to his home. Cryderman was spotted by a search plane as he emerged from a deserted cabin at Fox Lake, near where he crashed. Food was dropped, but Cryderman made a sign on the snow telling the forestry plane not to attempt a landing. A snowmobile was sent out from forestry camp 31, in which he was brought back to Geraldton.—I.N.S. photo.



BAD BIRDIE DAUGHTER, THEN SELF—A jealous father, William Brown, 46, shot his daughter Isabelle Brown, 18, and then turned the gun on himself. The tragedy occurred at the home of the Browns at Durham, Ont. The girl had spent night at home of her fiance's parents after being afraid to go home. She returned with him the next morning and was met by dad with shotgun blast. Taken in happier days, this photo of Isabelle Brown and Stewart Newell, her fiance, was "gag" picture during visit to Toronto. -I.N.S. photo

ROYAL EXILES LEAVING CHURCH—Ex-King Michael of Rumania and his wife, Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma, leave the Russian Orthodox church at Nice, France. The former king delivered an address at the service, in the course of which he hoped the day would come when the people of Rumania will be able to express themselves as freely as peoples of western Europe -- I.N.S. photo.

PHOTOGRAPHER HERE—Shown as he arrived in New York on the Queen Elizabeth is Cecil Beaton, British court photographer who has with him more than 100 exclusive pictures of Prince Charles, infant son of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, and second in line to the English throne. FLIES 18,000 MILES, FINDS GRANDAD—Grandfather in Toronto is called by David Cavaten, 21, from New York after he arrived by air from Colombo. The Ceylon-born son of Mrs. Alfred Cavaton, David already has flown 10,000 miles. He and his mother were coming home to spend the winter with his grandparent, Herbert J. Scott, whose wife died Christmas Eve. David's only comment after the long plane trip was: "It made my tummy sick." His parents are missionaries in Ceylon.

DISAPPEARANCE OF COUPLE STILL A MYSTERY — If Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Brown, both 70, have drowned near Shubenacadie, N.S., it is not likely their bodies will be recovered until the spring break-up, Superintendent J. Hoey, of the R.C.M.P. at Halifax said. The couple have been missing since Dec. 12 when their locked car was found on the Truro highway, 60 miles from Halifax, on a river bank. "The river, a tidal one with an unusually muddy bottom, is now frozen over and it is impossible to carry on dragging operations. There is, of course, no indication the couple are in the river," the superintendent said, "but then again their is nothing to indicate they have met with foul play. I understand both are in failing health." Above are Mr. and Mrs. Brown who had been living in the Maritimes for the past few years.—N.N.S. photo.

Winner of the gold medal of the world-famous Scottish National Sweet Pea Society, the new flower is described as salmon-coral suffused with a luminous orange. In sunlight, the salmon-coral tones are predominant; indoors, under artificial light, the orange tones are accentuated.

The Margaret O'Brien sweet pea is adapted for growing in home gardens and is of the Giant Spencer type. Blooms are long and stately and the foliage is a mid-green color The plants are vigorous and blossom profusely

The new flower was developed by the W Atlee Burpee Co. from a cross between an early blooming variety of sweet pea used for greenhouse culture and a summer-flowering giant seedling. The cross was made in 1938 and selections were made each year until the stock was breeding true. In 1947, there was enough of the seed to enter it in the Scottish National Sweet Pea Society Trials. In this international competition of sweet peas judged during trial grounings and a subsequent show held in Glasgow, the new Burpee sweet pea won the Society's highest award.

Cold Job! Delivering Water

SASKATOON. - Delivering 12,000 gallons of water weekly to about 100 homes on Saskatoon's North Park district every winter is the job of E. J. Trowbridge, who has had charge of one of the city's nine water delivery routes for the last 24 years.

Undeterred by snowdrifts and cold weather which runs to 40 degrees below zero, Mr. Trowbridge likes his job.

His face has been frozen several times, yet he wears no earmuffs or scarf. His wagon has broken down at times. The 39-foot hose has frozen, deep drifts have made progress almost impossible. But delivering has never stopped.

He keeps a team of horses in a barn at home. Jack, the boy, is eight years old; Tack, the white-faced mare, 12.

"They'll never do away with horses on this job," said Mr. Trowbridge. "Nothing else could get through a winter under the same conditions."

The Trowbridge water delivery service experienced was a temperature of 52 degrees below zero several years ago.

If the wagon gets stuck, he calls the city for a bulldozer. Sometimes is really bad weather he puts on an extra team and drives with four horses.

Delivering to each home three days a week, Mr. Trowbridge refills the tank from hydrants along the way. The tank holds 600 gallons. He refills it five times a day, six days a week.

"I'm pretty well my own boss" he says. "And the people are nice. I'm often invited in for a cup of tea or coffee We work only a 44-hour week now. It used to be 60. And no one goes without water.

Entitled "Canadian Headlines Of 1948", the film, as the name implies, is a bright, breezy report of what happened of importance in Canada so far, during the past year.

The new school for crippled children is to be known as Variety Village. It is being constructed from $750,000 funds raised by Variety Club of Toronto. Test 28, a philanthropic organization of motion picture men and women.

HEALTH WEEK
Termed Health Education's Outstanding Event

About 100 years ago Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote that "The First Wealth is Health." That thought of Emerson's holds good today, and to give impetus to that fact the Health League of Canada has designated the week of January 30th-February 5th as National Health Week

This will be the fifth annual observance of an event which has assumed nationwide importance in that it has become an outstanding project in the field of health education. National Health Week has a two-fold purpose (a) to awaken in Canadians a full realization of the value of good health, personal, communal and national, (b) to develop that awareness of the value of good health into such vigorous action as will obtain better habits and standards of health by personal behaviour and by legislation.

Guard Your Health—Know How—are again has been chosen as the Health Week' slogan. This gives emphasis to the fact that health to a great extent depends upon the "know how" of the people themselves. It is agreed that all the people must have access to modern scientific care and protection, but it should be emphasized that the people themselves must learn to heed advice and take advantage of health protecting facts and appliances which are available to them.

National Health Week is but a means of giving emphasis to facts which should be foremost in the minds of everyone during every week in the year. It is the hope of the Health League of Canada, which annually sponsors the observance in co-operation with official departments of health and of education, that every week will be considered as a Health Week" and that the "know how" gained during the week of January 30th will not be forgotten during the other 51 weeks of the year

HOT WATER AT THE TAP

WE ARE showing a drawing of a circulating hot water pipe to prevent waste of water which is usually necessary when cold water has to be drained from a hot water supply pipe before the hot water is available at the faucet. The drawing shows the riser from the range boiler and the branch pipe running to faucets as well as the return pipe and its connections back to the range boiler This kind of system does less some of the heat stored in the water because the water circulates continuously. However, this could be largely eliminated if the pipes were insulated with standard pipe insulation or wrapped with ½ inch strips of asbestos straw board. Several thicknesses of this material may be put around the pipe and held in place by strips of gummed paper

...ng the past few years, the money voted ... the maintenance and construction of highways by the Provincial Government has been equal to, or slightly in excess of, the total revenue derived from motor vehicle licenses.

THE RESULT:- Improved highways, improved transportation, and economic, educational and social benefits to all.

Your constituents will approve your support of a similar vote for 1949, to extend these benefits to many not directly adequately served.

Talk to a rural school teacher. Talk, even, to many teachers in town. They'll tell you that educational facilities are often shockingly poor—to invited they are holding our children back. School houses are decades old, lighting is poor, heat comes from the same stove that glowed for grandparents. Some schools are without books—others have teachers with little interest, little training. Conditions are chains on the brains of future Alberta. Not until Alberta as a whole, through the Provincial Government, places education as its first duty, will Education make the progress it must. Talk, write, tell your M.L.A. We noticed a couple of weeks ago that the local girls seemed very busy knitting or mending socks, so we wondered if they were finally turning domestic. We discovered, however, that all the labor was for the Central High Sock Dance — Sedgewick lost Tuesday night. From the reports it was a very good party and needless to say everyone had a very good time. We only hope they didn't dance holes in their socks.

The Valley dance was very well attended last Friday night, and with the lively music of the John Heven orchestra to keep everyone on the toes there was never a dull moment.

If you wondered where all the hammering and pounding is coming from, it's the repair gang at the Bonnie Grain Elevator, installing a new grain cleaner.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE STORM

Hoisted Blew Away With The Storm

By ELIZABETH BROWN

MAMIE moved out of the house into the cabin, taking with her the old iron bed, the wardrobe and two rocking chairs. From the barn left also resurrected the cracked cookstove; it smoked but this she accepted with grim fortitude. Let Arnall use to what poor quarters he had driven his mother!

Arnall and Lucy, his bride returned three days later. Mamie saw the door closing behind them; she watched Arnall seeking his mother, he'd find the room empty. Then he'd see the smoke from the cabin chimney. He'd come, then, in anger.

Presently Arnall flung open the cabin door. "What'd you want to do this for?" he demanded. "Why did you move all your things?"

The black anger, on like his own starred back. "I told you I wouldn't live in the house with Christie Barlow's daughter," replied Mamie through tight lips going to the stove with him. "You and her can have the house, I'm staying in the cabin."

She had thought to bank in the pleasure of his pleading; instead, Arnall said, "You think you're doing this you're going to hurt Lucy and me but it won't work that way. You'll just that's going to suffer from your own stubbornness."

When he had gone, she warmed the pens, ate cold corn bread and buttermilk. She sat down at the old reading supper, doing the things for Arnall she had done, was glad.

Lucy—the daughter of Dr. Barlow, who thirty years before had married and deserted Mamie's young-est sister, Sara. Sara had died of a broken heart and Mamie had never forgiven Doctor. Let other folks say he'd redeemed when he married Doctor Lucy's mother, let them say that he had turned out to be a decent father and husband. He'd taken Mamie's sister and now, through his daughter he had claimed her son. She hated him; she hated both of them.

Mornings, Arnall would bring in the eggs and milk, he would bring her firewood from town. Yet where though she did Mamie could not get him to linger. She'd say "Sit down and eat a bite, I'm having another cup of coffee," meaning, "Stay with me a little while, Arnall, talk with me as you used to do." He always refused. "I'm not hungry, Lucy feeds me well." And as the winter passed Mamie would see Lucy about, going to town with him, to church . . . Lucy and Arnall, Arnall and Lucy. Only Mamie was alone, wrapped in the mantle of her hatred.

The cattle no longer moved on the hills in the pasture, spring was trying to come through, the earth let out a fragrance of stirring things. It was too early for a real spring but February, unnatural warmth pressed down on the Alabama farmland; winter fought back, trying to put off its defeat.

On a Saturday Arnall went to town. Alone. Lucy was going to have a baby late in the summer, not that Arnall had mentioned the matter him, who helped her with the wash, had told Mamie about it. About Arnall's hope for a son . . . Mamie, her face immovable, had accepted the news with excitement. Arnall's child, her grandchild and then her mouth had tightened. Lucy's child, Doctor's grandchild.

Mamie about her chores but-lessly. The sky was heavy with unsolved rain; clouds hung low. In the past a few hens were already clucking on the roost, so dark had the day become. As she stood on the porch, Mamie saw Arnall's wife come out a white blur in the darkness. "Arnall . . . maybe he'll be coming home soon," thought Mamie, her heart beating unsteadily. Mamie felt the wooden door; a yellow-red glow began to color the sky before they could force an entrance. Grasping Mamie found the half-rotted bench she remembered. "Nothing we can do now but wait and pray," she whispered.

There was a roar as of a dozen freight cars. The two women clung together. Then as suddenly as it had appeared, the centre of the storm passed, leaving torrential rain.

"It is—it's gone," whispered Mamie. "We can get to the house now." If there's a house left, she thought grimly. Outside, it was already lighter. The women peered out upon a scarred world.

"The house—looks like nothing but the chimney is hurt," said Mamie. The chimbery tree was gone, sprawled along the earth . . . she looked at the cabin. There was only the twisted brick foundation, the timbers of the cabin lay scattered for a mile across the beaten cotton-field.

"Your cabin—" began Lucy.

Mamie nodded. "Yes . . . it's gone. I reckon a lot of things blew away with that storm . . . It's a good thing I got me a house to go to."

Hand in hand, through the rain, the two women made their way up the knoll to the house, to-gether . . .

Now Timely Tip For Motorists

OTTAWA. — A timely tip for motorists is offered by F. W. Bedard, in recommending the use of strips of asphalt shingles under the rear wheels of an automobile to gain traction on difficult road surfaces.

"Be sure to put the rough side down in placing the roofing strips close to the wheels," declares Mr. Bedard.

Motorists, he said, would find the roof sections better than gunnysacks in driving a car out of deep snow or from ice surfaces.

Several layers of the asphalt strips could be carried on the floor of the rear compartment of a car where they would not take up much space.

The oldest covered bridge in existence is thought to be at Lucerne, Switzerland, built in 1833.

RECIPES

CHOCOLATE FUDGE ICING

2 ounces bitter chocolate
1½ cups sugar
½ cup water
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 tablespoon light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons thick cream

Grate the chocolate and combine with the sugar, water, butter and cream of tartar. Stir and mix thoroughly over a direct heat, bring to boil and cook, without stirring, to a very soft ball stage (234 deg. F.) Remove from fire and let stand until cold. Add vanilla and beat until thick enough to hold its shape. This slightly soft fudge icing is of the right consistency to spread on sides and top of cake.

CUSTARD SAUCE

1 pint milk
Butter, size of walnut
1 well-beaten egg or 2 yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla or almond extract
½ cup sugar

Heat butter and sugar in milk; stir the gradually into egg (or eggs); cook slow five until custard thickens. Add flavoring just before serving. Serve with cornstarch or blanc mange pudding. Very nice poured over fresh berries in the absence of cream.

If brown sugar is stored in a bread box it will keep moist. 3013

Increase Seen In Saskatchewan Crop Acreage

SASKATOON — Saskatchewan farmers are expected to increase their wheat and oats acreages in 1949, M. E. Hortnell, deputy minister of agriculture, said.

Acres in summerfallow and rapeseed production this year are also expected to be increased. At the same time he said, Saskatchewan production of barley, rye and flax is expected to decline in 1949.

Mr. Hartnell, in addresses to the 41st annual convention of the Saskatchewan agricultural societies' association held as part of the university farm week, quoted figures compiled on the basis of a survey made by the provincial agriculture department. He said the estimated acreages for 1949 were computed from the replies made by 4,000 enquiries sent out to Saskatchewan farmers.

The province's wheat acreage forecast for 1949 was 15,800,000, he said. This should be an increase of about 2,000,000 acres over the acreage sown in the 1948 wheat acreage, and a jump of 30 per cent over Saskatchewan's wheat acreage in 1944.

Anti-Flood Project To Start Soon

The project will cost between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000, with the cost split three ways, the Federal and Provincial governments each paying 40 per cent, and municipalities concerned paying the other 20 per cent.

A Dominion-Provincial board under the chairmanship of F. G. Goodspeed, assistant chief engineer of the Federal public works department, started to plan an anti-flood scheme four years ago, and presented its report in 1946. Part of the surveys necessary for completion of final plans were delayed this year by high water, but the work now is proceeding.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. S.—

Next Saturday, February 19th, will see farmers from over an extended area, gathered at Sedgewick for the annual meeting of M. D. Pingstaff. by still 11? It seems that the more prosperous the times the less interest is taken in civic and municipal affairs. Although this should not be the fact, I suppose it is only natural. We don't miss the dollar quite so much now, but in times of difficulty we flock out in droves to these public meetings to look into the possibilities of saving a dollar or two.

M D business nowadays is indeed big business. Revenues are large and taxes are heavy, and at such a time, ratepayers should be taking more than just a casual interest in the M. D. affairs, if for no other reason, then just to see that proper economizing and saving is taken to provide for stormier days ahead.

Turn out next Saturday to register your approval or disapproval of the past year's activities of your council. That's what the meeting is for.

Ever since Darwin startled the world years ago, the question of man's descendancy has been debated pro and con by allies of the two different ideas. Oh yes, there are people who think as we do, and even seek to clinch their arguments by pointing out that even the poorest man does more or less make a complete monkey of himself. We may say nothing to being descendants of the monkey, but monkey relatives refuse to claim us as relatives, as shown by the following time-worn article. Perhaps monkeys are smarter than they supposedly smarter brothers.

Three monkeys sat in a coconut tree
Discussing things like you and me
Said one to the others, now listen you two;
I hear a rumor that can't be true.
That man has descended from an noble race,
The very idea is a disgrace.
Why, no monkey ever descended his orts,
Starved his children and ruined her life.
And who ever heard of a mother-in-law
Leaving her children with others to bunk,
Pushing them off from one to another
'Till they scarcely knew who is their mother?
Another thing you'll never see
In a monkey-built fence 'round a cocoanut tree.
Plaistation would force you to steal from me.
And another thing a monkey won't do—
Go out at night and get in a stew.

JAMES R. HALLUM

Who was elected to the Board of Directors of the Alberta Liberal Association, at the recent Convention held at Calgary.

WINTER WONDERLAND—The scenic beauty of Winter has also a commercial use as the famous Bridal Veil Falls at Provo, Utah, frozen solid, become a tourist attraction. Jack Frost has also gone to work on Niagara Falls. Even a spray has made quaint formations and a heavy snowfall has given additional beauty to the surroundings, giving tourists and sightseers plenty to marvel at. —NNS photo.

D.P. GIRLS COMPLAIN OF MISTREATMENT — Legia Vrama, (left), and Argalia Barula, D.P. girls working in Montreal mental hospital, says patients have been beating them but they can't get better job because of contract under which they came to Canada.

WORLD'S YOUNGEST MARRYING PARSON AT PLAY—The world's youngest marrying parson, four-year-old Margie Gardner, has returned to his fire engine and drums after presiding over his first big city revival meeting in fund-of Philharmonic auditorium, Los Angeles, Calif. A crowd of nearly 3,000 paid public admission as the curly-haired boy clergyman in his short pants exhorted them to get right with God. An occasional "Amen" was heard, but there was no evidence of church-going fervor from the predominantly church-going audience. It was Margie's first appearance as a church platform since he married a young couple in Long Beach recently. But the little preacher made no mention of the marriage that set off a storm of local controversy over the propriety of having a child perform marriage rites. Above Margie shares a toy with his two-year-old brother, Vernon. —NNS photo

OLD BROOM VS. SCOTS BRUSH—That old kitchen broom, as important to Canadian curlers as a steady right arm, is getting a real talking-about since the visit of the touring Scots. The tweedy, pipe-smoking Scots, on a month's tour of North American curling centres and already well ahead of the Canadian opponents they've played, say publicly they wouldn't touch a Canadian broom with one of their five-foot brushes. The result is something of a controversy among members of the sandmannered curling brotherhood. The Scots declare they'd tidy brushes polish the ice nicely in front of a stone and are specially made for curling. —NNS photo

RARE DISEASE SNAPS HER BONES — A seemingly healthy, robust, four-footed little Magallon girl quietly observed her second birthday Jan. 6, and nothing happened. Her parents were thankful. They knew she may break a leg, an arm or even her skull at any moment because she isn't just like any ordinary child. She's more like a "china doll," said Mrs. Edgar Harse, of her only child, believed to be only the second person in Canada to be afflicted with osteogenesis imperfecta congenitalata, which in a layman's language means imperfect formation or growth of bone in a newborn baby. Above Sandra is pictured with a toy. —NNS photo.

FIVE FIRE DEPARTMENTS STEM INFERNO — Fanned by a strong northwest wind, a spectacular fire destroyed a business block of stores and apartments at Sunderland, Ont., and made four families of 11 people homeless before being brought under control by volunteer firemen and bucket brigades. The blaze raged out of control for three hours and threatened the entire community, which is situated 20 miles west of Lindsay, Ont. Five stores, the town post-office a grocery warehouse, several apartments, a poolroom and an egg grading station were destroyed. Only piece of fire-fighting equipment owned by Sunderland was this antiquated chemical tank trailer shown with Gus Doyle, village constable, who is also volunteer fireman. —NNS photo.

VENEZUELA'S DEPOSED PRESIDENT ARRIVES IN FLORIDA — Recently deposed Venezuelan president Romulo Gallegos is shown with his wife, daughter Bonia, 10, and son Alexis, 11 as they arrived at Miami, Fla., from Cuba. Gallegos has been in exile in that country for the past six years since his government was overthrown by a military junta. He says he is still president and refuses to resign. After two months in the United States he will proceed either to Mexico or Cuba. —S.N.S. photo

DUTCH AMBASSADOR TO CANADA ARRIVES — Jan Van Royen, Netherlands representative to the United Nations security council, who is shown shortly after he arrived in New York from Amsterdam. Mr Van Royen, who is also his country's ambassador to Canada, had the job of batting for his country in the controversy over the Dutch "police action" in Indonesia. S.N.S. photo.

EAGER TO IMPROVE, SHEEPS ATTEND SCHOOL—Keen shiers who yearned to be instructors went through their paces at Collingwood, Ont., in a seven-day training session. An estimated 60 pupils were enrolled in the class. The graduates will become either professional or amateur instructors. Tumbles in the snow are all part of the fun of skiing and Jo Anne Counter of Toronto found that even the best skiers occasionally wind up in the fluffy stuff. Control of skis in every type of snow is one of the lessons learned at the school.

FINALLY HAS CAST BUT THREE DAYS LOST—Fruitful of breaking a 36-year attendance record, Paul Tanner, shown here, of the High School of Commerce, Ottawa, attending school for two months after breaking his back playing football last fall. Finally the pain became more than he could stand and he had to miss three days before the cast got on his injured back.—N.P.A. photo. 2015

BOY RESCUES TWO CHUMS FROM RIVER — Eleven-year-old Alex Cosbrough of Brantford, Ont., indicates spot where he pulled Mark Bowden, four, and Virginia Ellis, six, shown inset, from the icy Grand river after they went through melting ice. ## Hardisty Happenings

Miss Helen McDonald spent last Saturday in Edmonton.

Pony Boss held their meeting this week at the home of Barbara Mathews. Prizes in cards went to Marion Wagner and Eileen Webb.

Faye Cameron accompanied the Amisk rink to the Ladies' Bonspiel last week throwing second rocks. They won second prize in the secondary event.

Congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Wells on the birth of a daughter on Sunday, Feb. 13th.

The Young People's Choir met a the home of Yvonne Morrison last Thursday night and after practice a pleasant hour was spent sleighing.

Five rinks, skipped by Cpl. Brisson, Sam Mattoon, Bob Wells, Harry Moody and George Soske, entered in the Athens bonspiel last week. Geo Soske's rink (the other three being L. Bolland, Herb Bricker and Carl Walther) took second in the Grand Challenge. A good show we'd say, what with a entry list of 81 rinks against them. Nice going fellas.

The school was a gay place Monday, what with Valentine parties and the exchanging of cards. Mr. Imeson's room had a particularly exciting time of it, having a skating party with lunch following.

Don't forget the show and dance on Friday, Feb. 18th, sponsored by the Hardisty Elks Lodge.

HARDISTY HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

In spite of the raging blizzard, the regular meeting of the Hardisty Home and School Assn. was held on Feb. 10 with President, Mr. Ed Manning in the chair. Mr. Ken McKee of Imperial Films was present to demonstrate a new type of projector for schools, and showed a short review on one of their projectors. Messrs. F. Poese, C. May, P. Guenard and Miss A. Grieve were appointed as representatives to attend the District meeting to be held in Lougheed on March 1st. A very entertaining program was presented during the evening by the pupils of Mrs. Savi's room. A financial report was read on the wheat drive held, showing a satisfactory result. Members of the H. & S. A. wish to thank all those who attended. At the conclusion of the meeting a delightful luncheon was served by the lunch committee

Otto rink, composed of K. Mattsson, Josephine Thorpe, Madeline Donovan and Marie Keegan, entered the Lougheed bonspiel last week and brought home second prize in the Grand Challenge.

Mrs. Alec Redman attended a meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture held in the Bessborough Hotel in Saskatoon recently.

Surveying The North

FRONTIERS HAVE ALWAYS BEEN A CHALLENGE to the people of this country, and much of the early history of Canada concerns the opening up of new areas to the West until the land was settled from coast to coast. For many years past the unknown areas have been to the north rather than to the west, and there has been a movement of population in that direction to settle farm land and country suitable for mining, fishing and lumbering which lies north of the trans-continental railway lines and the larger centres of population. The uninhabited areas of the Canadian north have always held great interest for many people, both because of the possibilities of finding wealth there, and because of interest in exploring the nature of that little-known part of the dominion.

• • • • •

Much Learned In Short Time

Most of those people who have become familiar with the Canadian north are enthusiastic about the potent allure of developing its natural resources and about its climate. Now, travel is terrific and visitors are helping to add a great deal to our knowledge of little part of the country. Actual photography has been introduced on a mass of surveying in the north, and in this manner much is being learned in a relatively short time regarding the geography of areas which have not yet been explored by white men. Similar conditions prevail in other parts of the world. At the University of Toronto recently told a gathering of Canadian defence ministers that the Royal Canadian Air Force has entered nearly new northern territory and accumulated data which will be a gold-mine of information regarding that part of the country which is of interest both for civilian purposes and for defence should it ever be necessary.

• • • • •

May Prove A Great Asset

Col. Wilson drew attention to the fact that a mountain range in Northern British Columbia, some of the Rocky Mountains have been found more 3,500 miles north of Ottawa, and that an island has been discovered in the Arctic which is larger than Canada's smallest province. He also pointed out that in Baffin Island Canada has an area larger than the British Isles about which very little is known. In addition to the survey of new land, the R.C.A.F. has been able to provide scientists with a great deal of information regarding the pre-Cambrian shield, that brings tons of land bordering on Hudson's Bay which is rich in minerals and of great interest to students of geology. While exploration from the air does not supply all the detail which is gathered in a land survey, it is estimated that by the use of air photographs a geographical survey of the entire north could be made in three years, while the same survey by foot would take 300 years. Knowledge of the nature of the land in the north is essential if that part of the country is ever to be opened up, and information gathered in the normal survey will doubtless prove of great value in future plans for development in the far northern areas.

No Royal Livestock Fair For Westerners

WINNIPEG—Western Canada will not have its own royal livestock exhibition this year, according to the Western Canada Association of Exhibitions convention here adopted a report by Dean Grant MacEwan of the University of Manitoba, which did not favor the plan for a western Royal fair.

Prepared in conjunction with western exhibition managers, the report said that the Regina fair was a success but "not to be taken as a criterion for the future."

The report of a public poll conducted by William Bradley of Saskatoon showed that 74 per cent. of the breeders exhibitors and public workers in agriculture favored a western fair along the lines of the Canadian Royal winter fair. However, the convention report said that while favoring a show, the majority thought of it as a desirable luxury, not as a necessity, and should be provided if and when facilities could be considered adequate.

Canada's Coal Production Up

OTTAWA Canadian miners dug more coal in 1946 than in any year since the big wartime output record set in 1942.

The bureau of statistics said 1946 coal production in Canada totalled 16,727,000 tons compared with 15,980,000 in 1945 and 18,865,000 in 1942.

Alberta produced 8,054,000 tons against 8,090,000, British Columbia and the Yukon 1,772,000 against 1,764,000 and Saskatchewan 1,566,000 against 1,521,000.

Exports in 1946 came to 31,050,000 tons, compared with 30,564,000 in 1945.

Annual Meeting of Shareholders
The Royal Bank of Canada

Sydney G. Dobson, President, declares private enterprise the very basis of Canada's progress and freedom — Right to take risks and reap rewards the major motivating force in country's development — "Socialism and free enterprise are incompatible, which liberty is doled out like social security benefits".

James Muir, Vice-President and General Manager, reports new high records in field of Canadian Banking — Royal Bank assets exceed $2,322,989,000 — Deposits made new Canadian record of $2,067,486,000 — Profits moderately higher — $4,000,000 added to Reserve Fund.

The threat to personal freedom inherent in the Socialist and Communistic philosophies, and the high premium on Canada's future were emphasized at the annual meeting of the Shareholders of The Royal Bank of Canada on the 17th instant, before the largest gathering in the bank's history, capitalists and employees from all parts of the Dominion being present, as well as the largest number of bankers ever to attend a bank meeting in the Bank's 116 years of existence. Delegates flew in from North American centres to be present at the meeting, the greatest number ever to be present, and the largest number ever to be entertained by the bank.

Under this system people think and work hard because they share in reasonable rewards. The need of the world today is for a country where men are free to invest their money, to think and work, and how hard they shall work.

The anti-capital economic philosophies of Socialistic the idea persists that dictators or bureaucrats can arrange the lives of people better than people can do it for themselves. Capitalism, on the other hand, says that individuals should be free to express their abilities and thereby bring about a better standard of living and a better country for all.

"Our system hinges on initiative, on courage to invest capital, the right to take a reasonable profit from such enterprises as are successful and the obligation to stand losses which may be incurred in enterprises which fail.

THREAT TO FREEDOM

Socialism and Communism do not seek to make the best of people's lives and enterprise. On the contrary they presume is to level all people by dragging down those who might have superior attainments. They need a strong centralized government with control over all activities of the economy. They are not systems of freedom, but of rationed security. In which liberty is doled out like social security benefits. Incentives are lost, and individual initiative is smothered. Elimination of waste and profit remain unexpected, because jobs are assured without regard for efficiency or performance. The ambition of men declines to doing just as much as has to be done and no more. Progress is sacrificed to a dwindling of savings—and there are averages somehow arrived at on to be well within the reach of the least progressive. Promotion on merit is abandoned in favour of promotion on turn. Skilled workers receive very little more than unskilled workers. It is only natural that such a state of affairs should drive the best brains out of a country.

"I believe in equality, so long as it is equality of opportunity in education, careers and public life. Socialism is a force which holds back, while enterprise is a force which propels us forward, and gives men and women a chance to display their talent and their worth."

FOREIGN TRADE

While Canada's export figures had shown satisfactory gains during the past few months, Mr. Dobson warned that, "there is nothing in our foreign trade picture today about which we can afford to be complacent.

"Our present export business is being maintained to a large extent by artificial expedients in the form of credits from Canada and the United States. To realize our position we need only imagine what would be the state of our commerce—and the standard of our standard of living if the Economic Recovery Programme and our own loans to Europe were suddenly to cease.

"It is true that we can examine our rising export business of the past few months with certain satisfaction. Last October saw us strike a new high record in domestic exports, both in total and in shipments to the United States. Our total in the first 11 months of 1946 was $1,000 million higher than in the corresponding period of 1945.

Turning to domestic affairs Mr. Dobson noted that while the pressure of demand has tended to push prices steadily higher, there has been a levelling off in the rate of increase.

PRICES

"It is with regard to prices", he said, "that the manufacturer and the business man have their greatest worries. No matter how they balance increased labour costs with technical advance, and other increased costs with prevention of waste, they are driven, in spite of all their ingenuity to raise prices to their customers.

"It seems to me that those who fear that wages are ill-advised when they rush into demands which are planned to give them an immediate advantage through increased wages, with losing sight of the fact that there is an important long-term aspect to be considered. How much money a worker makes in fair buying power is not how much he or she may, and if he is to buy anything at all present 63 branches outside Canada, and, in addition to this direct representation which it carries New York, London, Paris and most South American countries as well as the Caribbean areas, we have unusually extensive correspondent relations with banks throughout the world. Our bank is in a preferred, if not unique, position to facilitate, as it has for many years facilitated, Canada's foreign trade activities.

NEED FOR ENTERPRISE

"Whatever the method for Canadian business in the short run, our long-run problem is one of enterprise. For our economic fortunes as a nation depend, not on contriving short run ups and downs, but on our tremendous wealth in natural resources. Of course, natural resources are of little use unless they are developed. And I agree heartily, therefore, with what the President has just said about the need for ambition and enterprise.

"We Canadians might appraise ourselves and our possibilities a little higher than we are inclined to do. No country on earth has a future that promises to surpass or even to equal ours. Wherever we look at that fact some Canadian voice must speak out, reminding us both of the greatness of our resources and the responsibility that rests upon us to take a mature and an ardent view of Canada's capacity for economic development. Then, surely, a breed of courageous, clear-sighted and conscientious men will arise who will balance acutely afraid of the fact that we are in duly bound to develop our resources and endowments and deal with them in our day for the greater good of generations of Canadians yet to come.

PRAISE FOR STAFF

"It is no secret that public opinion of the bank is formed by and large by those dealing with the staff, and so the Royal Bank's prestige in many respects depends on how—for it is through them that the bank in the public mind. I don't know what is good, but, as indifferent in all modesty, I feel I can properly say that the bank is held in the highest esteem, not only in Canada, but in the many countries where we have branches.

"We have a large organization, 10,047 men and women, and if there is sometimes a tendency for members of the staff to feel that they are but very small cogs in a vast machine, I ask them to dismiss the thought, for every single job in the bank is important — every single job must be well done. That our staff, both men and women, are discharging those important duties with untiring efficiency and in good spirit is properly exemplified in the fact that the successful conduct in this year's Annual Report is in no small measure due to their efforts. The Executive are fully aware of this—and acknowledge it gratefully.

"We have reason to be proud of our staff, and on their behalf I can tell the shareholders, the public, and Canada that they can all rely on the knowledge that the members of the staff will endeavour to continue to serve them well—with efficiency—with accuracy — and with friendliness."

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS

Mr. James Muir, Vice-President and General Manager, reviewed the bank's 1946 Annual Report and noted that new high water marks in the bank's progress had been established during 1946. Assets had topped $2,322,989,000 — the largest figure ever reached. The bank's liquid assets equalled 74% of all liabilities to the public. Commercial loans in Canada had also increased during the year, on account of connections and clients as well as the fulfillment of the additional needs of old customers." Mr. Muir also noted a further substantial increase in the number of depositing clients and total deposits of $2,067,486,000, an increase of $123,363,000 over the previous year, and a new high water mark in the history of the bank. Earnings had been moderately higher, and in addition to providing for the customary dividends including taxes of $3,136,000 and increased dividends for Shareholders, and enabled the bank to transfer $4,000,000 to the Reserve Fund which now totalled $44,000,000. This left a carry forward at Profit and Loss Account of $1,322,000.

AID TO TRADE

The important role played by the Royal Bank's extensive system of foreign branches in furthering Canada's trade was stressed by Mr. Muir. "We have had a half-century's experience in this regard," he said. "Our oldest branch outside of Canada is in Newfoundland, and still in operation, is that in Havana, Cuba, opened fifty years ago this spring. Apart from those in Newfoundland, we have at present 63 branches outside Canada, and, in addition to this direct representation which carries New York, London, Paris and most South American countries as well as the Caribbean areas, we have unusually extensive correspondent relations with banks throughout the world. Our bank is in a preferred, if not unique, position to facilitate, as it has for many years facilitated, Canada's foreign trade activities.

A Message to CITY AND TOWN EXECUTIVES

Larger cities and towns are discovering that parking is developing into a serious problem. In many places, parking on main streets and highways obstructs traffic, discourages shopping, and increases the hazard to both motorists and pedestrians.

Our study of this problem indicates that the solution lies in providing OFF - STREET PARKING accommodation — convenient for citizens and attractive to visitors.

We respectfully suggest that municipal councils and other public bodies give consideration to solving this problem in the interests of their communities. The A.M.A. will be glad to furnish all information it has available on this subject.

NO END TO LOVE

"There's No Past And No Future. There's Only Now."

By LILA LENNON

MARTHA settled herself in the comfortable chair and glanced around the attractive room appreciatively. She leaned across the table and spoke softly. "This is a lovely place, Jim. Your surprise is wonderful!" Jim beamed. "Nothing is too good for you, Martha, even after twenty-five years."

Martha touched his hand gently. "You've always said that, haven't you. And, it has been a wonderful twenty-five years." Jim patted her hand and cleared his throat. "We'd better order."

The melodic strains of a Strauss waltz drifted over the room and Martha's foot tapped the floor. Jim groaned. "I know the signs, let's dance."

Martha protested feebly. "But your food, darling it'll get cold." Jim stood up. "Many's the time we've let good food get cold, just so we could dance together. This is no exception. Come on, let's dance!" They swung into the crowd and Martha thought, it could be thirty years ago when we were young and foolish. She sighed a little. Breathless Martha sat down and picked up her fork. "See," she said triumphantly, "I told you our food would get cold!"

Jim nodded. "Of course, but after all these years, I'm used to it." He smiled at her, and she smiled back contentedly. She watched the dancing people, then roamed across the table and touched Jim's hand. "Look, Jim, that couple over there." Jim looked up and asked, "Where?"

"There." Martha pointed. The tall dark-haired young man and the little girl. There, right in front of the piano now."

"Do you know them?" he asked "No, silly, but I've been watching them I suppose you'll say I'm crazy, but they remind me of us when we were young. They have danced every dance, so their food must be getting cold, too."

Jim laughed. "Such deduction." he teased But his eyes were interested, and he watched them too.

Martha squeezed his hand. "Look Jim, see how he holds her. Every once in a while he moves away to look at her. They don't seem to be aware of anything or anyone, but each other. We were that way too, remember?" Jim nodded, smiling "Of course I remember!" They sat silently watching the young couple The man held the small slender girl closely, and their bodies moved in perfect unison to the soft, sweet music. When it stopped, they looked at each other and moved off the floor, arm in arm.

Martha raised her fingers to her grey hair "Oh, Jim, I can't remember how I looked when I was young and you used to say, 'Hello, Beautiful'!"

Jim took her hand. "You're still beautiful, you always will be." He pressed her hand gently, and she held on to his fingers. The music began again and Martha said, "Look, there they are again." The young couple swung into a rhumba and finished, laughing and breathless. Martha's tone was wistful. "They're having such fun!"

"We did too, remember?" Jim asked. Martha smiled. You know I do!" She turned to watch the couple on the floor again The man pulled the girl close to him and she leaned her head against his chin. He bent and said something to her

"I'll bet he's telling her he loves her," Martha observed. Jim threw back his head and laughed aloud "Oh Martha, you're still an incurable romantic!" "Is that so?" she replied tartly. "Well, you're a sloppy sentimentalist, and you know it!" They laughed together.

Jim pulled out his watch. "Time to go," he said. "Yes, I know." Martha replied. She glanced again at the couple on the floor.

"This has been a perfect evening, Jim. You know, somehow, seeing that young couple and thinking back made it even more perfect. It makes me feel as if there's no end to love ... they're us, all over again!" She laughed a little shakily. "Do you think I'm silly, Jim?"

Jim stood up. He too looked at the other couple. "No, I don't think you're silly," he said, as they went out. "I know just how you feel, darling."

Back in the dining room, the tall dark-haired young man shoved his sleeve back and looked at his watch

"Time to go, darling," he said quietly.

"Yes, I know" she replied.

He sighed. "Where does the time go?"

The girl turned her head. Sudden tears wet her eyes. "I don't know I just know that when I'm with you there's no past and no future. There's only now and you."

He reached over and pulled her arm through his. Their fingers entwined tightly, and they sat silently

She sighed, and shook her head a little, "I'm like Cinderella; the clock strikes, and back I go."

"I, too," he said quickly.

"Yes," she said quietly. "You go back to your home and I go back to my life, and no future for us together, ever."

"Don't," he begged She looked at him and said simply, "I love you darling." He leaned over and kissed her, gently.

She picked up her bag and gloves and arm in arm they walked through the doorway. Behind them, the red velvet curtains swung together with a silent finality

Barley Growers Lost $2,000,000 By Mistakes Last Fall

WINNIPEG—Because many barley farmers failed last fall to adapt threshing methods to dry-weather conditions, the prairie provinces lost $2,000,000 worth of grain too badly bruised for malting and brewing, estimates Prof. A. G. McCalla, Edmonton plant science professor. Speaking in Winnipeg when the third annual national barley competition ended, he emphasized many farmers were over-confident and threshed too closely the brittle grain, after the extremely wet previous fall with its tough, resistant hulls.

Starts Survey Of Uranium Deposits

REGINA—Northern Saskatchewan will play host to a miniature "Klondike" expedition this winter as a result of mining activity which is shaping up around the newly-discovered uranium deposits at Black Lake, east of Lake Athabasca.

The expedition of surveyors plans to fix exact boundary lines of concessions allotted to various mining companies last fall.

An advance plane-load of supplies has been flown into the area and a cache has been established near the outlet of the Fond du Lac River. The party will depend on the Saskatchewan Government Airways to bring in food and equipment. More caches will be established as the men move further into the area to be surveyed, extending their lines of communication and supply. It is hoped to complete the survey by early spring

Forecast Big Wheat Crops

OTTAWA—Big world wheat crops for 1948 are forecast by the Bureau of Statistics.

The bureau said in its monthly review of the world wheat situation that it saw a "distinct" possibility of substantial world wheat supplies this year, barring adverse weather.

It noted that weather already has lowered the wheat harvest in Argentina, where bad November frosts and prolonged drought have reduced crop estimates some 100,000,000 bushels.

But in Australia, satisfactory maturing weather has brought a crop now estimated at below last year's crop but still 20,000,000 above the 1933-39 average.

The bureau said Canada's spring wheat plantings likely will increase in western Canada. Current lower prices for flaxseed and rye may divert acreage from these crops to wheat.

Parrots have voice boxes which allow them to imitate voice sounds, but they do not really talk in the sense that the words they say express ideas.

Mrs. M. A Nugent and twin sons Bobby and Jimmy, were visiting at the Chalmers home last week Mrs Nugent is Mrs Chalmer's sister

Three rinks from here took in the Alliance Bonspiel. We haven't the per cent, but do know that Bobby Monk and his helpers won first in the Chinese. All Bert's rink is still playing at this writing in the finals of the Merchants, so we'll say he won first and if he didn't we'll always say he should have; the other rink, that of Ralph Cooper made the mistake of taking a maiden 9 iron when they should have stood on the putter and as a result got nothin'.

Misses Janet Beairsto and Beverly Canty were Sunday visitors with Mrs. Art Muehlestein at Strome.

Mrs. Jerry Hilliard of Camrose who has spent the past three weeks here, returned to Camrose on Sunday in care you've forgotten, Mrs Hilliard is the former Hattie Eberhardson.

Mrs. E. Overbo and daughter of Kinsella spent a few days in town last week.

Well, today it looks as though the cold weather has decided to hold sway for awhile. We have had almost two weeks of pretty tough weather with the storm of last Friday forming the climax. It appears that most roads have now been plowed open and the traffic is again moving smoothly

Mr. Wilkie whom Bill hadn't seen since 1918. It's meeting friends on occasions like this that make us sing and realize this world isn't so large after all said and done.

Stokke (3rd), H Probst (2nd) and Art Black (lead). The highlight of the event was when the two rinks were drawn against each other, in which game the Stokkink was the winner The defeated curlers do not know by upper respectful that of 15 games the Probst rink won 8 and lost 7. The Stokke rink played 14 games and won 4.

Hardisty Happenings

The annual meeting of the Town of Hardisty and the Hardisty School District No. 1269 was held in the Secretary's Office on Monday, Feb. 14th at 8 p.m. The auditor's reports for 1948 were discussed and passed.

Miss Mileen Crouch is home on a short vacation from Edmonton.

The regular monthly meeting of the School District was held on Feb. 14th following the annual meeting. The accounts were paid and the business put in shape for the new year.

The new fire siren has arrived and present plans call for it to be mounted atop the Red and White Store, with alarm stations at the telephone office and Cecil Hotel lobby.

The new tank for the fire fighting equipment has arrived and is now being made ready and mounted on the truck.

Mr. John D. Morris of Hardisty was successful in winning the 7th award in the 15 bushel Registered Seed Class for Marquis wheat in a class of 70 entries, at the Seed Fair sponsored by the Calgary Board of Trade sale at Calgary.

Mrs. Bob O'Reirdon is recuperating from a recent operation, visiting with her mother, Mrs. S. Dunn.

Buzy Bone was held at the Louise Thorpe home this week, Mrs. Black assisting as co-hostess. Prizes in cards were won by Mary Black and Marion Draper, after which a delicious lunch was served by their hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Matthews moved to Edmonton Tuesday, returning Wednesday after taking in the Ice Carnival there.

Margaret McPherson is now employed here in the Bank.

Peter Jours was back in town last week renewing acquaintances.

The Hardisty Rebekah Lodge is holding a whist drive, Thursday the 24th of Feb. Proceeds to go towards the Movie Projector for the school. Cards begin at 8:30 p.m.

The hockey game to have been in town last week came to an abrupt halt about half a mile this side of Irma, where our boys spent a couple of hours shovelling snow. A game is scheduled for Monday night of this week. Better luck next time boys.

Larry Clarke of Edmonton was visiting in Hardisty last week end.

Warren Hogle, formerly of Hardisty and who has been clerking in Wetaskiwin, paid us a surprise visit over Sunday, showing up in a rusty man's rig, having taken his final run from Wetaskiwin to Hardisty. You've got us all mixed up Warren. You started at the wrong end.

The Hardisty high school wound up their hospital Saturday, giving audiences some very exciting moments. Winners were as follows Grand Challenge Carl Walker, Citizens: Victor Bronson; Merchants and Last Chance: Jimmy Pen.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Simpson and boys, Wayne and Stanley, and Larry Bone of Edmonton, were the week end guests at Mattoon's.

The Hardisty Ladies are holding a Banquet on Saturday, Feb. 26th, which should prove quite interesting. The Curling Cup trophy of the old club is back in circulation again and will go to the winners of the Grand Challenge. Think you can hold it girls?

The High School Students were prevented from attending the Literary this week by the series of snows and blows.

The Need For Teachers

FOR SOME YEARS THERE HAS BEEN a shortage of qualified teachers in Canada and as a result, standards of education have suffered in some parts of the country. During the war many teachers entered the armed forces or went to work in essential industries. At the same time hundreds of other young men and women who might normally have entered the teaching profession went straight from school to the services or to industry. Since the war ended there has been a continuous drain of teachers to other fields—where the number of those leaving teacher training courses has risen to increase sufficiently to meet the growing demand. At the same time the population has increased steadily and there has been need for more and more staff for both city and country schools.

• • • •

Most Train Many More

Figures made public by the Canadian Education Association in 1946 showed that there was need at that time for 10,500 more qualified teachers in Canada. By 1950, it was predicted that 17,000 more teachers would be required taking into account the normal increase in population during that period. Adding the present deficiency in teachers to that number, the period before 1958 would be for approximately 23,000 more teachers than we have at the present time. A survey conducted by the Education Association also showed that the 66,000 teachers trained in the ten year period between 1939-40 and 1948, or 36,000 less than the number required, left the ranks of teachers during that period amounted to sixty per cent. of the total number trained. On the basis of these figures it was calculated that, if normal requirements are to be filled, between 102,000 and 120,000 teachers will have to be trained here in the next ten years.

• • • •

Situation May Become Acute

These figures show that there will be a need for almost twice as many teachers as were trained in the last ten years, not allowing for any increase in the number leaving the profession. It is clear that unless something is done to attract more men and women to teaching, and such attractions are made sufficiently attractive to compete with those in other professions the situation will become increasingly acute. Teachery salaries have to be given a subject of discussion and it is considered that teachers can be paid for their services in proportion to what is paid to those with similar qualifications in other professions and in industry of all kind to attract and to hold the necessary number of men and women. Some improvement has been made in the last decade in teachery salaries in both city and country schools, but it is obvious that unless the country is to be faced with an increasingly serious shortage of teachers more study and attention will have to be given to the problem of raising the level of conditions so that teaching will be attractive to such a point that there will always be an adequate supply of fully trained teachers. Until that time, educational standards are bound to suffer and the lack of well-trained teachers will leave its mark on future generations of Canadian citizens.

Manitoba Polled Hereford Bull Shipped To N.B.

Hanon M. Coll of Pool's Mills P.O., N.B., now 20 years of age, a few years ago purchased three old run-down farms and is building them up with ground limestone and fertilizer and they are really giving results. In 1948 he harvested 1 100 bushels of oats and barley, 800 barrels of turnips and enough good hay for 60 head of cattle.

In 1945 he bought out the Hereford herd then owned by Mr R. M. Gerow, on Pool Master of Hexton, N B They remained of a bull and two cows with two heifer calves. From that start he now has 20 head of purebred Herefords, 10 of which are now old enough to be breeding cattle.

When attending the Winter Fair held at Amherst, N.B., he met a Polled Hereford bull shown by Dalcastle Farms of Tantramar, N.B. Although just out of pasture, this bull was second in the class in strong breed competition and so impressed Mr. Coll with the feeling that he would like to breed Polled Hereford cattle and do away with the horns. The result of that was the first Polled Hereford bull to go into Nova Scotia and Mr. Coll named the bull Maidon Viscount of Brandon, Manitoba who sold the bull at Tantramar, N.B. for the round

The girls of the United and Anglican Church are on with serve in the lunch room.

The novelty dance last Monday night sponsored by the Elks, drew a fair sized crowd in spite of the cold weather. Those silly little paper hats and other novelties added to the gaiety of the night and of course we must not forget the good old fashioned square dance which was the highlight of the evening. Music was by the Foreyer 5, and everyone reported a grand time.

Bert Kreuffer of Wetaskiwin spent a couple of days in Lougheed.

Frods. McCoy left last Monday for Sheriff where she will begin her duties as Nurse's Aid.

Russell Sullivan returned home last week, having spent the past couple months in various parts of the country.

Oscar Arneson, who has been employed with the Calgary Exploration Co., is home again.

Ina Coughlin spent the past week end in Wetaskiwin.

Miss Margaret Hertel returned home last Saturday night. She will be home a couple weeks during Mrs. Hertel's stay in hospital.

Visitors at the Whitehead home last week end were, Mrs. Davis, Miss Larson, Mr. and Mrs. Bergum and Alf Bakken, all of Hughenden, and Pat Whitehead, Gloria Gordon, Mary McLeod and Rosemary Cookson, of the Sedgewick Town.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Norman (Buster) Brown of Lacombe, a son. Congratulations.

Twenty hopeses is easy money to win Frank, especially when the goose is there all the time and the card work Better split with her at least.

KILLAM CLUB'S ICE SHOW A GRAND SUCCESS

Favored with ideal weather, the Killam Curling Club held a gala ice on Friday the 25th. The evening commenced with a hockey game between Daysland and Killam, which was eventually won by Daysland 4-3 in overtime. In the opinion of this writer this was by far the best game seen here in quite some time in passing it might be mentioned that one spectator got an exciting, or could it be he was not watching from the proper place provided for spectators, for both of the pucks came and broke a couple of ribs. The mercy of escapes and at the moment, but it should be well worth considering.

Following the game everyone went to the spacious curling rink where the Western 4 was dispensing dancing music in their own inimitable style. Dancing on the ice was quite a novelty for both dancers and spectators, and was enjoyed by all. One very prominent citizen in both gave unlimited and civic affairs was seen to be having considerable difficulty in maintaining his equilibrium. It could be the ice was much keener than usual. One sheet of ice had been reserved for a competition called, "Shoot The Button." Here several of the local well known experts of the roaring game pitted their skill against all and sundry in trying to hit the button. It must be recorded they did not live up to their reputation as red and after all the money was paid to persons whose bows were "Straight." One well known third contended he he was very disappointed at his ship made such a poor showing, even going so far as to say that type of draw was becoming known as the !!!!!!! draw.

The prize for the best decorated float went to Miss Angela Van Dorp. Several spot dances were interspersed with the evening's entertainment, leaving much room for speculation for the lucky spots. On one occasion it appeared "Chester" was about to win on one of the hidden spots, but unintentionally or otherwise, he failed to remain long enough in the proper spot to do so. Dancing continued to the wee small hours, and everybody wearing out the Western 4. The proprietors wound the event next morning were that it was a grand evening and a huge success.

16 SEDGEWICK OPEN BONSPIEL DRAWS RECORD 82 RINKS

Termed as the largest entry list in the history of the village, the annual Sedgewick Bonspiel drew a record 82 entries, and with ideal curling weather prevailing was run off in nine days Tuesday saw the grand climax with three finals all being played for 7 p.m.

The local curling club sponsored a combined Wed. evening which was followed by a large number of players.

Productive of some very fine curling and closely contested games, it expressed satisfaction with the way the spiel was handled. A blizzard during the week spoiled some of the draws, but the time was made up and the spiel ended on schedule.

So closely locked were many of the games that extra ends were played. The Rose-Burt game and the Russel-Smith-Rose game, as well as the R. H. Wells-Brandon games were keenly contested and drew the larger portion of spectators. A feature of the spiel was the all Killam final in the Calgary Power Event, between Sid Ohlenberg and Grant Murray.

MINUTES OF FLAGSTAFF NO. 62 ANNUAL MEETING FOR 1949

Meeting was called to order at 2:30 p.m. by Returning Officer, Mr. J.G Gair. Mr. Gair was elected to take the chair and C. J Brown was asked to take the minutes.

The Reeve, Mr. C. P. Hayes was asked to give a report of the auditor's letter of the M. D. The Reeve stated that possibly the auditors was more interested in the expenditures of the District. Of the expenses, Public Works was one of the heavy items. The amount spent for reworked road work was $10,214.86 with the following results, we had 83½ miles were graveled, with new maintenance and patch-work jobs. We completed and with the crushing out 26 was 47½ miles of new road gravelled and 45 miles of road re-gravelled. It was estimated that the cost per yard for crushing the gravel was 9½ plus depreciation of the unit. The present time there are now 267 miles of gravelled roads and 277½ miles of elevated roads not yet graveled. The M. D. has purchased the following equipment in 1948: One Motor Grader One D16 and Bucket, One Universal Hitch, and received $27,000 as Grant Money. One Power Mower Total Cost was $53,645.97

It was mentioned that the Camrose Board agreed to a supervisor for road work. Mr. Ben Rost, and as for the results had been good.

Mr. Hayes attended the Provincial Government's road grant. While he did not want the Government to dictate to the Council, he remarks, he pointed out that the Council never knew where the M. D. stood on the question of road grants. Reeve M. D., the same size as Flagstaff, had received over $62,000 in grants and as a result the county was a direct grant which the Government paid 100 percent. Flagstaff had received approximately $12,000 on a 60-40 basis, the government held 60 cents to our 40 cents. This was unfair, he stated. Mr. Hayes stated that others were receiving until several statements were published. He had personally seen the Department regarding grants, and no information had been given him regarding grants large grants in order M.D's.

Snow removal had cost the District the sum of over $10,000.

Mention was made of the Prairie Farm Assistance Act. The Council was given to understand that the Act would be workable within the next year.

The school requisition paid for 1948 amounted to over $150,000.00. This was practically $22,000 higher than the previous year, and there no assurance that they wouldn't be higher this coming year.

Mr Gair pointed out with reference to the road grants, that the Association of M. D's. had no representation with the government to say that in his opinion taxation had reached the absorption point, especially School taxes. He stressed the point that the only solution to get lower school taxes was for the government to rightfully assume its full share of the cost, and pay much larger school grants.

The Reeve thought the M. D. was very fortunate in obtaining the services of a District Agriculturist, Mr. Larry Williams. The work of a D.A. is becoming more useful to a Municipal District every year. At the present time he uses the Municipal Office for part of the week. There was a suggestion that the Council should build to the M. D. Office and the government would pay rental for room to accomodate the D. A.

It was moved by Koehli and Seconded by J Gascoyne that the report of the Reeve be accepted. Cd

The financial statement was discussed and the Sec-Treas pointed out that the correct reading for the School unit rates should be as follows: Forestburg, 33 mills, and requisitions, $16,136; Galahad unit rate 27 mills and requisition $7,054; Meeken unit rate 25 mills and requisition

PASSING OF A TRUE PIONEER

In the recent death of Charles Clark, founder and editor of The High River Times, Alberta, since 1905, the West again has lost one, who like many of the pioneer editors, gave their best to the building up of our Western provinces. Those of the younger generation should endeavour to attain the high qualities of such men as Charles Clark, to assure that our provinces are kept on the foundations that they were built on. We stand at attention in honor of a true pioneer who has written "thirty" to this life.

Controlling Disease

IN MEDICAL RESEARCH spectacular discoveries are not frequent. However, there has been steady progress during the years since work was started in this field, and earnest and painstaking labor combined with the vision and imagination of research workers has behind each successful medicine which is passed in the long struggle to overcome disease. Vaccination, inoculation, anaesthetics, antiseptics, and insulin are among a few of the great achievements of medical research which have been of untold benefit to humanity. Through vaccination smallpox has been overcome, through inoculation diphtheria, which used to kill many thousands of children each year has been practically conquered, and through insulin diabetes, which also formerly took a heavy toll of human life, has been brought under control. Likewise pneumonia, which used to be fatal in many cases has been reduced from deadly by the use of drugs which have been discovered in recent years.

* * * * *

Many Brought Under Control

While a number of diseases have been conquered, work is still going on to combat those which constitute a menace to the welfare of humanity. The intensive effort which is now being made to control cancer is well known to most people, but except when it is treated in its early stages, no way has yet been found to successfully cure this widespread and destructive disease. It is encouraging to hear, however, that a drug has been found which is believed to be effective in curing tuberculosis. The recent announcement that the drug, known as dihydrostreptomycin has been used successfully in treating certain forms of the disease, has given encouragement to those who have been fighting it. Canada has been very progressive in providing care for victims of tuberculosis and in enforcing measures to control it.

* * * * *

Annual Toll Very High

The disease, however, is still widespread and takes a large toll of human life annually throughout the world. Recently the World Health Organization reported that between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 people die from it each year. It has been particularly prevalent in Europe since the war, malnutrition and the disruption of normal living conditions generally in many parts of that continent having resulted in the infection of many thousands of people. If the new drug which has been discovered continues to prove effective in curing tuberculosis, it will be of great benefit to mankind at this time, and it will mark another important milestone in the long and difficult struggle which medical research workers are continuously carrying on against sickness and disease.

Gas Line To Coast City Disclosed

CALGARY—Details of a proposed pipeline to transport natural gas from the Peace River district to Vancouver were disclosed here.

Frank McMahon of Calgary, representing the Peace River Natural Gas Company Limited and associated oil companies said the group was willing to construct and operate an 800-mile natural gas pipeline from northern Alberta and northern British Columbia to Vancouver at a cost of $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. The line would be built if sufficient gas reserves were proved.

Jewel Merchant Was No Dope

NEW YORK.—In response to a telephone call, Jack Jacker, 24, a diamond merchant, took $2,000 worth of jewels in a hotel room for display and possible sale.

When he entered the room there was a grabbed him. One held a gun on him while the others took the diamonds.

"What a dope," said one of the men. "You should have known that call was a phony."

At that moment two detectives waiting in the hall entered and called for the bandits to surrender. They did.

New Life Stirring In Oil Centre

(By Ken Kelly, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LLOYDMINSTER, Sask.—Now life is stirring lodey in this oil centre on the Alberta-Saskatchewan border where no producing well ever was drained dry.

Salmon expect rich returns from the 25-square-mile field for two reasons: The west is becoming road conscious and oil companies are looking for new markets for Lloydminster's heavy crude.

Lloydminster oil is a thick, black crude almost like molasses. It has little gasoline or high-grade petroleum products so companies looking for quick returns on costly outlays have paid more attention to other fields.

But, with provincial governments in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba starting road-building programs, Lloydminster crude soon may be in greater demand than ever before. Asphalt, the road-maker's basic material, is easily made from heavy crude.

Another reason is the hope that work on a Trans-Canada highway will open a vast market for road-building materials, particularly asphalt.

A second refinery—now nearly at full production—plans to seek markets far from the town. Consolidated Canadian Refineries Limited is constructing the refinery here.

Natural gas has been the fuel for many wartime cities but economy there is a good outlet for furnace coke as well.

The Canadian Pacific Railways announced recently it planned to change 100 steam locomotives to burn oil instead of coal. And the company will use oil to power Canadian Britain.

Another natural market for bunker fuels is Vancouver, B.C., whose burning shops stop there to take on bunker fuel.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

And then there was the woman who asked her husband, at the start of a bridge game: "Dearest, am I supposed to kick you twice or three times for 'No trumps'?"

"I'm afraid," the professor told the young student, "that your work would be acceptable to no university." said the minister, "and after inspecting the collection, I see that they have come."

"John, I hope I didn't see you smiling at that girl!"

"I hope you didn't, my dear."

"Lady," said the policeman, who had motioned her to stop, "how long do you expect to be held?"

"What do you mean by that question?" she demanded indignantly.

"Well," he replied sarcastically, "there are a couple of thousand other motorists who would like to use the street after you get through with it."

Customer: "What's the charge for this battery?"

Garage Man: "One and one-half volt."

Customer: "How much is that in American money?"

Wolf Packs Killing North's Wild Game

EDMONTON, Alta. — Marauding wolf packs, having killed off much of the wild game in the northern wilderness, are now preying on population areas in search of food.

This was learned recently from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta forest rangers gathered here for a three-day conference.

The rangers explained that the wolves began to leave the bush part years ago big game, and their numbers increased while the game population went down.

Hunger finally forced the wolf packs to venture south and sheep, cows, pigs, horses and dogs fell victim to them.

Settlers kept rifles close at hand at night, the rangers said, ready to rush to the defence of their livestock. In recent weeks, the hunger-driven wolves have come within a few hundred feet of homes to kill livestock.

THRILLS of the ROARIN' GAME

By Bill Good in Vancouver Province

Curling for championships is a pretty serious business for those taking part in provincial bonspiels, but many times champion Frank Avery is inclined to doubt the theory that to be a champion you must train and be on the peak of condition.

Avery says he quit training a long time ago—as long as 12 months ago—as a matter of fact.

The provincial bonspiel at which the Meadowlake boss champion is declared was held at Avery's own door, this time Avery admits he had been set, or what had shaped up to championship rinks in a field of 16, decided he wanted to win the title once more so for the first time in the event he picked up three of the best curlers available: Bill Mortimer, Harvey Anders and Ned Wigington.

On paper, the outfit looked good. "We latched on to Ned and we trailed every night. We ate the best food and we didn't drink anything stronger than buttermilk."

The rink was a miserable failure. For the first time in a score of years, Avery couldn't even bring home a rusty salad bowl.

"Back in 1943 we trained properly," Avery admits now. "The ice was bumped then was in Kimberly so I figured I'd take a look. Dave Gillespie, Fred Stacey and Alex Dickson. We didn't think we were good, but we went to have a good time. We never saw a glass of buttermilk all the time we were there. We went to bed only occasionally, and we thrilled the citizens of Kimberley with some of the best all-night singing they'd ever heard."

That year, the Avery rink won the Cassels the provincial championship. "There was no Dominion playdown that year because of the war, so there's no saying where we'd have ended."

Avery said they had the winning idea in 1943. They were relaxed, full good and curled better.

"So we have the winning system and we changed it but year and every rink in Nelson trimmed us. Served us right."

Frank Avery himself is an outstanding curler who commands respect wherever he plays. Manitoba rinks, reputedly the best in the world, have reason to fear Avery, for he's been a thorn in their sides on a couple of notable occasions.

In 1936 Avery skipped his own rink in the Dominion championships at Saskatoon, and single-handedly was responsible for bringing 4,000 people in the Saskatoon Arena from 8 in the morning until 3 the following morning. Leo Johnson and his Winnipeg rink had trimmed everything in sight, and needed only a win over Avery to clinch the title. But Avery stopped Johnson cold in a never-to-be-forgotten game, and the loss forced a three-way tie between Johnson, Billy Rose, of Sedgewick, Alta., and Tom Ramsay of Kirkland Lake. Rose beat Johnson in the playoff and later disposed of Ramsay. All in accord of Avery.

Johnson, incidentally, has not come close since.

But Avery train at Saskatoon? Avery admitted: training religiously at first, and then relaxing. We did better when we relaxed. We were more relaxed when we beat Johnson." Seems that the curlers were knee-deep in cocktails at a reception for something or other the night before Johnson and Avery were to meet. Avery, having lost a couple of games earlier in the week, was actually out of the running, but was still in a position to cause some consternation for the local favorites.

"Billy Rose came up to me and says, 'Frank, I'd sure appreciate it if you would beat Leo tomorrow.' I told Billy I'd be pleased to oblige."

The rest is history. That tip kept that great throng of people in the rink half the night.

Avery and his rink had done their duty. They were back in the hotel before midnight—relaxing.

TRUSTEES DISCUSS BUDGET

At the meeting of the board of the Killam School Division, held on Feb 16th with all members present, the light agenda allowed the trustees to devote some time to discussion on the budget for 1949. However, final discussion and determination of the budget have been left to the March meeting

Approval was given to the appointment of Mr. E. Lesh as auditor for 1948, as Mr. H. Parvoles, previously appointed, was unable to act The installation of a new furnace in the Lougheed School was also approved.

Mr Gair was appointed as board representative to attend Flagstaff Municipal meetings, and Mr Campbell to act in the same capacity with respect to Camrose M D.

The board approved the appointment of two teachers, Miss M Lobe and Miss L. Marcus. These appointments to take effect May 1st

The purchase of twenty Basswood Wall Ashcan was authorized

In accordance with Section 236 of the School Act, the board decided to request the Minister of Education to grant permission for an additional levy of $950 on Taxable of Hesitor

The next meeting of the board will be held to the divisional office on March 4th next.

M D FLAGSTAFF MEET

[illegible]54.76 After further discussion on the statement, R. Hahn, seconded by E. Koebli, moved that the financial statement be accepted. Carried.

The meeting then threw itself open to discussion.

After a great deal of talk regarding the D. A., he duties and suitable office space for him, E. Koebli moved, seconded by J. Gascoyne that the Council take the necessary steps to accomodate the D. A. Carried.

It was pointed out that a D. A. is now a Weed Inspector. However, he works in conjunction with a Service Board and if a district has to be free of weeds, a Service Board must eventually come.

E. Fowler, seconded by E. Koebli, moved that steps be taken by Council to inaugurate a Service Board. Carried.

The question was asked whether a Councillor could charge for any labor he performed. The Reeve replied that no Councillor could hire himself to do any work and such is not the practice in Flagstaff.

C. Probst moved that requests to be paid at the rate of $1.00 per hour for any labor performed. As no one would second the motion, it was dropped.

The Agricultural Service was discussed in relationship to the Card System. The Reeve stated that the card system was not in force. The Council was waiting to see if the present Session of the Legislature would set up Hospital and Municipal District's Act. If the card system were put into force then anyone in the Municipality, or in the part, might have to change R. As matters stand it was difficult for a Municipality to change, as the surrounding territory was under Flagstaff Health Scheme, and the Municipality was a territory to support a factor. The logical solution would be for the Villages to have a scheme of their own, and then to come in under our scheme There should not be much difficulty in achieving this.

E. Koebli, seconded by L. Isaac, moved that we are satisfied with the present Medical Scheme, however, we do not consider the medical insurance or over-worked. If the Villages could come under the scheme would the Council consider the employment of another Doctor? This would lessen the work of the other Doctors. Cd.

The Reeve mentioned that the Council had been approached on the Health Unit. The Unit consists of a Health Nurse, one or two Health Nurses and a Sanitary Inspector. The Unit renders a preventive service not handling any disease in itself. The audience did not appear interested in this Health Unit, as Flagstaff had all these Medical Services in force.

It may be of interest to ratepayers to know of the activities of our own Hospitals Patients, 1681; Operations, 1035; Major Operations, 263, Births, 173, Deaths, 15, X-Rays 656

At the meeting the R. C. declared that two nominations had been received for Division 4 — A. L. Hardy and A. Severson, the two nominations for Division 6, namely, J. L. Murray and Laird Taxton.

J. L. Murray was elected by acclamation as Representative for the Viking Hospital District.

The Election will be on March 19th and the list of polling places will be published in all local papers.

Discussion of hospitalization continued. S. Williamson wanted to know why ratepayers in the Viking Hospital District could not get the same service for Medical and Hospitalization as the rest of the ratepayers in Flagstaff The Reeve told him, that these people had earned themselves into the Viking Hospital District and until some petition or request was received for the hospitals to enter into Flagstaff's Health Scheme, there was nothing that the Council could do.

The talk swung again to Beer Flows. Councillors Black and Rands gave a short talk on the Rotary Flow Plows which had been shown at the fair. The reports on the work of the Rotary Flows were read W C Dreyer reported that in his opinion the Rotary Flow was good, while J. Armbruster gave a brief talk on the work of the McLeod Flow. Eddie Dueth talked regarding three small plows and put a motion to the meeting that the M. D. would purchase 14 V-Blow Plows at the reasonable price of $250 per plow and distribute them to the ratepayers who would be willing to keep [illegible] on roads open. Motion seconded by G. Probst. Motion lost.

The question was asked what had been accomplished in having the district declared a T.B. free area by the government. The Reeve informed the meeting that the Council had been in touch with the D. A. and the Government was establishing a T.B. cattle free area along the railroads, regions from Edmonton to Calgary and the intention is to expand that wards and embrace every M. D. in time Federal Veterinarians will become available to hasten work. Lack of trained personnel has at present held this work back.

Before closing, Mr. Hayes informed the meeting that the M. D. was losing the services of the Secretary, Cecil Brown, who had been in charge of the office since the formation of the District. This would complete 11 years of work as a Sec Treas for Mr Brown. His resignation had come as a surprise to the Council and had been accepted with regret as from the 15th of March.

Ratepayers acted a great deal of thanks to him for the courteous and obliging manner in which they had been received in the Municipal Office. His work, particularly in helping to inaugurate the Health Scheme had been invaluable to the Council and in his opinion it would be difficult to find a Secretary to better him in any way, and certainly ratepayers would not find one who would be as sympathetic in their troubles. As yet no successor had been appointed There was over two hundred people at the meeting.

The Great New Plymouth
The Elegant
Chrysler

You will soon have an opportunity to inspect in detail the great new cars of the Chrysler Corporation. For the present, we wish to tell you some of the facts behind the story that will be told when we announce our new automobiles.

We sincerely feel a great responsibility to the public when we plan new cars. It has always been our aim to be the first to use the basic needs of the car buyer — and to meet them with imagination in research and engineering, and, at the same time, with common sense. This policy has resulted in such fundamentally sound engineering developments by this Corporation as hydraulic four-wheel brakes, high compression engines, light weight pistons, floating power, fluid drive, safety rim wheels, super-cushion tires and many other advancements.

This same policy of combining creative imagination and common sense was used in designing and engineering our new cars. In them you will find the advances which required imagination in engineering and research, coupled with the practical needs of the Canadian motorist. In these new cars you will find common sense and good taste.

Naturally, you'll be able to see over the hoods, and out of the rear windows. You'll get in and out with ease. Again, there will be room for you all. Seats will be wider, yet the cars will fit into your garage at home. Fender dents won't cost a fortune to fix. You'll be able to change a tire or put on a set of chains. Again, our cars will be easier to drive and park. They'll start faster — they'll stop more quickly.

They will have better performance than any cars we ever engineered, AND THEY LOOK IT. You'll like their style features, their eye-appeal qualities, their distinctive designs.

Our engineers designed these cars from the inside out — first engineering chassis that are safe, comfortable, convenient and restful to drive — then creating beautiful bodies, that reflect the good qualities underneath. Most important of all, we're holding on to the good things that built our reputation with the public.

MARVELUBE HELPS YOU KEEP DOWN TILLAGE COSTS

Here's why...

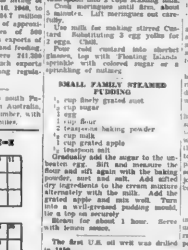
The old lubricating oil in your tractor engine contains dirt which increases engine drag, power wears, and may result in clogged oil filters, thus causing injury to cylinders and bearings.

Refilling with the correct grade of Marvelube for your tractor is good business because—

1 Free flowing Marvelube effectively lubricates moving parts for all farm operations.

2 Marvelube resists heat—does not break down under continuous operation, but protects against wear under day-in, day-out work.

3 Marvelube offers further protection by reducing the formation of carbon and reducing sludge in the crankcase.



Translated into cash benefits for you, the above simply means that frequent servicing with Marvelube lubricants gives your tractor the extra power and smoothness which speeds up all tractor-powered operations on your farm.

Marvelube helps cut down operating costs, aids in avoiding unnecessary replacements of parts, and keeps your tractor on the job longer.

Farmers To Benefit From Surplus Seed

REGINA — Because of a surplus of registered seed, Canadian farmers this year are being offered a bargain in better business practices The surplus was created by an unexpected drop in Europe for registered seed, not because the overseas buyer had all the registered he desired, but chiefly because of his lack of foreign exchange

To bring this surplus down to proper level, registered seeds of many kinds and varieties are now being offered at bargain prices and the Canadian Seed Growers' Association is conducting a campaign to acquaint farmers with the value of registered seed

Apart from all that, registered seed itself is an interesting story and one worth the time of the farmer who knows that it be wise to improve quality of his cattle, sheep, hogs, poultry, he must use pedigreed stock.

It is exactly the same story with seed.

What the professional plant breeders in Canada have in the way of seed is known as the foundation stock These small handfuls of foundation stock are multiplied by a few hand-selected members of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association.

Progeny of foundation stock is called stock seed and every year this is multiplied to one-fenced elite seed growers in carefully supervised by the association and by Dominion seed products division.

The comparatively small quantity of elite seed is then issued to skilled members of the Canadian Seed Growers' association who, under the same supervision, multiply it into much larger quantities of registered seed that will be of practical use to farmers.

At the same time they produce in such registered seed the trumpet-to-variety and high quantities found in elite seed and foundation stock.

After being cleaned by special machinery, every single sack of registered seed is inspected by plant products division officers for freedom from other kinds of grain, weed seeds and other impurities.

Because of this, registered seed naturally commands a premium over commercial grain. For its part, however, it improves the quality of field crops, thus helps Canada's agricultural produce command a premium over that of other countries of production.

It is not necessary for a farmer to purchase large quantities of registered seed. Only enough to provide clean summerfallow or other clean seed every year in all that is necessary.

LOW-NUMBERED LICENCES FOR MANITOBA MOTORISTS

WINNIPEG — Low numbers for motor licence plates, once highly sought after by politicians and others, will be among the few remaining for sale by the general of Manitoba when 1950's plates are issued. They will run 1A1 to 1A999, 2A1 to 2A999 and so to 9A999 This is the series will repeat, using B, C, D, etc., until the demand for licences is satisfied.

SNOWSHOEING FOR HORSES—Quebec has had so much snow that horses cannot work in the bush without special snowshoes like this horse wears at Hérmon, Whitsed there, horses Monday in the deep drifts.

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS

"That's Sam"
By JANE BALL

Sam is quite a man; a procrastinatin' fella
There's no danger of him wearin' out
He's a grand old and mellow.
He never done a thing today that he can do tomorrow.
Ho Sarah, his long sufferin' wife knows to her sorrow.

"I'll fix the latch on the pantry door, Mary—
When it rains.
I'll fix the hole in the cellar floor, Mary—
When it snows
I'll set awhile and rest my weary bones
Ain't you glad I don't lead like Old Bill Jones."

Sam is not lazy; he just hates workin' for a livin'
Everything will get done if its orders he'll be givin'.
He never does a thing today that can be done tomorrow.
Ah Sarah, his long sufferin' wife knows to her sorrow.

"I'll hoe the corn in the fire new lot, Sary—
When it's real.
I'll fix the bug on your old black pot, Sary—
When it's real.
I'll just set awhile and rest my weary bones
And I'm not a loafer like Old Bill Jones"

HEAT EXPORTS TO U.S.S.

Exports of dressed beef and veal to United States, from the lifting of the embargo on August 16, 1948, to the end of 1948, were 54.7 million pounds or the equivalent of approximately 169,170 carcasses of 500 pounds each. In addition exports of beef cattle for slaughter and feeding, in the same period, were 241,300 head. There were no such exports in 1947 due to restricting regulations.

The Fiji islands in the south Pacific, due east of northern Australia, are from 200 to 250 in number, with an area of 7,083 square miles.

Newspapers Of Pioneer Days Were Outspoken

BANKATOON.—Back in 1884, this city's newspapers didn't mince words. In a copy of the "Saskatchewan Herald," dated Aug. 9, 1884, "sufferer" who had written to the newspaper complaining about Saskatoon, was told to "gather manfulness or say your prayers."

Other ingredients failed to drive away his blues, he was told, so by digging a cellar 14 feet by 16 feet in area. Then, said the forthright editor, might provide an excellent cure for "your contagious ailment."

With a note of scorn, the editor added if the corrupt had expected to find "a second edition of Chicago or Montreal. We want men of pluck and spirit out here, able to do help and give their tongues a rest," the paper continued.

The Sentinel was hand-written fortnightly magazine of news, editorials, commentaries and jokes. Before it came into existence, the Saskatchewan Herald was thriving at Battleford.

In a copy dated Sept. 9, 1878, several items appeared in a column headed "Progress". One said, "the mail from the east left Petty half Wednesday, due here in 12 days. During the coming winter the mail for Victoria, Fort Saskatchewan and Edmonton will be entirely by horses instead of by dog train as before."

The west was not without crime at the time. Incidences told of horse stealing, robbery, a traveller gone mad while travelling on the plains and a case of burglar and suicide by poison.

One editor reported that herds of bears were amusing themselves by rubbing against telegraph poles and dragging the wire over the prairie with their barns.

One paper man was supposed to have remarked drily that when he saw a bears rub down a pole, put the bear on his barns and start southward towards Fort McLeod, he thought the government had decided to run a loop in there and had employed the bears to do the work to see if they could not make a better job of it than the other government contractors.

USED WOODEN BALLS

Wooden balls were used in England in the 12th century and continued in use long after the building of modern tabernacles. Coal roads and cars appeared in the 16th century, according to the British Railroads

Notes From N.H.L.

He's In Stitches

Jack Stewart, Detroit Red Wings' veteran defenceman, is the stitch king of the N.H.L. The rawboned Detroit bunky has taken a total of 220 stitches in his face during the 8's years in the National League.

Another Record For Richard

Maurice Richard is gradually taking over all the N.H.L. scoring records. When he scored his 200th N.H.L. goal on January 15, to become the 17th player in modern hockey to perform this remarkable feat, he did so in less games than any other player. It took the hard-shooting Canadien winger exactly 366 League games to score his 200 goals. If he can continue anywhere near his scoring pace to date, he stands an excellent chance to threaten Nels Stewart's record of 333 goals. Stewart's 333 goals were all scored during regular scheduled play Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat, fellow Canadien forward of yesteryear, each scored 270 goals in National League play.

A Dog Beatby Night

Sometime in March, Doug Bentley of outstanding Chicago Black Hawk forward, will be honored by Chicago fans with a "Doug Bentley Night". He will be the first player to be so honored in the history of the Chicago club. Now in his tenth season with the Hawks, Doug has been a Chicago favorite right from the time he broke in with the team, in the fall of 1939. The Doogs fan club, Bentleyites, Sidelizers, Tomahawks and Rankers are all assisting in this special night.

Lone Ranger Rookie

New York Rangers had seven rookies in their lineup for many games. Montreal Canadiens on January 30, this mark constitute a record in modern hockey. The seven rooks were Al Rankley, Fred Shero, Rick Mehalski, Pentti Lund, Dunc Fisher, Clint Albright and Jackie Gordon.

SCHOOL BOYS DYE HAIR TO START NEW HAIR STYLE

MADISON, Wisconsin. — High school boys dyed their hair startling colors to set a new version of male hair styles. School officials joined the parents in protest, but the boys said they couldn't change again quickly. The dye is cast," explained a spokesman.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

PSYCHOLOGY FOR MOLLIE

Mollie Haines Had Taken To Dreaming And Looking Starry-Eyed.

By ANNA E. WILSON

JEB HAINES had always held that if there was no reason for a man to stop earning just because he was getting old. Jeb was middle-aged, thinnish and a trifle bald. Right now, he was thinking of his daughter, Mollie who was going round with young Jack Davis and had taken to dreaming and looking starry-eyed.

Not that Mollie wasn't a sensible girl as well as being pretty or that he had anything against Jack, who was taking engineering in the same college in which Mollie was studying for her art's degree but there was Jack's father, Caleb Davis, who worked down at the bottling works with Jeb John and Caleb belonged to the Volunteer Fireman's Brigade that supplemented the regular fire department and helped out nights. The equipment had been supplied by the bottling works where Cal worked, and the men met every Thursday to practise life-saving and fire-extinguishing and to play a game of checkers or cards and drink a few cokes in the room over the station afterwards.

Cal wasn't popular with the other men. He was always red-faced, his booming voice carried all over the station and it was loud in the praise of Cal. "And I said to the president," Jeb heard him say, "it's not that I'm not satisfied with the accounting department but the money isn't what a man who's taken a full course in accounting down at the James Business School deserves. Right to expect!"

Jeb always played a game of checkers with Cal while the other men played cards. Cal always won. He played, Jeb thought, like a man trying to grab a fistful of money. Everything he did was like that. Cal was nothing but a bottler in the local plant and he would never seen the president of the works for years, or the owner either, for that matter. It just seemed that Cal was a natural show-off and thinking of him, as he surreptitiously removed a book from Mollie's stack on the library table, Jeb frowned.

Jeb rejoined Mollie's supper dishes with Mrs. Jeb, himself, had little education, having had to leave school in the fifth grade and go to work to help out at home. He'd married Mollie's mother young and their first years had been hard years, but happy years; but he'd promised Mollie's mother to do his best for Mollie and had entered her in the college as soon as she came out of high school.

Jeb leafed through the books rapidly. Psychology. He wouldn't know much about that, and, after reading a few pages, Jeb gave an indignant snort. Psychology was one of the few operations that the very people talked about themselves had little to do with their real feelings. When they were loud and boastful, it was just because they were unsure of themselves. Jeb thought of Cal Davis and chuckled, then he very promptly put Mollie's book aside.

Jeb didn't play checkers with Cal on Thursday night because he was called away to his sister Ettie's oldest girl's wedding and spent his holiday out with the farm work for the next six weeks. When he came back to the fire station, Cal wasn't there, but after practice was over and he had seated himself at his favorite table for a game of checkers, Cal came lumbering in. Jeb stared. Cal was wearing a new suit with a clean shirt and tie. His cheeks were red and his eyes were steady and honest and a little humble as he held out his hand. Cal was the first game with much tender care. "Lost you badly, 'Pi do some, Cal, my self sort of changed your ways. Things go all right down at the bottling works? Looks like you've dressed pretty fancy for a day's work."

Cal's face lit up. "I'm not a bottler anymore. His cousin heads up Mr. Appleton, the head of the accounting department, came into the office. Called me in and asked me if I'd like a job in the office. Says I'm doing well, too, and will soon be assistant to the chief."

Jeb took a long drink from his coke. "Nice many years ever dirty hat that much ambition, Cal. Must be, you had a pretty strong motive for wanting to go up among the men."

Cal's face reddened like a school boy's. "Well, it was like you say, Jeb. My boy, Jack, is working his way through for engineering and it did me a heck hard on the boy to have a job, never working in the bottling plant. Not that Jack ever complained. Jack says a man that's worked steady all his life and brought home his pay, a shoveling snow for the city when the plant shut down, has a right to be his pride stand in the way of his family's health when he had to get a little help from the city in the depression. Jack says that's being a stable character and a good citizen and one the country should be proud of. But it wasn't good for Jack. Gosh Fanny's boy, Fred, takes the same course Jack does and he says Jack's been going round with a college girl. Women set quite a store by jobs with fancy clothes and maybe it would go against Jack's chances with the girl having a father working at the bottling, so I took this course over at the school and Mr. James said I had real aptitude for it, and now," Cal smiled humbly into his coke, "I'm right in line to be assistant."

Jeb set up another game. "I got a girl in college myself, Cal. She's a pretty wise lot, these young ones. I didn't have many advantages myself but I like to look over Mollie's college books once in a while. Now this psychology, it's sort of interesting."

Cal smiled gaultily and leaned over to speak in a voice hardly above a whisper. "It's History that gets me Jeb. I like to take a peek at it when Jack isn't around."

Jeb opened the door into the B-lunny presently and found himself alone. He dropped into a comfortable chair before the fire and removed his shoes Mollie's books were still on the table and he settled himself comfortably with the History of Civilization, then decided to thank of Mollie instead.

Funny, he didn't worry about Mollie anymore. A man who's Caliber could learn accounting when he was over fifty and succeeded at it too—well, Mollie was doing all right for herself.

Deep in the History of Civilization, he chuckled. Maybe these youngsters knew a lot of fancy things that he and Cal didn't know but he could honestly have found out what a fine character Cal really was — if he hadn't owned the Bottling Works.

Coal Output For 1948 Up

OTTAWA.—Canadian miners dug more coal in 1948 than they had any year since the big wartime output reached a peak in 1942.

Imports in 1948 came to 21,856,000 tons, compared with 20,564,000 in 1947.

Alberta produced 8,074,000 tons against 7,000,000 in British Columbia and the Yukon 1,772,000 against 1,764,000 and Saskatchewan 1,506,000 against 1,571,000

POULTRYMAN FINDS A LITTLE NIGHT LIFE FOR HENS PRODUCES RESULTS

BUDBURY, Man.—A little night life sometimes can be a good thing for hens, says John W. Whitworth, poultryman. Asked to supply a hen for a scene in a local production of the play "Dress Rehearsal", Whitworth decided to oblige. He took a hen home for the performance, and he found it had laid the egg in the hen house next morning. When the hen was approached again Whitworth, out of curiosity, donated a different hen. Again the hen had become productive. Now Whitworth would like to give the treatment to several other non-layers but the play has concluded its run.

Lougheed Facts

The regular prayer meeting of the Church of the Nazarene was manned by Bill attended in past week. The meeting was held in the church and Mr Henry Metz, formerly of Lougheed, was guest speaker.

A week ago as I wrote up the local Lougheed Facts, the temperature was about 25 below and the thought of venturing into the great outdoors made me shiver in my boots. Today, however is a completely different story. The sun is shining, the day is warm and we believe that spring is on its way once more. Everyone seems to be in town again. Some very fresh faces were seen for a couple many weeks have finally showed their way out into civilization again. And everyone is happy.

Mrs R. Pope returned from it's been Mo last week, where she had been visiting with friends.

Mr and Mrs. Robt. Coughlin from Tuscola spent last week here.

Mr. Pope of Edmonton was here last week on business.

Miss Flo Barton who has been living in the Vermilion Valley has returned into town where she will remain during the remainder of the summer months. Miss Barton is living in the house formerly occupied by Mrs. Green.

Robert Chadwick returned home from Seattle last Monday. Mrs. Chadwick is still in the States with her aunt and will be coming back sometime in March.

Mrs Ray Van Meer and children of Lac Des Arcs spent a week's holiday at the A. Shoberg home.

We are sorry to report that little Tommy Probst is a patient in the Hardisty hospital. We hope to see him back again real soon Tommy.

The Lougheed hospital got away to a good start that Tuesday with a total of 32 visits from Killam and Hughenden. The number was favorable which made the games the ice and hockey both on the ice and behind the glass. As usual we notice of the "behind the glass" curlers worked harder than those on the ice for the husbands were curling half as good as wife he'd win all the prizes. Between curling hamburgers and buns, drinking coffee, gossiping with friends and keeping eyes on rocks, we sure both curlers and onlookers will agree with me that the bonspiel was very successful. Watch the paper next week for results.

Word has been received here of the death of Mr. Lonie Nelson which occurred in Wetaskiwin on Monday.

Mr and Mrs. Gosnell visited at the J. Chevrier home in Killam, Sunday Mrs. Howard Smith left this week for Calgary to attend the Rebekah Assembly. While there she will visit with her sister.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. R.—

I have had an article handed in to me with the request that I reprint it in the column. The gentleman who handed it to me seemed just a bit worried as to how I would receive the article, and the cause of his worry will become apparent to you as you read the article. However, I put him completely at ease by informing him that after twenty odd years in my business it took more than the unusual to upset me.

Here is the article in question, and my brothers who have been deprived by nature of fuzzy growth on the area between and above the ears, as I have been, can draw their own conclusions, just as I have done:

"At first glance a gentleman with a bald pate strikes the western mind as one possessed either of exception- al intelligence or of an exceptionally jovial disposition. It depends very largely upon whether the pate is un polished or polished and whether it is accompanied by a long grave face or a face devoid of brain and good fellowship. It never strikes us that a bald head may be one of the outward tokens of long continued study. It has been left to a Japanese specialist to reveal, after ten years of scientific study, that every typical and habitual criminal is bald. Upon receipt of this news I took a hasty look around at all my bald-headed acquaintances who for years have been unaccounting with much scorn either as superior intellects or as genial companions, and I confess that subject to further scouring in the light of this new discovery, each of them is a suspicious looking guy. It is quite useless for them to pro- test that the Japanese have been over very hairy, nor can they persuade me that the Japanese criminal exists only in fantasy. All the world criminals of his experience are bald. All have now henceforth under suspicion. Now that we come to think of it, are not most of those hi- laimous heroes on parade in some of our waxworks either extremely hairy or quite decidedly bald? In future we must walk warily in the company of the bald. But I do wish the Japanese expert had kept his warning to himself. It will spoil our Christmases, for bald pates never sparkle so innocently and as gaily as at and around the Christmas dinner table."

* * * *

There you have it. Bald as I am, I think the above is a lot of baloney. The guy who wrote it is either one who have lost his wife to another man (presumably bald), but that can't be for what woman wants a bald head, unless she's already stuck with him!

* * * *

Smart and clean-living men have bald heads can you know. Look at Churchill, Eyl Denham, W. Brooks, my myself All smart men. Yes sir, the salt of the earth.

DIVISIONAL BOARD DRAFTS SCHOOL BUDGET FOR 1949

The board of Killam School Division held its regular meeting in the office on March 11th, all members being present. The most important item on the fairly light agenda was consideration and adoption of the budget for the current fiscal year. A resume of this budget will appear shortly in this paper.

Mr. Paul Kroetsch of Heisler, was present relative to transportation ar- rangements. The appointment of Miss Doris Storvick to the teaching staff was ratified. Miss Storvick will be teaching at Sounds School.

A tender for the sale of the barn and outbuildings at Vulcan School was accepted. Some discussion was devoted to the matter of tuition fees to be collected from other school divisions. It was moved and carried that Provost S. D. be charged $125 for each student attending Central High. The Supt. outlined the proc- edure to be followed in the matter of providing financial aid to teachers in training. The board decided to pro- vide an item of $1,000 to cooperate with the Dept in the matter of scholarships and bursaries to en- courage more young people to enter the teaching field. The Supt was married the reports received from the high school inspectors on the divisional high schools and dorms. Reports were also received on each teacher. The next meeting will be held on April 6th.

SEDGEWICK W. I.

The March meeting of the W. I was held at the home of Mrs. Fanny Adamson with 23 members and one visitor present. The minutes were read and approved, after which the roll- call was answered by members giving the name of their favorite flower. Donations of $10 each were made to the Salvation Army and the Red Cross. The Report was completed. A resolution is to be sent to our local M. L. A. asking that Archives conference survey movement help similar to T. B. cancer and polio sufferers. Plans were made to hold a social evening on March 15th with cards and program. There were 3 new members, Mrs. Dorgan Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Wilson. Mrs. Webber was in charge of the program and brought her collection of Easter Lilies. She also showed a very interesting account of his life and work. Next meeting will be at home of Mrs. Harvey Stutz.

DEATH

Mr William Grant Sr of Killam passed away on Feb. 28th after a brief illness. Mr. Grant was born near Lossiemouth, Scotland, on the 26th of March, 1866. On Jan 12th, 1892 he married Elspeth Anderson, his childhood schoolmate. Their un- ion was blessed with a family of 10 sons and two daughters, all of whom survive him except one son David, who passed away in 1939. Alberta and farmed in the Prairie Lark district for ten years, when they moved into Killam. Five indeed are the men who en- joyed the respect and admiration of a community to the extent that Mr. Grant did. He possessed in a great degree those outstanding qualities which have lost his wife to another man (presumably bald), but that can't be for what woman wants a bald head, unless she's already stuck with him!

Progress In Research

BEHIND 301 (-IS OF THE PROGRESS which is being made today in industry, agriculture and medicine lies the work of the research scientist. Most great industrial organizations now rely upon research for the continuous improvement of their products necessary to meet the demands of the present-day market. Farmers are familiar with the benefits which agricultural research has given to them in regard to grain crops, livestock, soil and moisture conservation, and many other matters important to their work. Research is likewise essential to progress in medicine, which is, in turn so important to the welfare of the entire nation. The work of Canadian scientists has contributed a great deal to the development which has taken place here since 1939, and during that time the amount of money spent for research and the number of scientists engaged in it, have increased greatly.

* * * * *

Carry On Wide Range Of Work

Canada's National Research Council with headquarters in Ottawa, and regional laboratories in other parts of the Dominion, carries on research work on many problems of importance to this country. A report, issued at the end of the past year gave some interesting facts concerning the activities of this organization. It showed that there are now 2,000 workers engaged in research on a wide range of subjects, extending from atomic energy to radar. One interesting project mentioned in the report tells of the development of a new method to recover oil from the Athabaska tar sands deposits in Alberta. It is also reported that recently special equipment has been designed for the detection of radioactive materials, which will be of use in prospecting. Mention is also made of the success of work being carried on at the Atomic Energy plant at Chalk River, Ontario

Keeping Pace With Others

Reference was made to the establishment of the Prairie Regional Laboratory at Saskatoon, where scientists are working on problems related to agriculture and industries of the prairie provinces. It was announced that shortly a similar laboratory will be established for the benefit of those living in the Maritimes. Other interesting information concerning the progress of work carried on by the National Research Council is contained in the report, which showed that Canada is alive to the importance of research in furthering the development of the nation and that we are keeping pace with other countries in this necessarily essential form of enterprise.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

There is only one thing wrong with the canoe," said the soldier to the sweet young thing on the river

"And what is that?" she asked.

"Well," he replied, "if I try to kiss you in this, it might capsize."

The girl sat silent for a few minutes. Then she remarked, "I can swim

Suitor: "Love her? Why I would die for her. For one soft glance from her sweet eyes I would hurl myself off a lofty cliff —glad of the chance to sacrifice myself in her name."

Father: "Well I forbid the marriage. I'm somebody of a fool myself and one is enough in a small family like ours."

And then there was the bride who, when asked if she took this man for better or for worse, answered "I can't tell until I've had him for a while."

Convict: "Lumme, gov'ner, there ain't no charge. Everything's free 'ere."

Sports Editor—"Why, just say the bleachers were wet."

Two men were discussing a mutual acquaintance.

"Nice fellow," said one, "but have you noticed how he always lets his friends pick up the dinner bill?"

"Yes," replied the other, "the man is terribly impoverished in his generosity."

"You're the biggest fool under the sun," exclaimed a supporter to the recipient of the note. "The other dog's so fame that it can't run fast enough to beat a hedgehog."

"That's all right," said the owner; "my dog died suddenly."

Child Killed By Pack Of Huskies

Margery Stibbe of Goff's Lake, Man. was torn to pieces by a pack of Huskies as she played outside her home. The Huskies were owned by Tom Hammond, the trader, for whom Margery's father works. Arrested for her murder, Margery was friendly with the animals and played with them often. Hammonds shot each of the dogs immediately after the girl's body was found. Andy LaChalle, assistant to Constable Hammond, shot the dogs. Fighting outside the house, used and found them over the remains of the child's body which was mostly consumed. Helicopter Eased Job Of Mapping B.C. Mountains

OTTAWA—A test project undertaken in British Columbia last summer with a helicopter may take the drudgery and cost of mapping mountainous regions, the Canadian Institute of Surveying was told

A. G. Slocomb of Victoria, chief of the topographic division of the B.C. Lands and Forests Department, discussed the use of the helicopter in mapping.

The project was undertaken near Chilliwack last August, with a helicopter and a survey party of nine men.

"Besides eliminating the arduous work of moving into positions, climbing often overlooking, the use of the helicopter made it possible to photograph and observe during the best hours of the day, a condition which may be missed when climbing on foot," Mr. Slocomb said.

SURVEY POSSIBILITIES FOR PULP PLANT AT PRINCE ALBERT

PRINCE ALBERT —Possible construction of a pulp plant in the Prince Albert district by the Abitibi Power and Paper company is the subject of speculation following a survey of pulp and power resources by company engineers.

While there has been no definite indication the company is prepared to take immediate action, W. D. Sanders, chief electrical engineer for Abitibi, and J. G. Mathews, chief forester, both expressed themselves as being "favorably impressed" with possibilities in the district.

Further developments and a more extensive survey will depend on reports made by Mr. Sanders and Mr Sanderson to Douglas Ambridge company president in Toronto, it was learned.

Western Canada Farmers Preparing For Worst Grasshopper Invasion In History Of Agriculture

By Central Press Canadian

SASKATOON, Sask. — Prairie farmers and governmental entomologists are marshalling their forces and preparing weapons to ward off what is expected to be one of the worst grasshopper invasions in the history of western agriculture.

While Saskatchewan is expected to bear the brunt of the attack, several thousand square miles of Alberta and Manitoba farmland will be swept by the enemy.

According to a survey last fall, infested districts in Saskatchewan will consist of a large area south of a line running through Macklin, North Battleford and Prince Albert, and west of a line running roughly through Biggar, Wynyard, Semans, Indian Head, Milestone and Estevan.

Manitoba faces the worst plague in 12 years. Preliminary tests suggest that 45 of the province's 120 municipalities will be affected. Heavy infestations are expected in eastern and southeastern Alberta.

Damage In Millions

In 1945, millions of dollars in damage to western Canadian crops was brought by the onslaught of grasshoppers. This year the invasion will be repeated on a much larger scale and might even equal the plague of 1940 when hoppers caused climate $9 000 000 in damage to western crops.

Warned by their early reconnaissance, agricultural authorities in all three provinces have launched an educational campaign instructing farmers on how to leave poison-baited trap strips in fallow fields. Warning were issued that as new infested stubble land but to fallow and trap strip it. The Saskatchewan government is supplying sodium arsenite poison and sawdust, with which the farmer is mixed, to municipalities. Manitoba and Alberta are following suit.

While sodium arsenite will be the major poison used this season, two new chemicals chlordane and chlorinated camphene—are expected to be widely employed in the anti-grasshopper war. Unlike sodium arsenite which is broadcast by machine or hand when mixed with bran or sawdust these chemicals can be sprayed over vegetation where grasshoppers are feeding.

Application is possible with standard spray equipment already in use by western farmers. Boom and nozzle 2-1-D weedkiller sprayers, Buffalo turbine sprayers, Airplanes, and helicopters all may be used. Since aerial spraying can cover large areas in a short time, it is probable this method will also receive a trial.

Intensive research has shown that chlordane and chlorinated camphene give a higher initial kill and have a period of effectiveness far one to three weeks. One pound of chlordane should be sufficient to spray one acre. The recommended poison dosage for chlorinated camphene is one and one-half pounds. These products will be available to farmers in the form of emulsion concentration.

On stubble fields where vegetation is short, sparse and dry and no hopper attractive to the grasshopper appetite, poison bait has been found to be more effective and economical.

Possible Dangers.

Agricultural chemists familiar with the effect of the new chemicals warn that forage treated with these should not be fed to dairy animals. Nor should stockmen feed treated vegetation to animals being fattened for slaughter since the poisons may accumulate in the animals' fatty tissues and render the meat unfit for food. Another possibility is that the poisons may be given off in milk and butter.

Neither chlordane nor chlorinated camphene should be applied to fruits or vegetables unless fruit or foliage to be eaten is first washed thoroughly The insecticides should not be sprayed on legumes when in bloom or when bees are active in the field

While some 10 destructive varieties of grasshoppers are known in Canada, three species are most common in the west, the migratory mexicanus spretus, Camnula pellucida and melanopolus bivittatus The first mentioned is constantly known as the stubble hopper and lays its eggs throughout stubble fields. Crops sown in these are almost impossible to save. The latter two species are often grouped together in the term roadside grasshoppers. They lay their eggs in grassy spots along roadsides and were responsible for many of the devastating attacks of western crops last year

Eggs are deposited in clusters of 30 to 120, each egg mass being about one inch long and found one-half to one inch below the surface

When hatched by the warm spring sun, eggs do not pass through the pupa stage common to most insects, but immediately develop into tiny grasshoppers known as nymphs. By this time vegetation is green and juicy, offering excellent fodder for the voracious insects

A swarm of nymphs can eat through a fresh stand of wheat with amazing speed, leaving behind a blackened ruin with only the odd stem drooping here and there in its final death throes. Adults are no less hungry, finding ripening grain heads increasingly tasty.

Just how numerous hoppers can be may be gleaned from tests made in the prairies last year Using a special catcher, field men "harvested" eight bushels of grasshoppers per acre in a normally infested field. Each bushel contained 200,000 insects Its great is their destructive power that an infestation of 20 grasshoppers per square yard on a 40-acre field can chew up one ton of stubble in one day.

Canada's Birth Rate On Decline

OTTAWA. — Canada's birth rate fell to 28.4 per 1,000 population in the first half of 1948 from the high of 29.5 in the same 1947 period, the census of statistics announced

The general mortality rate was slightly lower at 9.2 compared with 9.3, and the rate of natural increase fell from 20 to 19.2

The Hardisty High School presented their annual programme and Dance Friday, March 4th in Kister's Hall, to a record crowd. The following program was presented:

Following 'Oh Canada', the School Chorus sang school songs and 'Scrub Those Tears From Your Eyes'. The pupils of Grade 9 enact out a play—Reverence—Love—Marriage—Leave sung—Far Away Pioneer—Joyce Arnold followed with a very humorous recitation, after which the students of 10, 11 and 12 very colorfully nursed Mexican with Maracas— Darlene Henderson and Lara Larsen then presented a skit, followed by a musical number by Faye Cameron, Verlene Quinlan and Jack Cameron. Yvonne Morrison and Lara Larsen, accompanied by Barry Thorpe, then gave their version of love in the old days with —When Pa Was Courtin' Ma—To music by George Mellon, the high school girls presented a Fashion Show, starring bathing suits and evening gowns of 1848, 1898 and 1948. A few minutes of community singing was lead by Mr C May and the school chorus rendered the program with 'Four and You Were Only Fooling — Powder Your Face With Sunshine — and 'God Save the King.

Following the program a dance was held with music supplied by the Pioneering Orchestra, and lunch-ing was indeed a success. Those in charge wish to thank those who helped make it so, providing entertainment and in every way being very congenial and co-operative.

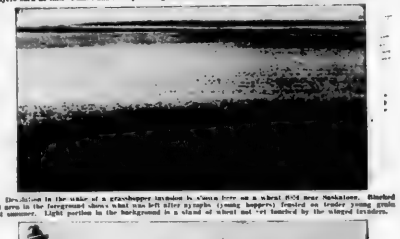
Two new chemicals, chlordane and chlorinated camphene, are expected to prove potent weapons against the grasshopper menace this year in the prairie provinces. Insecticides can be sprayed with 2,4-D weedkilling sprayers such as this. Planes and helicopters might also be used to cover large areas in a short time.

Devastation in the wake of a grasshopper invasion is shown here on a wheat field near Saskatoon. Stacked out area in the foreground shows what was left after nymphs (young hoppers) feasted on tender young grain last summer. Light portion in the background is a stand of wheat not yet touched by the winged invaders.



Many methods of spreading poison bait to halt the grasshopper invasion were used by desperate Saskatchewan farmers last year. Here, the sawdust and bran are rather family is out for unloading sodium arsenite on an infested field by hand. Pails, baby's bathinette and shovels are used.—Central Press Canadian photos.

Farm Credit

CREDIT IS AN IMPORTANT FACTOR in the operation of any business and often the need for funds to purchase new equipment, to extend property holdings or to introduce some new feature is vital to the success of an establishment. It has frequently been said that farmers have as great a need for satisfactory credit facilities at certain periods as have the operators of other types of businesses, but that they have not always been able to secure funds for carrying on their work as readily as have operators of other enterprises. For the past nineteen years the Canadian Farm Loan Board, a Dominion government agency has loaned money to farmers for refinancing existing loans to make improvements, erect buildings, purchase livestock and to pay operating expenses.

Trend Toward Large Farms

The maximum amount for a first mortgage under this plan is $5,000 and for a second mortgage $1,000. These loans are repayable over a period of from five to twenty-five years in equal yearly or half yearly payments. Since 1929 Canadian farmers have borrowed $88,228,907 and of this amount $37,069,120 was repaid at the end of March, 1940 when the last report was made. At the present time, $22,501,000 remains unpaid on farm mortgages of this type. One-third of the money now on hand has been used for buying additional farm land while a few years ago, less than 10 per cent of the loans were used for that purpose. This also tends to indicate a trend toward the establishment of larger farms, especially in the prairie provinces.

Amounts are Not Large

While the plan has been of great assistance to many farmers, the amounts of the loans are not large, and many have had to seek credit from other sources. In a recent address given at the Farm and Home Week held at the University of Saskatchewan, Prof. J. Van Vliet head of the farm management department, discussed some aspects of the problem of farm credit. He stressed the importance of using such credit wisely and carefully but he also stated that the small amount of capital which is available to farmers has been rationing less efficient than other industries. Lack of available credit, he said, had created a situation in which 50 per cent of the total production is carried on by 30 per cent of the farmers showing that many farms are not producing efficiently. More credit at cheaper rates was suggested by Professor Van Vliet as a means of increasing production and of encouraging small farmers to own their own land and to increase the efficiency of their operations. In view of the importance of farming at present when there is a world-wide shortage of food, and of the place which agriculture holds in our national economy, it would appear desirable that farmers should not be required to operate at a disadvantage with the matter of having access to facilities for necessary credit.

Percheron To Stand In Alberta

ALBERTA Percheron breeders, realizing the tremendous reduction in the draught horse population in Canada and these provinces, some months ago contacted the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa pointing out that if the present rate of decline continues for six or seven years, Canada would find herself without any draught horses unless something was done to stimulate production.

The breeders asked the Dominion Government to purchase an outstanding Percheron stallion and place him in the province of Alberta for season on pure-bred mares, the object being that breeders could produce some big young stallions for future use in the horse industry of the province. Word has just been received that the Department of Production Services, Ottawa, had bought the seven-year-old Percheron stallion, Kenscraigs from the Lynnwood Farm, Carmel, Indiana, U.S.A.

The stallion will be held at the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, until the breeding season starts. Alberta breeders will then have to take charge of the horse, and present arrangements are that he will stand for service on a Provincial breeder's farm close to Calgary from April 15 to June 1, to start the season.

After lengthy negotiations the Dominion Department of Agriculture has purchased this outstanding Percheron stallion, Kenscraigs.

THRILLS of the ROARIN' GAME

LEAD—A lusty person.
SECOND—A merry man.
THIRD—A gentleman.
AND SKIP—An ideal curler

The following are the duties of the various members comprising an average rink of curlers, as outlined by an expert:

The Lead—Lusty Person

This is a very lusty person who throws the first pair of rocks. He is supposed to thumb the Dicty once a day in his prayer book, on an average, let alone being allowed to play at hooligan's time. All curlers have served this period of apprenticeship and it is a fortunate curler who is not per cent of them have never served long enough. He always advances to the sheg as "fee" and the third must say as "lie". This lead permits the expected to see that the four pairs of rocks belonging to his rink are on the ice and cleaned five minutes before the game starts. He must do no less than 75 per cent. of the sweeping, he is expected to keep the shop supplied with cigarettes, and at occupied time to purchase at least one bottle of Scotch someone per drew. He is also to commend to the rest of the rink and the skip of the rink should he say, just once a drink per defeated shop. He is not even allowed over the long haul. His curling must be perfect or he is blamed for the loss of the game in which his rink suffers defeat. He may tell the second what he thinks about the skip, but no one else. After many years he becomes a skip if he survives the sarcasm of his associates.

The Second Player—"Slow" Man

This person is but a degree removed from the lead. He is expected to do 10 per cent. of the sweeping. He also, as the lead, is expected to keep the skips supplied with cigarettes and the third man with matches. He may tell the second what he thinks about the skip, but no one else. After many years he becomes a skip if he survives the sarcasm of his associates

The Second Player—"Slow" Man

This person is but a degree removed from the lead. He is expected to do 10 per cent. of the sweeping. He also, as the lead, is expected to keep the skips supplied with cigarettes and the third man with matches. He may tell the second what he thinks about the skip, but no one else. After many years he becomes a skip if he survives the sarcasm of his associates

The Third Player—A Gentleman

This gentleman is the skip's right hand man. He could skip the game himself, but he finds that he gets much more fun out of it by letting the skip do the job and by acting as a sort of supernumerary over all the heads and tools of the game. He is supposed to his skip. He does the remaining 15 per cent. of the sweeping. He holds the broom for the skip to shoot, and invariably tells the skip that he should have tried the shot with a little more, had thrown a little not the one he, the skip, had just thrown. He is the person who marks the chalk for putting up all points made by his side and he is the one who gives the skip the occasional cigarette, lends him a match and gives him a lot of unsolicited advice and generally embarrasses and befuddles the skip as much as possible so that when the game is lost he can say with some apparent justification that he should be shipping. This is the highest compliment you can pay a third man, that he should be a skip. They submit it always but they labor on as if waiting to take the game out from under and defeat.

The Skip—An Ideal Curler

His chief delight and happiest expectation is to have the privilege of sliding on granite with both his rocks. This privilege is always denied him, and he knows and thinks when he can only see an eyebrow. He must draw onto the button, making it by sophtis of inches. He must be able to "freeze" a rock to another spot. He must take out four rocks with one shot and then lay one on the button and generally make himself useful. Knowing that if he were his rinks get the credit and if he loses he alone bears the blame. He must have the patience of Job and the composure of a Buddha. Seldom must newer complain or he will be classed as a poor sport.—From The Lethbridge Herald.

It's Too Risky

Subscribing for, rather than borrowing, a newspaper may be the most convenient and least troublesome way to get your reading done, according to the following item which appeared recently in the Selma (Alabama) Times Journal.

"A subscriber, on the stage to subscribe to his business paper, sent his little boy to borrow a copy from his neighbor. In haste, the boy ran over a chair and bore and, when he picked up the chair, found the nose squash. His father ran to his assistance and, failing to notice the blood on the nose, threw a $5 pair of pants.

The old rose took advantage of the gap in the fence, got in the corn field and ate some. Hearing the commotion, his son made run, upset a four-gallon churn of cream into a basket of little chicken, drowning the entire batch. In her haste, she dropped a $35 set of false teeth.

The baby, being left alone, crawled through the cream into the parlor, ruining a brand new $20 carpet. During the excitement, the oldest daughter eloped with the bread man, the dog sprang up 11 cavities and the calves got out and chewed the tails off four fine shirts on the clothes line.

Moral: Don't borrow your neighbor's paper; it's too risky."

Frankly, we are inclined to feel that this man's misfortunes were the exception rather than the general rule. But reports are that he took no more chances. The Argus Farmer.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE GOOD DEED

By ADDISON M. HALLCOCK

Not Trying To Pick Up Pretty Lady Secret.

"I WISH he'd stop staring," Jane said to herself, sensing a feeling of hopelessness as the man stared at her. Jane looked down at her book and tried to re-read the last paragraph on the page but the little fellow knew could she be expected to concentrate, with a man in the side glaring at her? It was disconcerting. Especially when the man was no nice and masculine looking.

Surely he wasn't trying to flirt with her. Men weren't interested in an ordinary girl She knew she looked prim and school-teacherish, but well it couldn't be helped. She had done the best she could with the scants nature had given her. Her girlfriends did tell her that her eyes were lovely, and that her whole face lit up when she smiled—but she wasn't smiling now. It would be rather silly, she thought, to smile when there was no little to smile about.

Jane stole a swift glance at the man again, and caught him eye just before he turned away. She closed her book with a bang and looked across the stout woman sitting next to her by the window. People were hurrying about before the station broke

Why did the man stare so? She had never seen him before in her life He seemed a trifle almost too well dressed in another way." Jane remarked up. No, her hat wasn't over one eye. She did a little beneath the seat. The seams of her stockings were in line. Perhaps she had a run—no, her searching d...ers assured her that her stockings were intact. And her suit seemed immaculate.

The lady next to Jane folded her paper mannishly crease me and glanced by Jane out over to the window She didn't turn when she felt someone take the place. She was hot. You might know!

Suddenly she realized her next stop was here, grabbed her bag with a snap, she got to her feet. The man smiled and rose, moving out into the aisle to let her pass She had a good look at him and thought Lois had never seen anyone so attractive.

Outside the air felt good after the stuffiness of the bus.

"I beg your pardon," said a deep, pleasant voice, and Jane started along. "But I wonder if you would mind ..." Jane hesitated. "I would like," she said, "and I'm afraid I don't ..."

"Of course you don't know me," the man interrupted quickly with a chuckle—a warm, friendly chuckle, Jane thought—"My name is Hamilton—Jim Hamilton—and isn't it rather silly for us to stand here with a storm in prospect?"

"I have no intention of standing here," Jane replied, beginning to walk rapidly

"I'm sorry I haven't an umbrella to share with you if it starts to rain," said Hamilton, matching his pace to here, "but I'll be glad to find a cab."

Jane stopped abruptly. "Please, Mr Hamilton, I'm not afraid of getting a little wet, and I'm not accustomed to riding in taxis with strange men." She started on again.

"Look here, Miss whatever-your-name-is," he said, "I'm afraid you don't quite understand. I just wanted to ..."

"Pick me up"

He laughed "No, I'm not trying to pick you up I'm just playing the good

"Boy scout" The words slipped out of Jane's mouth before she could stop them She couldn't talk to that man!

"Well you, in a way You are he said "I'm just trying to do a good deed"

"Good deed"

I seem to be repeating everything he says, thought Jane, but I can't seem to help myself

"Yes," Hamilton went on, "you are but first, must we walk so fast, and you do have a name, I suppose?"

"Jane Wilson." My goodness Jane scolded herself whatever in the world made me tell him that? What's he to me?

"Jane is a nice name," Hamilton said, I like it In fact I like it so much that we can't we go somewhere where it's dry? Perhaps have a bite to eat? There's something I must tell you. I simply can't let it off any longer! Take pity on a fellow, won't you?"

Jane hesitated. Really! She should send this man away She really should! What had come over her? "Well, she faltered, finally, "There's a sort of tea room on the next block. I suppose we could stop in there."

As they walked along, Jane's mind was in a whirl. She had never done a thing like this, yet, somehow, she felt safe with Jim Hamilton. Perhaps she shouldn't be going to a tea shop with a man she had never met—most certainly she shouldn't—but by girls—well, girls like Jane But she didn't have to tell him that, of course.

When the waitress had taken their order, Jim drew a folded check handkerchief from his pocket and carefully unfolded it

Jane had watched fascinated not anything a word.

"Now for my good deed." John said. His blue eyes smiled into her brown ones as he leaned across the small table. "A nice girl like you shouldn't go out in the public with a smudge on her cute little nose," he whispered

"Oh" Jane exclaimed startled Then she laughed "So that's what you were staring at!?" Yes, it was her compact and peeked into the mirror. "Well, for heaven's sake what are you waiting for ... hurry, wipe it off"

"I just couldn't bear it." John laughed, applying the handkerchief "And yet I couldn't bear to see you do it"

The girl came with chicken and chicken and coffee, as John sat back in his chair. When she had gone he reached under the table and squeezed the hand Jane held in her lap. "It's the nicest deed I've ever done," he said, "and I'm afraid I don't ..."

Jane looked up at John and smiled. She didn't try to take her hand away. Somehow, John's hand seemed warm and comforting. "You know I'm not sorry I performed that good deed for someone so nice as you are."

Leduc Oil Find Started "Revolution"

VANCOUVER—The Leduc oil field discovery announced in February, 1947, started a revolution that has wrought the most important single change in the economic life of Canada.

C. S. Webb, Calgary oil authority, speaking to Investment Dealers' Association and Vancouver Stock exchange members, outlined Alberta oil development and said the new refinery field would probably rank among the top world oil discoveries of 1948.

The "good hunting" area for oil and gas covers a belt running from the American border north to the Arctic Ocean he added

It takes in most of Alberta a slice of northeast British Columbia, the Mackenzie River valley north, a big part of Saskatchewan and the southwestern corner of Manitoba.

"Another western area where additional oil may exist includes part of Vancouver Island and those of the mainland around Vancouver," said Mr. Webb.

Western Canada, where less than 3,000 wells have been drilled to date and less than 1,000 of these wildcats, today has three major oil fields

In addition, the search for oil has brought in discovery of natural gas and helped in developing a field which is now supplying Edmonton with gas.

It has brought Lloydminster a $5-million barrel refinery, and has led to lesser—this is not a reserve that could shape into a major field.

It has brought Norman Creek a wet gas discovery in 1946 that could bring a major oil and gas reserve in 1949 It has be-tight Princess, Taber, Conrad Vermilion, Wainwright and a number of other smaller oil reserves

Alberta's newest market has brought oil strikes of still undetermined worth at Hanna and Craigmyle

Today in Alberta more than 46 million acres of oil and gas rights are held under lease or reservation

In Saskatchewan more than 12 million acres have been reserved for exploration.

In northeast British Columbia and southwest Mackenzie around 8o million acres are under reservation.

Today the west has a 63 million barrel oil play, far bigger than anything in the past but as yet, only a fraction of the potential oil country is being investigated.

During 1948 oil production climbed over the per cent. record of 4,8 million barrel increase over 1947. Yield last year was about 12 million barrels Production in 1949 will probably climb by several million barrels

Should Alberta Export Natural Gas?

Radio Talk by Mr. James Walker Gives Facts; Speaks for Northwest Natural Gas Company

Should we of Alberta export natural gas or should we not? I believe we should. Provided export permissions are granted the North west Natural Gas Company plans to build a pipe line to convey natural gas from Alberta to Vancouver, via Spokane and Seattle. But first, let me assure the people of Alberta that it is only a portion of the surplus gas available that will be exported, and that portion only after providing for present and future requirements of the Province of Alberta as you know a Commission appointed by the Government of Alberta has conducted a series of hearings to inquire into the natural gas reserves in the province. In its submission to this Commission the North west Natural Gas Company made the following statement: "The Northwest Natural Gas Company recognizes and subscribes to the principle that the present and foreseeable future natural gas requirements of the people of Alberta must be assured and have priority over export." That statement is made convincing to us by the attitude of the Company As I said before, it is only a portion of the surplus gas that the Company plans to export.

RESERVES ARE AMPLE

I think we all realize that there are vast reserves of natural gas in Alberta, discovered and yet to be discovered. Geologists tell us that the geological conditions in Alberta are quite like those in the large gas producing areas in the United States, where large reserves are being continually added as a result of the search for oil and gas. At the present time there is no incentive in Alberta to explore for, or develop gas fields. Recent discoveries of gas have been made by accident in the search for oil, unfortunately, these wells are, being capped or abandoned, because there is no market for gas. During the recent hearings of the Gas Commission, evidence was given to show that if there was a market for gas, individuals and companies would be encouraged to drill knowing that if they did not find oil but found gas their investment would be lost. This is exactly what happened in the United States. According to "Gas Facts" published by the American Gas Association, the total gas reserves in the United States in the year 1926 amounted to only 22 trillion cubic feet. The rapid expansion of pipe line transmission systems made a market for natural gas and so encouraged the search for new discoveries that in 1935 reserves were increased to 62 trillion cubic feet. By the end of 1947 the reserves had risen to the astounding figure of approximately 166 trillion cubic feet. The discoveries of natural gas have kept far ahead of consumption as a result of the search to supply new markets in the light of the experience of the United States, would we not be justified in anticipating that large new discoveries of gas would be made in Alberta if there was a market for it? It is reported that in the five year period ending 1945 an estimated gas reserve of 2 trillion cubic feet of gas was discovered in Alberta. Most of these discoveries were made accidently in the search for oil. The state of Texas alone has reserves of 90 trillion cubic feet and there is a growing opinion that Alberta may prove to be another Texas. The magnificent of Dr Link, a consulting geologist well known to Albertans, that the reserves in Alberta must prove to be 50 or even 90 trillion cubic feet, should, therefore, not be passed too lightly.

RESERVES WILL INCREASE

The estimates of proven and probable reserves of natural gas in Alberta as reported in 1948 by Dominion Government Geologists, Chief Geologists, indicated 2.6 trillion cubic feet of gas. Now discoveries of gas during the period since this survey was made have resulted in an upward revision of his original estimates. Giving further evidence recently before the Alberta Gas Commission in Calgary he increased his estimated reserves of 4.2 trillion cubic feet. This figure, however, did not include the Pincher Creek field where proven only one well has been brought in. But he did say, that if a second well now being drilled was brought in, the field would have a potential of at least 500 billion cubic feet. It is a coincidence that Mr. W. G. Sumner, a consulting geologist from the United States who also gave evidence before the Commission, estimated the reserves, including the Pincher Creek field, to be 4.3 trillion cubic feet, which is closely in line with Mr. Hunter's estimate.

When we talk in terms of approximately 5 trillion cubic feet, let us remember that the present consumption in Alberta is less than 60 billion cubic feet per annum. At this rate of consumption there is a supply for about 120 years, even although no new discoveries are made which is very improbable. On the other hand it seems to be the opinion of all geologists who have examined the situation in Alberta, that present reserves will be increased many times if a market for gas is created. After all is said and done, markets are necessary for any industrial growth.

There are people who question the ability of geologists to measure with any degree of accuracy, the amount of gas underground. We must realize that all scientific facts make a tremendous advance in technical knowledge in comparatively recent years and that following the extraordinary develop...ent in the gas industry in the United States during the past 20 years, geologists have had sufficient experience to arrive at scientific calculations which are reliable and reasonably accurate. The geologists themselves are no in doubt about this point.

INDUSTRIES ENCOURAGED

The opinion is widely expressed that Alberta should keep its gas and force new industries to locate in the province. As a citizen of Alberta, I am in full sympathy with those who would like to see the province become an industrial centre, but I feel the factor in cost of production that people generally believe The cost all over in Alberta, and in the electric energy, is said to be actually less than 1 p.c. of the value of the finished product. Similarly the cost of fuel to value of the product, the C. D. Comes of Manufacturers made an analysis of the cost of power in the United States, manufacturing 646 different industrial products and found that in only 2 industry groups—iron and steel, and clay and glass products—does fuel cost amount to as much as 2 p.c. For all manufacturing industry the ratio of fuel cost to product value is only 1 p.c. Cheap fuel alone cannot, therefore, be said to be a determining factor in locating industry. Furthermore, it will be to citizens that gas exported out of the province, may to Vancouver, would not be much nearer the source of supply for new industries seeking cheap fuel would, therefore still come to Alberta. Reverting again to the United States, the history of comparable areas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas, where there are large reserves of natural gas, shows that cheap fuel alone is not sufficient to attract industry. The industries which have been developed in these areas are incidental to the fuel industry, such as chemical plants using natural gas and butane. Industries complementary to the gas industry would be encouraged to locate in Alberta for the following reasons: It will be necessary to have the natural gas as it comes from the wells stripped of natural gasoline. In addition the propane and butane will be extracted. Both propane and butane, if recovered in large amounts, should found the basis of new industries in the province. The propane can be used as bottled gas in the rural districts of the province. Also, propane and especially butane, would be available for use in chemical plants as raw materials for the manufacture of artificial rubber, nylon and many other products. The company has already been approached about the possibilities of extracting sulphur from the gas. The sulphur would be used to manufacture sulphuric acid or some other chemical product. The project of the North west Natural Gas Company will therefore stimulate and not hinder industrial expansion.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

The project when completed will be one of Alberta's largest industries It will exceed any other company in capital investment and will rank among the first 12 in payroll and the first 4 in cost of materials It is estimated that 1 million dollars will be paid yearly in Alberta wages and that a further sum of $250,000 yearly will be paid in taxes by companies who supply the gas. This is big industry, in addition to what the provincial government would benefit substantially from royalty payments and taxes. Payment for...alties of way are estimated at $...million

The limitations of time will not permit me in this broadcast to give full details of the company's project, particularly as to the beneficial effects it will have on the economy of the province of Alberta. These are of extreme importance and I shall endeavor briefly in my next radio talk on the same station, same time one week from tonight. In the meantime I would like to summarize briefly the highlights of tonight's discussion:

1. The Northwest Natural Gas Co. is ready to export a portion of the surplus of natural gas.

2. There are now sufficient reserves of gas to supply the present and foreseeable requirements of the province and an ample surplus available for export.

3. With an export market for gas the proven reserves will grow faster than consumption thereby increased exploration and development.

4. A new major industry will be brought to the province which will attract other industries.

5. Large sums of money will be brought into the province and spent on wages, etc.

6. The revenues of the province will be increased by royalties and taxation.

The subject of gas export is of major importance to the people of Alberta and I hope that my listeners tonight, and others, will be sufficiently interested to tune in again next week to hear what I will continue the discussion.

Mr. WALKER'S SECOND ADDRESS WILL BE PRINTED IN THIS SPACE NEXT WEEK.

Mounties Stop The Beaver Poachers

IN AUGUST, 1942 a man whose name we want to stay in business, so God it wiser to co-operate with him."
shall call Henry Franks drove by automobile from the Peace River country into Edmonton, Alberta. Wedged in the trunk of his car was over a thousand dollars' worth of illegal beaver. When he pulled into the capital city, Henry did not register at a hotel—that might tip off the sleuths of the Game Branch that he was in town, and more than once in the past Henry Franks had tangled with Dan Forshaw, game warden, to his financial sorrow.

No, for just a few evenings' work, Henry told himself he could afford to be raggy now. He registered at an auto camp under a fictitious name, and in his cabin he hid the beaver pelts under the mattress of the bed. He drove his car to a garage for overhauling, so that if Edmonton prison didn't suit him he could take the illegal beaver skins north, across the Rockies to Vancouver.

Henry's first violent surprise came when he walked down First Street and, in a low tone, mentioned beaver to the fur-buyers. "Better than anything in the pond," said Henry.

The over-friendly fur dealers weren't a bit interested. In fact, they wished Henry wouldn't talk such business with them any more. "Things are changed," they told Henry. Forshaw had just made beaver-poaching foolproof. If Henry got his next violent shock when one fur-buyer added: Besides, Henry, it looks to me like it a poor business for future years to kill off all our fur now. What of the future?"

Buyers Lose Interest

Not believing his own ears and eyes, Henry Franks spent two days arguing and pleading with one fur-buyer and another, till eventually he realized it was useless. No one in Edmonton would buy his beavers unless they were legal. Therefore, there was only one thing to do: hit over the Rockies again.

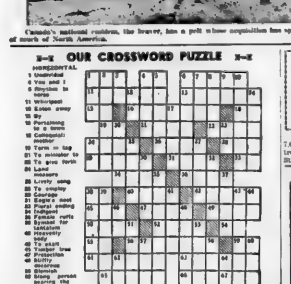
"You guys are making a bogey out of this fellow Forshaw," he said uneasily. "Here I've been ten days in town and nothing's happened."

Something did happen when he went to take his car out of the garage. Nonchalantly, Forshaw and one of Forshaw's men With a firm smile, they informed him that they had been watching the auto court ever since he came to town and checked on all it. They had allowed him his freedom only so that he could prove to himself that he could not sell illegal furs in Alberta any more. His experience cost Mr. Franks a lot; his thousand dollars' worth of beaver pelts were confiscated, and he paid a fine of $100, plus costs.

Days, Don Forshaw, when interviewed on the case "Henry Franks had been warned in the past, but he was one of the hardest of the big-time beaver operators to convince that trafficking in illicit beaver does not pay. Undoubtedly he learned his lesson, for we haven't had any trouble with him since."

Behind that case is an interesting story of excellent conservation work. Not so long ago, illegal trafficking in beaver was one of the most grievous threats to the future of the fur business in Canada.

In areas such as the North West Territories, it was possible for skilful poachers to take out as much as $10,000 worth of illegal fur in a single season. Beavers are unable to control their presence, and they are one of the easiest of all animals to trap. In good times, their pelts are worth an average of fifty dollars apiece. Even in the bush country of Saskatchewan, poachers were getting away with as much as $1 000 worth of fur from one small stream by cleaning the beaver out completely



Canada's national emblem, the beaver, has a pelt whose acquisition has spurred the discovery and settlement of much of North America.

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS
PARTY LINE
By JANE DALE

Mrs Samson, as my neighbor who lives a mile away all alone in her little house, but you never hear her say she is lonely or discontented It would be that way with me. She has her cat, her dog and hard to keep her company. Mrs Samson knows the gossip of all the neighborhood Now how she gets to know the news I never understood for one day I was sitting in her kitchen warm and bright talking about the weather and prices being a fright The phone became the only trickled out, two and three Someone on the party line was calling Mrs Samson

Mrs Samson said, "Be quiet I'll just listen in awhile" I felt hurt at the conversation; it really made me mad. Again we sat chatting when the phone rang one and five. My neighbor listened in again—as sure as you're alive! She heard Tom Jenkins telling her what he had to stay in town to a curlers meeting and wouldn't be home that day. Twice more while we were talking a party call came the way of Mrs Samson Heard as it was I'm telling just what's said. Mrs Reid of Five Lake expected very soon and if Jim Gray's young brother Jim was on his way at noon She told us bits of gossip not meant for strangers to hear I heard more I was in that better than I'd have learned in a year

Mrs Samson never knows she has read my mind and I shall not tell she listens in on the party line and catches every word.

SCHOOL ELECTION
Killam, Alberta, March 14th
Dear Sir:—
As there were so many false rumours prior to the recent election in subdivision 4 of the Killam School division, and as they may start up again, and as so many interested voters had to appear in court at Wetaskiwin, and as many people are so disgusted with the whole proceedings that they had not wish to see further in the subdivision, I will state the facts, deny them who they may.
On behalf of Mr. O. White, Mr. D. V. York took action to have the election held on January 8th not sustained. It was heard in Wetaskiwin on the 8th and 10th of March. Mr. York called over a dozen witnesses to be had, for most of information obtained at the wrong poll, or, as in one case, the Poll Clerk had entered the wrong land. As I had called, I took two witnesses: one to prove the White nominees brought, and in case of a recount, one to have all 15 White votes cast at the Bachelor poll, rejected. Many of these witnesses were never called after York admitted he could not prove anything other than that the ballots, as heard that. The White nominee was found invalid as it had not been signed and duly witnessed as would have been declared elected by acclamation had the nomination meeting been held on the date set, with all costs to be paid by York and his associates.
The School Act is very definite that these nomination meetings must be held between the 1st day of November and the 15th day of December inclusive. I am led to believe, Mr. White wished to prolong his recent visit to West Coast points, he put the date not for the nomination meeting to be Dec. 16th. Therefore all proceedings on 16th Dec. were declared null and void, and no nominations could only be received that day, they were thus invalid, and the court could only declare the seat vacant and order a new election. As to costs, the court found that costing for White, Mr. York had proved White had conducted the election proceedings contrary to law, and that on an immoral party, no costs could be placed on them. Therefore, as Mr. White had been elected by the voters in conduct their affairs up to and during the election, I am led to them to pay for his mistakes, and all costs were levied against the School Division. I may add the court also found that all the evidence given by York and the witnesses he called, was frivilous and have no merit in costs and expense, as both York and White knew that I would, at any time or place, have proved that White had not conducted the election properly. The court proceedings were a waste of time and money, the cost of which must now be paid as another election must now be held at more expense, I may go into it further next week, as the matter must now be settled by the election turning out to vote, although I must admit the whole thing is disgusting.
—Yours truly, J. GAIN.

MAIL TO-DAY GONE TOMORROW
Hardisty, March 14th, 1949
To Editor:—
After reading your last issue of Community Press, I was kind of blowed down by an item in your personal column. Now being a man who's integrity is above reproach (I hope) and also being very sparingly populated over that area in the town the says, I've come to the same conclusion as you (the man's off the beam). He's long been out of decised fact that the Lord did not endow some of us with hair and brains both, although it is also known that he deported some of us of both. Which has brought me to the point of wondering if the rest of that article has any bair. I have found that my broad expanse of barren territory over my noddle has been no draw-back to me. After being limb to love and so on, I have no regrets as to the size and shape of the pasture under my hat. We babies must stick together. — J. G. M.

Dear Sir:—
Please allow me space to bring to your readers the facts in connection with the upset in the recent school election. The Act states, "The Board shall not the day of holding the annual meetings and these meetings shall be held between the first day of November and the fifteenth day of December inclusive. Mr. White informed the Board he intended to make a motor trip and would be glad if we could set the dates as late as possible, and the 16th Dec. would be alright for a meeting in Killam. Nominations were received, and election was held. The ballots were counted (several being rejected with the consent of both parties) and Mr. Gair was declared elected. Mr. White started proceedings before the election upset, using D. V. York as solicitor. The examination was held in Wetaskiwin on March 8th starting shortly after 5 p.m. A case was in attendance, including some 12 witnesses, only a few of whom were called. As the case was not concluded by 7:30 p.m. the court adjourned until the following morning, when only a few persons were present. The case for the election and declared the seat vacant on the grounds that the nomination were received on the 16th instead of the 15th. The costs were assessed against the Division.
Speaking of the reasons, the judge remarked: "If the validity of elections were contested on such trifling grounds and had been produced no evidence in this case, no true election would be held in all Canada. I would very much liked to have seen the so-called Mr. White on the stand to see what sort of an individual he is. It is almost unbelievable that a man who was chairman of the Board, and partly responsible for setting of the wrong date, would use that to upset an election in which he was the defeated candidate.
Trusting that this will prevent the circulation of any misstatements.
Yours truly, Thomas Clemston if.

There has been an immense increase in glass area with all windows deepened and widened. The windshield takes full advantage of wider bodies, curving inward at the narrowed pillars to improve sideway as well as forward vision. The gain in visibility over 1948 has been as much as 20 per cent on comparable models. The new Chevrolet for 1949 is powered by a rugged six-cylinder, valve-in-head engine

A Continued Crisis

WORLD FOOD SITUATION HAVE BEEN a constant source of interest and concern since production and distribution were so seriously disrupted by the war. For nearly ten years there have been critical shortages in many countries for the end of the war did not bring a rapid solution to the grave problem. Recently the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations issued a report on the present situation from the head quarters at Lake Success, New York. While this report might be said to be more encouraging than any which have yet been issued by the F.A.O. it contained a number of grim facts and predictions for the future were not optimist.

Great Increase In Population

The report showed that there are now 200 000 000 more people to be fed than there were before the war while the volume of food production has not increased. A plan was made, in the committee's re-assessment in supplies of agricultural equipment, and in international trading and food distribution. While the Food and Agricultural Organization has a standing governments with technical advice on soil and food conservation and other matters relating to crop production, it was stressed that agricultural production was primarily a matter of national concern and that governments were urged to take measures which would increase world food supplies.

Situation Now Less Critical

The situation is at present less critical than it has been in past years, because the Far East has had the best rice crop this year, since the war, and the food shortage has eased somewhat in the western world. Warning was given, however that these facts should not lead to a false sense of security. Reserves of world food supplies have been cut to a minimum and the food situation in the coming year will depend on the 1949 harvest. It was also pointed out that the increased dependence for world food supplies on the United States and Canada has heightened the danger of food shortages because at the uncertainties of the harvests on this continent. As one of the great agricultural countries. Canada is concerned in this matter of world food supplies, and it is apparent that we must face continued responsibilities in this regard as long as production continues to be so far behind the needs of the increasing world population

B.C. Man Trying To Preserve 1,000 Years Of History

PORT ALBERNI — George Trandell of Bainbridge doesn't want 1,000 years of history broken up in a bonfire.

He will try to get the B.C. forests minister to preserve as a park a section of ground, then we were homesteaded, of the south fork of Englishman River.

Mr Trandell says the trees surveyed the original five believed to have swept Vancouver Island 500 years ago.

He thinks they are 1,000 years old. They existed long before big trees began to today started to sprout.

Mr Trandell says there are probably 100 of the trees, more than 300 feet high and from 36 to 45 feet in circumference.

There is no clear-marked route into the area, but Mr Trandell knows a way and is willing to take interested persons.

The area has two lakes well stocked with fish known as Nicely and Mc-Iver. They appear on old maps as Panther and Echo Lakes

$9,954 Acres Into New Crop In '48

Canadian farmers — 1,305 in six provinces- borrowed $492 685.36 under the Farm Improvement Loans Act in 1948 to clear and break 59,804 acres of land for new crop production

Alberta led all other provinces, using $248,251.25 for clearing and breaking 25,875 acres. Nova Scotia was last, obtaining $180 to clear and break 24 acres.

Rapid expansion of productive farming has often made possible by the development of modern mechanized machinery to clear and break new land. Because this machinery is available on a custom basis, farmers and land settlers have been hampered in the past, by cash shortages, in getting benefit of this mechanized equipment

With the advent of the Act in 1944, however, funds became available to farmers in settling new areas for this work, and as a result of these loans 183,814 acres have been brought under cultivation since 1944.

Value Of Hay, Pasture Seed Show Increase

OTTAWA — Value of hay and pasture seed crops grown in Canada in 1948 was estimated by the bureau of statistics at $48,000,000, an increase of almost 100 per cent, since 1947 when these crops were valued at $9,115,000

Prices of seven of the 12 types for which estimates are available show increase since last season and this, coupled with larger crops of all but two types resulted in the increased total value of production

Value of production by provinces with comparable data for 1947 in brackets Maritime provinces $30,000 ($18,000); Quebec $145,000 ($296,000); Ontario $4 262,000 ($1 832,000); Manitoba $2,162,000 ($1,267,000); Saskatchewan $3,953,000 ($2,936,000); Alberta $6,949,000 ($2,997,000); British Columbia $518,000 ($354,000)

TROUBLE PROBLEM OF KEEPING YOUTH ON THE FARM—The problem of keeping young Canadians on the farm has been tackled by use of "folk forums" in Saskatchewan. MAN LOSES LIFE AS TRUCK PLUNGES THROUGH ICE—Scene of fatality at Pictou Harbor on Ontario coast 40 miles east of Ottawa where truck, driven by Ernest Baird, who drowned, went through ice as he and his passengers, Melvin Robert and Andrew Penny were returning from Quebec. Before road blocks could be put up, car driven by J. Rae Intel, left stalwart in. G. Wilson, right, was a passenger. The three men in the truck were less than 200 yards from the Ontario side of the river when they suddenly felt the ice cave in. It was only inches thick.—CNS photo

MARX BROTHERS' TEAM BROKEN UP — The Marx brothers, Groucho, Chico, and Harpo, are winding up one of the most prosperous comedy teams in show business. For almost 30 years the brothers have been leering at ladies, talking funny, and cracking gags a mile-a-minute. But lately as many Hollywood producers will tell you, it's been like pulling teeth to get them together for a movie. "We don't need each other," they'd shrug. "We can all make more money if we go our own way."—CNS photo

RESIDENTS FEAR FOR HOMES AS EARTH CRUMBLES AWAY—Crowds stand in awe on the sheer cliff face behind homes where the Saint John river bank area collapsed. Trucks have dumped fill into the chasm, but it is as big as ever. In some spots the drop was 50 feet and some homes were protected by an artificial bank. A geologist blames sliding clay or limestone cavity. Earth subsidence has gradually caused larger and larger fissures to appear and although residents are very worried, city officials have assured there is no immediate danger of a huge movement.—CNS photo. 3610

Lougheed Facts

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chesman Jr. in the Hardisty hospital on Wed March 9th, a daughter. To Anne's congratulations.

The temperature turned a little milder last week which made the conditions suitable for curling again. The Consolation game which had been postponed for over a week due to mild weather, was played on last Wed. The game was between W. C. Reed and Hanemen of Staglebeck. Event winners were: 1st, Hanemen; 2nd W. Reed, 3 Mattmen, and 4th, Mathesen.

The mixed spiel has been on in full swing for the past week and the spots being honored to be fortunate enough to curl with the ladies during the affair, it is needless to say there is never a dull moment at the rink. Watch this column for the final results.

A series of National films were shown in the community hall last Monday night and proved to be very interesting. The films were based on winter sports, prevention of Diphtheria, a pre-talkie entitled "Petty Arbuckle" which produced a number of laughs. A film on Imperial Oil also proved very interesting, and of course the reason for the hike. The films are shown every five weeks in the hall for your entertainment and everyone is welcome.

The Legion held their meeting in the hall Monday night, and owing to the fact that films were shown, the business part was very short. Final plans were made for the Carnival. A committee was appointed to interview the Town Council with the purpose of establishing a Legion Hut. A social evening and smoker will be held for the members during the April meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kemp motored over to Carseland and Channet last week-end. Tom returned home the following Monday while Mrs. Kemp remained at Carseland due to the illness of her sister. We hope by this time she is well on the road to recovery again.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Grysted and Harding Lakevold of Provost, and Mrs. A. Olsen of Edmonton were visitors at Malbourne on Sunday.

Glen Smith went up to Edmonton last week and brought back a new Hillman car. We heard nearly half the population was down at the G. range the next morning to inspect it. Not much wonder for it really is a beauty. When we see all the nifty cars lining our streets we realize we are living in a very modern age.

Ruth Lessons is assisting at the Kirkman home for awhile.

Born, to Mr and Mrs. Leonard Berg of Killam hospital, on March 7th, a son. Congrats.

Probst, after which the members enjoyed a friendly chat. Mrs. Orpha Smith, JPNG, went to Calgary as a delegate to the Assembly.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. H. Martin, on March 10th, at Killam hospital a daughter. Congrats.

A social evening will be held in the Community hall Wed. evening March 23rd for all the local curlers and their families and also for those who donated towards making the bonspiel such a success. Films will be shown, a social meeting held and other entertainment; also lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Sax motored up to Edmonton last week. Rodney returned home with his parents. After being a patient in the Royal Alex for the past few weeks. We are glad to see you home again Rodney.

A general meeting of the Gonor Creek Ag. Soc. was held Thursday, March 3rd in the office of Mr. H. Barton with 14 present. The report of the Alberta Fairs Assn. Convention was given by the delegate, Mr. H. Barton and E. Black, which covered the operation of fairs. After the report there was some discussion regarding ball games and recommendations for children at the Fair, the date of which was set for the 14th of August. Much time was given to the various chores for the fair and it was decided to have a full class for dairy cattle as it is also a class for swine. Next meeting will be on April 5th in Lougheed Hall if weather and roads permit.

The Lougheed Home and School Assn. held their regular meeting last Tuesday, March 3rd with an average attendance of five guests from Hardisty. The two films, Piano Reflections and Science and Religion were enjoyed by all. Mr. Manning of Hardisty gave a very interesting talk on the local activities in Hardisty and the importance of the Home and School Assn. Mr. Mayor of Hardisty then gave an address on Parent and Teacher Relationships. The next meeting of the Assn. will be on April 5th when the business of sending a delegate to convention and a candidate for the Health and Recreational School will be discussed. An announcement of the program of next month's meeting is to appear in this column later.

Mrs. R. Pope spent the week end with the H. Pope family.

Theo Cochron is a patient in the Killam hospital. We wish him a speedy recovery.

That new Dodge truck you see in town belongs to J. E. Weir.

Main interest around the town for the past week seems to have been the little picture in the Post office window of the Lougheed public school students. Our Postmaster found this photo one day and put it on everyone could get a glimpse of the younger generation 9 years ago. How time do change the folks said, when they saw this picture, but we noticed the kids themselves gazed at it with a wistful look, as they remembered the bygone school days.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Kirkman were to Edmonton last week.

NEW SEED . . . Is the best

'New seed is the best' is a piece of advise given around 300 B. C. by Theophrastus, a noted agricultural authority in an age thereof. Theophrastus had noted that the seed selectors of old, who corresponds to modern plant breeders, were continually selecting new strains of seed which greatly improved the yield and quality of field crops.

The newest and best seed obtainable today is Registered seed. The use by any farmer of a few bushels of Registered seed will be found to be an investment that will bring him higher grades, higher yields and so increased income.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

12 O'CLOCK AT MIDNIGHT

Could Any Man In His Right Mind Put Fortune Between Two Lovers?

By WALTER STEELE

• • • •

I'll never be ashamed to think that night. I'm glad that I'm not ashamed to think of it. And I'm glad that I have the courage to write it down. Perhaps it will help someone else.

The summer I was 20 will be remembered by me as all kinds of a summer. I was in love, and the time was approaching when I must make my choice.

I bought new clothes and washed my hair. I went to the barber and manicurist often.

The latter fact interested me the most. Before, I had always thought that your fate was written in the manner in which you kept your nails. But I've changed my mind. Now I think that it's the way you keep your nails that makes you a success or a failure.

Ann thought so, too. She was a magnificent girl. She was always at the manicurist's. She was always having her nails polished. She was always buying new lotions and other happiness. Does it sound strange, all this? Perhaps it does. But I tell you that I was in love with Ann. And I did not want her to be anything but perfect. I wanted her to be perfect in every way.

That was so like Ann. Kind and considerate. Her beauty had been a haunting joy in dreams for weeks now, as the time approached to make a choice between a fortune or marrying Ann. How could Uncle James do this to me? How could he have been such a contemptible old man? How could any man in his right mind put a fortune between two lovers and their happiness? Does it sound strange, all this? Perhaps it does. But I tell you that I was in love with Ann. And I did not want her to be anything but perfect. I wanted her to be perfect in every way.

The lawyer handling my Uncle's will was coming up at eleven for my final answer.

I felt a warm exhilaration as I thought of the money; how I would be able to splash on the surf at Palm Beach; how I could be native noise on the Left Bank. How I was desirous of the out-of-the-beaten spots or relaxing in the sun. How I would get thrills, and the lawyer's voice would interrupt me just as I had opened the door to greet him.

"Sorry, Mr. Babbitt. I guess things were just too much for me."

"That's all right, you have had a hard time of it. You did the right thing, and I'm proud of you. I am glad you decided to marry and forget the money. Now we can open the safety deposit box and see what's in the envelope from his uncle's pocket and ripped it open. Reading:

To my nephew Randolph James

This letter was to be opened only in the event that you chose to marry in the place of money. So I assume that you have chosen to marry her. I say to you to this test, Randy, because Ann is the daughter of a girl I once loved. Ann is a deserving woman like her mother. If you had taken the money, certainly, you would not have been worthy of her love. Now that you have chosen to marry her I bequeath my fortune to you just the same. May you be happy."

SAYS TRUCK LOGGING APPLE PIE HOWADAYS

VANCOUVER — Albert F. Grant of Courtenay B.C., considers truck logging today a piece of apple pie with cheese" compared to the old days".

Grant, who claims to be the first truck logger on Vancouver Island, now operates a fleet of six 20-ton trucks with his brother Bob.

He said he had his first start in 1921 with a 10-ton truck. It had a chain drive, hard tires, wooden wheels and no cab.

"We had fun trying to keep the tires on," he said. "The heat would shrink the wooden wheels and the tires would fall off."

Cigarette butts were slowly accumulating at the rate of 3,000 feet in the air than on the ground.

Dominion Did Well From U.S. Tourists

OTTAWA —Canada come out of the 1948 tourist season with the biggest credit on record as United States visitors spent more in the Dominion than ever before while austerity-restricted Canadian spending in the U.S. dropped sharply

Carleton Bureau of Statistics net American tourist expenditures at $220 000 000, on the basis of preliminary figures, exceeding the $211,000,-000 of 1947, highest previous year

Canadian spending south of the border on similar trips dropped to $112 000 000 from $130 000 000 in 1946 and $152 000 000 in 1947

The result was a net credit for Canada of $156 000 000 described by the review as "an appreciable factor in the improvement of our dollar position."

Only in 1929 and 1930 had the credit reached the $100 000 000 mark and last year's figure was double the $74 000 000 average for last 23 years.

The trend was startling to Canada during 1946 and 1947 amounted to 180 000 000 and $90,000,000 respectively.

The review noted that the chief reason for the slump in Canadian spending was the $150 limit on the amount available for visitors in the U.S. and the suspension—now removed—of the customs regulation allowing Canadians to bring home $100 worth of goods duty-free

INSPECTOR'S REPORT ON THE DIVISIONAL HIGH SCHOOLS

(By J. W. Chalmers)

Officials of the Killam School Division have recently received report on the divisional high schools, which were visited this winter by High School Inspectors H. C. Ernest and A. W. Reeves. At Central High they were accompanied by Miss B. Mc-Farlane and Mr. A. P. Hagley, Supervisors of Home Economics and Industrial Arts, respectively. The following is quoted from the report on the Divisional High School at Central Area. Miss MacFarlane has also reported on the Divisional Elementary. Three divisional high schools were also visited by Mr. A. A. Aldridge, Supervisor of Guidance in general, the visitors were very well satisfied with the divisional High School program.

Central High School

In their reports the inspectors point out that Central offers a five-fold program — academic, commercial, home economics, technical and general. It is suggested that for the next school year additional vocational subjects be added, that more general courses be offered, and that a plan of systematic improvement of libraries be instituted, toward the ultimate establishment of the library in a room of its own.

A three-stage building program is suggested, the first of which calls for improvement of present facilities by interior decorating, lighting and the like. "The admirable job of changes accomplished in the Home Economics Dept. should be extended to the entire building." In the second stage, after satisfactory housing has been provided for Grades 1 to 9, the entire present building should be made available to the high school. Finally, a gymnasium-auditorium should be constructed for the use of all classes from Grade 1 to 12.

Alliance High School

It is considered that the functions of this school is to provide those students who choose to receive their secondary education in the local community with as wide a program as possible within the scope of such a school. The inspectors recommend the addition of Home Economics and Industrial Arts, either by centralized instruction at a centre such as Forestburg, or by traveling teachers. It is also suggested that only one foreign language, preferably French, be taught. Additional typewriters are also recommended and have already been supplied.

The use of basement rooms is not approved it is suggested that eventually a two-room building be erected for the high school One room would serve for mathematics and science, and be equipped with appropriate cupboards to permit the classroom to serve as a laboratory in connection with this subject. A second be typewriting area, separated from the classroom by a clear glass partition to permit supervision from the main classroom The other room would be for English and social studies, with a committee room-library area, also separated from the classroom by a glass partition. The principal should also be given office accomodation.

Metzler High School

Because of increased pupil enrolment, additional accomodation will be found immediately for some of the students now attending school at Metzler. As it is not possible to obtain a satisfactory high school situation in a one-teacher high school, only as a last resort should consideration be given to building a high school room at Metzler Instead, the inspectors recommend transporting students daily to Daysland or, preferably, Forestburg. If the Metzler High School is to continue in operation, practical subjects should be offered by transporting students to a centralized unit for instruction in Home Ec. and Industrial Arts, or by provision of traveling teachers.

Skyeland High School

Perhaps because its operation has been little affected by its inclusion in the Division, few recommendations have been made for the Imperial High School It is suggested however that when possible provision be made for instruction in the practical subjects.

Other Services

A later report will summarize the recommendations of the inspectors with respect to the dormitory and radio-visual aids and guidance.

GUEST SINGER

Jimmie Shields, long a favourite with Canadian radio audiences, will be the guest star on the Northern Electric Hour of Music, March 14. Appearing with the Northern Electric Concert Orchestra under conductor Paul Scherman, Mr. Shields will sing both popular and classical works. RASHMIR—NOTED INSTEAD OF GUNS WITH HELP OF U.N.—New Year's Eve, 1951, was an important date in Year of Kashmir. At that moment 14 months of hostilities were ended when a cease-fire order was issued to all combatants by the sister states of India and Pakistan. Now the road is open to a peaceful solution by means of a plebiscite to be held under the auspices of the United Nations. The agreement is the result of personal U.N. efforts to bring about peace between the two states and to keep 100,000,000 people out of a war. LOVE BY THE POUND — 250 POUNDS NO LESS!—Philip Edwards, of London, England, shown here with his bride advertised for a wife weighing not less than 196 pounds. BE KIND TO DUMB ANIMALS—Penny the Boxer looks rather sorrowful as his seven-year-old mistress, Wendy Moffitt, spoons him some food in the Moffitt home at Mountainside, N.J. where both are recuperating from a duckling in a lake near their neighborhood. The sorrow probably stems from the bib Penny has to wear. Walking with Wendy and the latter's friend, Patricia Durand, the dog fell into the lake. The girl chased it and in trying to save it, fell in, too. Wendy got out, rescued the dog and then called for help. Patricia, rescued, is now in hospital recovering from exposure—BNS photo.

GIRL DRIVER DIES—Driver of this 1948 model car, seen virtually wrapped around a tree, Dolores Smytka, 20, of Detroit, was fatally injured when it went out of control when rounding a curve at the top of Vinegar Hill on Highway No. 3 near Cedar Springs, Ont. Owner of the car, Joseph Kulongowski, Detroit, was badly hurt. The girl was pinned in wreckage for half an hour before rescuers could remove her. She died in hospital at Chatham, Ont.

Periods In Which Goalkeepers Are Tough To Score On

There are certain periods in which National League goalkeepers are toughest to score on. For example two of the six NHL rag-stuffers allow most goals to go past them in the third period, two are harder to score on in the second stanza, one is at his best in the opening session while one is at his best in the first and third periods.

Up to and including games of Feb. 29 Harry Lumley of Detroit had two goals scored against him than any other goals. Out of the 109 goals he'd got past Lumley only 31 found their way into his net in the third period. The weakest period for the second when 40 pucks pushed on the twine. In the opening he allowed 36 goals to get by. Charlie Hayford of Rangers is a softer netminder who is lighted with 116 goals in the final frame. Frank has had 112 goals get past him 49 coming in the first period. In the weakest spot 51 of 116 scores and.

Bill Durnan of Canadiens and Harry Lumley of Detroit are most consistent in all periods with Durnan, only 31 more tallied in the middle chukker. Thirty-eight got by him in the first period and 41 in the last period. Durnan has had only 36 goals scored on him in the second period. These 36 goals represent the best record of any netminder for a single period. He had 33 creeps him in the first and 44 in the final which upped his goals against to 107.

The number of goals scored today and Jim Henry of Chicago are easy to pry loose. In the first period, 48 pucks got by him, in the second 52 plunked to the net and in the final session 44 found their way into the goal. These 44 goals are the most scored on any goaltender in one period.

Toronto's Turk Broda has only allowed 23 goals to get by him to reach the first and third periods, but soared to 53 in the sandwich session.

Toxoid Still Rated Top Diphtheria Preventive

Recent outbreaks of diphtheria in southern Alberta which necessitated the closing of schools and the banning of public meetings in some districts, serve as a poignant reminder to old and the perfect diphtheria preventive it is stated by the Health League of Canada. There would have been no outbreaks had those affected been properly immunized against the disease.

Dr. Harold Boyd, Health League executive said that in the supposedly civilized days and age but diphtheria should still be taking toll of death and sickness when medical science has provided harmless toxoid, a most efficient immunizing agent. It is true that the Alberta outbreaks were isolated instances but it is hoped the Health League says that they will provide food for thought among the thousands of Canadian parents who have neglected to have their children immunized against preventable disease such as smallpox diphtheria and whooping cough.

The picture does have some bright spots, however, and Dr. Isobel Hardy, Toronto Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Gordon Park Jackson, revealed that Toronto was diphtheria-free in 1946—repeating the record-breaking year of 1946 when Toronto was the first city in its history reported no cases of diphtheria. Toronto is the only city of its size in the world to go through a calendar year period without a case of diphtheria.

It is to be hoped that the attainment of such a record will not induce the citizens of Toronto to become apathetic and indifferent to their duty as recommend the Health League says "Don't unlearn" reminder to remember that toxoid prevents diphtheria.

MUST HAVE STRENGTH

Scientific tests used for rotary drilling on the oilfields must have high engine strength to maintain uniform operations evenly three miles below the surface. Gas-engine driving pump jacks, line pipe and stainless steel pressure jars are other classes of scientific tools used in the petroleum field.

Value of Alberta dairy products reached a record high of $56,000,000 in 1948.

FUR FARMING

Efficient Routine Enables One Man To Take Care Of 1400 Mink

FUR farming has achieved a place of importance among the industries of the West. The industry runs into millions of dollars. It is now common to see dotted across the prairies ranches containing the finest herd of mink and fox, because it has been the motto of owners and managers to improve the stock and conditions from year to year The motto of the Prairie Pride Mink Ranch, located at Rouleau, Sask., can be said as a Push-Button Efficiency! An efficient routine has been worked out by the owner Omar Crabb, and Wilfred Cook, who up till recently was manager, so that one man is able to take care of 1,400 mink and keep the ranch an example of shining cleanliness and sound production.

The Prairie Pride Mink Ranch had flower beds, and pearl jobs—is built in the spring in 1941, farther south of after by the owner and his wife on Saskatchewan. Glacierbine and Imperial Platinums were also there, and Aleuthian Blue were to be brought in last fall.

Plenty of bright ideas have been worked out around the ranch. For instance everything is standardized and interchangeable. One shortcut is the detachable bottom which goes underneath the nest boxes. According to these ranchers it is far ahead of the "pull-out-box" arrangement. Not only is the nest box attached by gate hooks, but so is the bottom To clean it off, you merely release one side and it swings away by itself. These are left dangling during the summer when the nest boxes are not in use. The detachable

Four Floods Again In Souris Valley

MELITA, Man.—Veteran observers here claim that only a miracle can prevent another flood situation in the Souris river valley, such as was experienced in 1948. If the snowfall for the remainder of the winter is only normal there is grave danger of a flood. The snowfall is heavier than last year throughout the entire Souris river watershed and the fact that it extends far south increases the likelihood of an even more serious crisis where the snow disappears gradually Pitty pitched here so far been recorded here Last year the entire snowfall was about 57 inches.

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS

A Day Awry
By JANE DALE

I must have got up on the wrong side of the bed
For the day started off all awry
I forgot to put salt in the porridge first
Then I put too much in the pan
The children's kitten made a real mess
Of the kitchen curtains
And the pup tracking in from the cold outside
Upset the cream! I had set on a bowl
To sour
The pussy broke up and the stew developed lumps
And the cows pipes came apart
I was thankful for my father tone
But I suggested soap a fresh start
I had enough of it with a right good scrub
To make something of my day
When hubby arrived with three other men
Can you get us a meal right away?"
The stove was burned and the potatoes in the
And the meat was a salty mass
Hubby said he'd phone mother
But I suggested soap a fresh start
I had enough of it with a right good scrub
To make something of my day
When hubby arrived with three other men
Can you get us a meal right away?"
The stove was burned and the potatoes in the
And the meat was a salty mass
And the cows pipes came apart

Should Alberta Export Natural Gas?

2nd Radio Talk by Mr. James Walker for Northwest Natural Gas Company

In my discussion a week ago I stated that gas should be exported from Alberta. I said that if the necessary permissions were granted the Northwest Natural Gas Company plans to build a pipe line to export natural gas from the Provinces to Vancouver via Spokane and Seattle. Let me again assure the people of Alberta that the Company fully realizes that the Province has the right at present and future requirements of the Province of Alberta must be protected for and take precedence over any export. It is only a portion of the reserves available for export that the company wishes to purchase. It was shown that the present reserves of 4.9 trillion cubic feet are more than sufficient to supply the present and future demands of the province of the Province of Alberta. I have also stated that evidence had been produced to the Gas Commission to indicate that additional reserves would stimulate exploration and development with the result that the reserves of natural gas would grow faster than consumption. In connection with the reserves I would like to say that the cost of test wells to prove the reserves would not be the factor to be considered but that the gas generally believe, and that lack of raw materials, low density of population and high freight rates on finished goods are a handicap to Alberta becoming highly industrialized. On the other hand I made the assertion that industries incidental to the gas industry would be attracted, such as fertilizer plants using natural gas as a base. The propane, butane and butane. The propane would be used as bottled gas for rural districts. These constituents would be extracted from the gas to be carried through the pipe line and would be available to local industry.

BEST ROUTE CHOSEN

I should now like to deal more fully with the project of the Northwest Natural Gas Company and its benefits which will accrue to the people of Alberta when the pipe line is built. The Company has considerable experience in the natural gas industry in the United States. The Company first examined two alternative routes to the British Columbia but eventually decided definitely established alike, that a pipe line direct to Vancouver, across British Columbia, would only and provide other benefits. It will be built as a prohibitive cost, with the probability that it could not be operated at a profit. Accordingly a route was chosen through the Crowsnest Pass to Kingsgate then to Spokane Washington. The Vancouver Approximately 1,000 miles, including looping, will be laid in Canada and about 700 miles in the United States.

MONEY FOR ALBERTA

The estimated cost of construction is $200 million dollars. Of this amount $100 million dollars will be spent in Alberta for labor and materials. The company will be formed in Alberta, construct and operate that part of the system lying in Alberta. The Province of Alberta has an opportunity to invest in the Company. It is estimated that 1 million dollars per year in Alberta for wages and salaries. In addition approximately $50,000 per year will be spent in Alberta by the Company for taxes who supplying the gas The Company will pay a minimum of 1 million dollars per year for the first 25 years period for natural gas now in the ground. This is roughly 1 million dollars per year. This will be new money in with come from the sales outside of the Province and be used to pay for the gas. Furthermore, a substantial portion of gas will be paid in kind to the Province of Alberta. This will increase Canada's favorable export position. The project will be a tremendous boost to Alberta's economy. It will spread any other company in natural investment and will reach the remotest parts of the Province. It will create the first 12 in a series of materials.

Using an average royalty figure of 15 percent it is estimated that the total royalty payments over a 25 year period will be approximately 25 million dollars. Of this amount it is estimated that a minimum of 37 percent, or roughly 10 million dollars, will go to the Province. The balance to private owners in the Province. In addition, payments for right-of-way for the pipe line will probably amount to $60,000 dollars. There will also be a substantial amount in taxes to accrue to the Province as well as the Provincial Government.

The financial returns from the project will be of tremendous importance in the economy of Alberta. The project will bring substantial sums of new money into the province. It will provide employment and a steady flow of monies to the government and others, for royalties, taxes, salaries, wages, etc. It also give returns on investments. Until a year ago Canada has exported at least 90 percent of its petroleum products from the United States and in spite of Alberta's production, still finds it necessary to import about 80 percent of its current requirements. It must, therefore, be a reciprocal gesture to sell United States a small portion of our natural gas, and by doing so improve our trading position.

The cities of Vancouver and Seattle and others in the Pacific Coast area are depend largely on oil for their fuel supplies Most of the gas distributed in that area is made from oil which is transported by tankers to the coast. In the event of a war, the possibility of which should not be minimized, it would be difficult, if not impossible to service cities in that area with oil. Industry in general would suffer but still more important the population of war materials would be jeopardized. The supply of natural gas would remove this difficulty It would be a real defence measure. It was recently reported that the North Atlantic Security Pact might cost Canada 20 million dollars. The pipe line to the Coast would be no expense to Canada. It would be a source of revenue as well as a measure of defence.

SUMS UP

Summing up what I have said in my broadcasts, it will be in the best interests of Alberta to export gas for the following reasons:

1. The present reserves of natural gas are more than sufficient to supply the present and foreseeable requirements of the Province

2. There is ample surplus for export.

3. A new major industry will be brought to the Province, which will attract other industries.

4. Large sums of money will be brought into the Province and spent on wages, etc.

5. The revenues of the Province will be increased by royalties and by taxation.

6. Natural gas will be made available to many localities within the Province which are not now being served with gas.

7. The development of other resources of the Province will be encouraged.

8. Alberta can contribute in a larger way to reciprocal trade relations with the United States and in so doing improve Canada's position in American circles.

9. The pipe line would be a defence measure and a necessity in time of war.

From the information I have given in the course of my radio talks, I trust the people of Alberta will have a clear understanding of the project of the Northwest Natural Gas Company. I said in my previous broadcast it is a subject of major importance. It is only by having the facts that the question can be solved satisfactorily.

ENCOURAGE DISC VERY

It might also be noted that the company has entered into contracts with three of the major oil companies to supply gas when the pipe line is completed. Each of these companies has undertaken to drill a minimum number of wells each year in their operations in Alberta. When there is no market for the gas the pipe line is built it is agreed that the companies will continue to drill an additional 2 wells each year until approximately 200 are completed. Another company will drill an additional 12 wells when the pipe line is built and the third has undertaken to drill as many wells as may be necessary to fulfil its contract. It may be noted that this will mean an addition to the present drilling for gas. This additional expenditure in Alberta, largely for labor, which will be over and above contemplated requirements, confirms that a market for gas will encourage drilling now wells and will have the effect of adding to the present reserves.

A pipe line to the North Pacific Coast will have little effect, if any, on local industry on the Coast. Market experiments are now being conducted to prove that gas can be sold at low cost It is believed that a process will be found in the near future which will enable gas to compete with oil and coal in this area and industry would benefit to the extent that the pipe line would be used to transport gas to the coast.

ALBERTA TOWNS SERVED

It is the intention of the Northwest Natural Gas Company to operate as closely as possible to the present distribution in the interests of the people of Alberta. The company believes that the pipe line will have the opportunity to supply gas to the Northwest Natural Gas Company which would be a tremendous new and enlarged revenue without having to make substantial capital expenditures to build pipe lines to distant fields. Some of the gathering lines in connection with the pipe line would be used to supply local distributing systems in areas which are not now being served with gas.

Several reasons can be advanced for exporting gas to the United States. It has already been pointed out that the project will improve Canada's balance position with the U. S. Canada has supplied for years, and must continue to import from the United States, a large variety of products which we cannot produce ourselves and which are of vital importance in our economy We must pay for these imports in United States funds. To include very substantial purchases of coal and petroleum products as well as petroleum and petroleum products. Until a year ago Canada has

Killam, March 21st, 1949

Dear Sir:

Those of you who read my report last week will realize that those taking the actions are responsible for the greatest farce ever put over on an innocent and overtaxed people.

I am of the opinion that had all the electors of this sub-division heard the court proceedings, Mr. C. Bell would not get enough intelligent voters to sign his nomination, at the coming election, but he appears to believe that he did a great service by pouring he conducted the election contrary to law. It may be that I should have produced evidence to have Mr White disqualified from being a candidate for four years and Mr Tark disqualified from voting for two years and subject to a penalty of $100, but I do not believe in those proceedings and will take the decision of the electors as a court.

Although it was against my will that I accepted the nomination, as I was in retirement, but I never quit a fight in the middle yet, so I am nominated I will be a candidate to give the benefit of my experience to the School Division. This decision will be made with the knowledge that if Mr White is returned to office there will be a further increase in taxes and necessarily; expenditure or public money. I am sorry the election could not be held until April 26th, as then we may be on the land, but as the school board is now free of the domination of Mr White, the election will be held in a legal manner

Next week I will deal with changes made by the School Board in the past year. I am a member. Further changes are necessary, but believing the court action taken by Mr. White to be pending I did not wish to start something which I could not complete. — J. GAIR.

EDUCATION CLUB MEETING IS WELL ATTENDED

Between thirty and forty teachers were present at a meeting of the Killam Inspectorate Education Club held at Vermilion on March 11 last. Two different schools were represented. The first part of the meeting was devoted to a discussion, led by Superintendent, of the importance of careful, accurate and complete records of school attendance, and the various requirements of the school Attendance Act. This was followed by a period of planning for the coming school festivals at Forestbury and Killam. A report was also received from the A. T. A. auditor schedule committee on recent negotiations with the Dir. Board.

The meeting was climaxed by a sumptuous lunch prepared by the Daysland teachers. The next meeting of the Club will be held in Strome on April 8th.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. B.—

Just about the time we make up our minds to put away the old coal shovel and get out the rake and the hoe, we find that spring is not here after all. For two weeks we enjoyed the flood of pre-spring weather and then whambo, the cold was back with us Chilly winds and blustery snow Then once more we were threatened with springlike weather but this time for only a day or so Last but not least the past week we are now a fresh blanket of snow a six to eight inches covering the entire countryside Although the temperature is around or above zero this 21st day of March doesn't look much like the first day of spring Ah well, why should we worry Just as sure as day follows the night spring and summer will follow the winter. Just have patience

Increase In Immigration

MOST CANADIANS HAVE BEEN AWARE of the fact that there has been an increasing flow of immigrants from overseas during the past years. Considerable publicity has been given to the arrival of displaced persons from abroad and to the part which Canada has played in helping to ease the great post-war problem of finding homes for the many thousands made homeless by the war. In addition to the displaced persons, however, a large number of immigrants have come to Canada from the British Isles, from various parts of Europe and from the United States. In fact, 125,414 new citizens representing 52 races entered Canada in 1948.

Largest Group From Britain

England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales are still the largest groups of immigrants, having come from territories of which we were once, England from countries, Europe three times as large, which we have increased the number of Canadians by 1947. Immigrants from the Netherlands numbering 10,000 made up the largest group from this region, but there were also many Poles, Norwegians, Swedes and Swiss. Finally there were members of the group designated as "other races". Poland sent the largest number which totaled 12,799 while there were 10,021 Hollanders and 8,704 Belgians. However, some came from displaced persons' camps. All of these figures showed increases over those of the preceding year, but by far the largest number coming here from the United States, the number rising from 7,781 to compared with 21,810 in 1947.

Farms Attract Large Number

Statistical reports show that the largest group of immigrants were interested in farming. 34,264 of the total number having come under that category. No doubt the fact that many of these people considerably alleviated the shortage of labor which has been noticeable here throughout Canada since the war. Many will surely have left the farm of their own but others will be working on farms now with the intention of later owning their own land. This will tend to offset the decrease in the farm population which took place during the war when many left the farms to join the armed services or to work in industries and did not return. A large part of Canada is primarily suited to agriculture, and it is regrettable to see abandoned farms or land which is not producing to its full capacity because of lack of sufficient help. While there is need for skilled help in many industries there is little doubt but that those who join either to work on farms or to take up land of their own are among the most welcome class of immigrants at the present time.

CALGARY STOCK EXCHANGE IS BUSY PLACE—The Calgary stock exchange is a busy place but the influx of oil speculators has not caused a repeat of the 1928 and 1929 oil booms nor had to be seen on the Calgary exchange today. The above picture is good and stands but there has been no public stampede for company shares. Clearing house is a busy place these days and here J. W. Sparks receives his share certificates from Madeleine Kinsley. Forty million shares of stock were traded on the Calgary exchange last year.

Predicts Drop In Cattle Population

EDMONTON—A record number of 2,021,962 head of Alberta cattle, calves, hogs and sheep were sold last year for an unprecedented value of $170,742,841 as the province's livestock industry experienced one of its most successful years in history.

The information was disclosed recently by J. L. Pasby, dominion dairy and supervisor of livestock marketing, in a talk to Edmonton district farmers attending the sixth annual agricultural short course.

The speaker said the cattle population of Canada had dropped from 10,724,000 head in 1945, to 9,470,000 in 1948 and predicted a further drop in 1949 due to heavy marketings in the western provinces alone, there was an increased kill and live export of about 225,000 head during the year an increase of about 30 per cent over 1947.

Although marketings probably will be about in the second quarter of the new year, it is unlikely there will be any appreciable advance in price, Mr. Pasby said.

Counting On Law Of Averages

WINNIPEG — Western Canadians are counting on the law of averages, plus experience, to prevent a recurrence this spring of 1948's million-dollar floods.

Public works officials say that under ordinary early rotating spring flood conditions, a repetition of the damage of one year is not likely to happen again for another 25 years. Canadians learned much last year and will be through experience how best to combat the threat of recurrence.

British Columbia's are watching the situation with keen interest. Last year's flood damage was estimated at $25,000,000 with the Fraser River reaching its highest level on record.

In Alberta's three far-reaching areas, the critical part of the year is now the latter half of last June. Saskatchewan officials have expressed confidence over the situation in the spring.

Two of Canada's provinces in Manitoba which were waterlogged for weeks last year are making their own arrangements to cope with the threat. Hydro officials in charge of the safety of the Winnipeg River report which might be affected by a flood of such proportions as that of 1948 in the Red River valley to the south. BETTER SEED
Produces A Better Crop
That better seed will produce a better crop is the one piece of advice that has never changed throughout the ages. The best seed obtainable is Registered Seed, for it has a guarantee of trueness-to-variety, in of high germination and contains a minimum of impurities.
Seed growers this year have reduced prices to a comparatively low level. This then is a bargain year for farmers to use Registered seed in order to improve the quality of their grain and to obtain the highest possible yield per acre that conditions will permit. The purchase of a few bushels of Registered seed is an investment that will bring to farmers big returns in additional income.
Producers should see their Elevator Agent for supplies of this excellent material at reasonable prices.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

EVE'S DAUGHTER

Here Went To Be Her Trouble And Sorrow

By LILLIACE M. MITCHELL

EVE CLARK was making an apple pie for dinner. Jess liked hot apple pie with plenty of butter and sugar and cinnamon oozing through the crust. Nine-year-old Lolly watched progress with shining eyes. "It's the best pie you ever made, Mommy. It really is!"

That's what you and Daddy always say," Eve murmured contentedly. Now if Dan pie is the best and the neat pie is better — why, Joe, you're early tonight, darling!" she said happily.

Joe only nodded. He did not meet her eyes nor sniff at the apple pie as he usually did the instant he hit the doorway. Instead he hung up his coat, said "Hi" to his daughter and went downstairs to his basement hobby shop where presently the small sharp taps of the hammer accompanied the low talking of Lolly's playhouse.

Something Lolly said wisely, "is up," she said.

It wasn't until Lolly had been put to bed that Joe said it. "We're always getting relatively honest with each other, Eve. We had a bit of marriage. Thoroughly and completely each of it."

"Because alas, Joe?"

"Because I've come to know and bear the worst marriage again. It turns a man into a pack mule and a mill. Run for the 8:06 in the morning spring onto the five-ten at night. Monday dinners out of Sunday leftovers, movies on Tuesdays and bridge clubbers on Wednesdays. It's not for me, I'm afraid."

"And — I'm moving back to the University Club. I'll send you back your half of each fortnight plus forty for Lolly — that's the new Trough."

"And a divorce Joe?" "I don't believe in divorce any more than I do in in-wed, in children in the movies. And you know it! If one marriage doesn't satisfy another won't. It—It isn't you, Eve. I—I think as much of you as—as I could of anyone. But marriage—it—it just isn't what the fiction yarns crack it up to be, is it?"

Eve smiled brightly. "I guess you're right, Joe."

He was upstairs a long time before he appeared with his pajama bag. Plainly he was pondering whether or not a goodbye kiss was in order. Eve was of no help.

Oh Well, "bye, Joe," she murmured when she glanced up from her mending.

"I hate to leave you so broken-hearted."

Eve struggled. "Trunk packed?" "I don't want anything. Possessions bog-tied and strangled."

Eve nodded casually.

Eve was startled, long after the front door had closed and she had watched Joe turn the corner under the street light, to find Lolly peering around a curtain "You could have made him stay, Mommy You didn't say a word."

Eve studied the thought. "A wife shouldn't have to beg a man to stay, Lolly," she said wisely.

"Men," Lolly said wisely, "don't know what they want. They always want what they haven't got. I hear things at school, Mommy. Once in a while the mother runs out first and the man has to coax her to stay. For the sake of the children," she grinned impishly. "But Dad beat you to the draw, Mommy. So now we've gotta get him back. We gotta think of something" she said urgently tapping her forehead suggestively.

But Eve felt numb. She stuck her fingernail into her palm. She had hoped that maybe Joe was just in bad dream. It was no dream. Her palm smarted. She followed him to his office once and let an infected hair into her voice when she asked for Joe

"Clerk!" his voice came to her curtly "Who is calling? Clark speaking — Josephine! You called my office!"

Lolly came home from school just as the postman delivered. "It's the change — from Daddy," Lolly said. "He really hasn—means it doesn't he, Mommy?"

Now Eve felt a rage against Joe to unseat sane sense on a castle raid that. But stubbornly Eve would not make the first gesture. Joe was nervous. His voice said so. Eve could always soothe that bit of nervous that ruined an hour once in a while. He need ran round in worry-tracks. It seemed incredible that Lolly could have gone back to afternoon school and was home again. Yet, here she was nurturing up the wash.

"I got an idea, Mommy," Lolly burst breathlessly. "You get dressed and start the pie. Daddy's coming tonight to talk it over and he said he'd be out on the five-ten."

"Talk what over?"

"Why, me, silly, coming into the movies. Mommy I was sitting in the drawing class thinking and they were drawing a plate of apples and I remembered what Daddy said about children in the movies. They are terrible. Mommy. Movie brats. I spent my nickle and called Daddy on the phone and I says I called to tell you, Daddy. And he says, where are you going, darling? And I says, well, Mommy was taking me into the movies and so we're going to hippiegreen and he says you are not something fierce, Mommy. He yelled so loud I couldn't hear it all but I says, you better come home, Daddy and he says he'll take the five-ten and you're not to dare to go into the pictures. So I got the apples for the pie and won't he be tickled to get back home! I betcha!"

"But Lolly"

The pie was scarcely turning brown when Joe slammed the door. What's this crazy nonsense about Lolly going into the movies! I won't have it, Eve I tell you, I won't have it." He did not notice that no pack ing had been done Eve shrugged and turned to look into the oven. "Oh" So you won't have it, Joe? Well—now"

"But, Lolly—you don't want to go into pictures, do you?"

Lolly smiled carelessly. "I don't care, Dad."

"Damn everything!" he yelled Lolly, you go call Tedkins' express and tell them to pick up my bag at the University Club. I'll just have to stay right smack here at home to look after you two crazy nitwits I can see that plainly. How long before dinner's ready, Eve?"

Five minutes later he was down in the shop and his hammer was tapping on Lolly's almost-completed playhouse. Lolly and Eve exchanged fugitive glances. No longer were they both the-and-daughter They were two women who had learned one of the interesting facts of life' men wanted to be bag-tied and strangled. Joe's hammer was singing a song with its rat-a-tat-tat

Forgetting Work And Studies

Singing and chatting around the piano in the station's recreational hall, the above group of Rigid cadets at the R.C.A.F.'s Flying Training School, Centralia, Ont., forget for the time being the work and studies that they soon must return to in order to become qualified as a pilot in the R.C.A.F. Regular. They are left to right: P/C's V. Wootton, Toronto; R. Love, Victoria, B.C.; A. R. Swarbrooke, Cannes, Sask.; F. E. Wallace-Hall, Cannes, Sask.; S. I. Banks, Conway, P.E.I., and O. VICTORIA, B.C. — British Columbia payrolls, and both wholesale and retail sales indexes reached an all-time high in 1948 and the outlook for 1949 is favorable.

$1 MARKER FOR OIL IN YARER AREA

WINNIPEG. — A block of 69 000 acres of land in the Yarer area of Alberta will be explored and developed by a syndicate, including the Calgary and Edmonton corporation, D. M. Baxter, president, reveals in an interim report to shareholders.

Seek New Rail Lines For Sask.

OTTAWA. — Completion of approximately 126 miles of railway branch lines in southern Saskatchewan, for early re-location is an urgent need, in the opinion of W. McNeil, M.P.P. — Weyburn

Cost to build these lines is estimated by the transport board to be about $2,520,000. That is based on the pre-war figure of $40,000 per mile. The increase in cost of steel and fuel and higher wages would make the over-all total considerably more.

Mr McNay's resolution calls for the completion of these gaps 1. Neptune to Radville, 16 miles; 2. Minton to Big Beaver, 25 to 30 miles; 3. Maekota to Val Marie 30 to 35 miles. 4. Neidpath to Swift Current, 22 miles 5 Willowbrook to Assiniboia, 20 to 25 miles.

Building of these lines would speed up the delivery of freight and express from the large eastern and would facilitate the movement of passengers, it is argued.

PERSONAL STUFF

— By A. W. S. —

It has been almost fourteen years now since Social Credit went storming into office in this Province on the promise of a basic dividend of $25 for every resident, in all that fourteen years the members of the Legislature have not been able to agree on whether or not the dividend should be paid, and if so, how Why you would think that on a matter of such major importance in the then suffering people of Alberta, members would have been quick to agree one way, as a matter of less importance (at least to the people), that of higher sessional indemnity, we find the whole Legislature, Liberals, C. C. Fers., Socreds and others, unanimous in voting for same. Why we've walked fourteen long years to beat of one instance when the "Boys in there" would get together and agree on something. It's a fact it has happened. They've all agreed to line their own pockets with another thousand bucks. How fun eh!

I expected Mr. Reper or else Mr. Prowse to object in some form which would clash down the wrath of Mr. Speaker, but then I guess a thousand bucks looks just as good to them as to the rest. It would be Mr. Reper, at least; he's a printer

Strange if please! Since the above was set up, I am informed that a member (Calgary CCF) opposed the salary increase. A split in the CCF ranks?

I am still at a loss to understand why Maureen cannot be all-wool to be sold in a golden-yellow cake. As you who have used it know, this butter substitute is packed in a distinctive pasteboard wrapper, in such a shape as to be absolutely different from butter; besides that the word "Margarine" is printed on the package in letters close to an inch high. Anybody who buys this table it for butter is beyond me. As we the package is opened in homes nobody cares, because if they do they wouldn't have purchased it. In middle eastern phrase customers must be satisfied or Maureen's men. Why sell the fuss?

Last Saturday saw the inauguration of a radio program entitled the "Sedgewick Hour," which is sponsored by Sedgewick Motors and Electric. During the course of this first program there was a certain amount of "hoff". One Plenty Chick for Sedgewick was sold to have won a championship prize for the best bull at the Edmonton Stock Show. That's where the "hoff" comes in. It would not surprise me if Sedgewick and Killam should run or something, or at least become indigenet. Marion and the bull, Prince got the prize in the end the animal Hoist would have been a lot of belt to win.

CARD OF THANKS

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOLS PLAN TESTING PROGRAMME

(By J. W. Chalmers)

For the second successive year, under the sponsorship of the Killam Inspectorate Education Club, six local high schools are co-operating on a testing program in many of the subjects of Grades 2 and XI. Tests are conducted only in these grades because Departmental examinations are conducted in grades IX and XII. Subjects covered include English, Latin, French, Health, Chemistry, Physics, Algebra, Geometry and others.

The purpose of the testing program is to give the schools concerned an opportunity to evaluate the progress of their students in comparison with that of all students in the inspectorate who are taking the same subjects. The tests are in no way promotion examinations, and the importance attached to their results is entirely a matter for each individual school in the inspectorate. Nor is it intended to use these tests to compare one school with another. Each school receives the results of its own students, and the responsible teachers in each examination of all the students writing the tests.

Although the testing program is administered under the supervision of the divisional superintendent, all high school teachers in the inspectorate have active parts in its promotion. Not only are they concerned in the general planning, but they prepare the different tests and do a large part of the marking.

The tests are of the type known as objective tests, requiring little writing by the student, and therefore permit a great deal of material to be covered in a short time. It is not uncommon for a student to answer a hundred questions in thirty minutes, whereas the same number of writing a single word, or of indicating the choice among two or more words, would require a much longer time. Last year, through the co-operation of the Department of Education, many were secured by an Ohio machine developed for this purpose.

Although the testing program has not reached its final draft, it is expected to cover the first two weeks in May.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING

Members of the Killam Presbyterian Church met in the Co-op Hall on Thursday evening of last week to hold their annual meeting. Reports given by secretaries of the Ladies' Assn., Sunday School and Band of Mercy, showed that all had had a good year with substantial increases on hand. A minute's silence was observed in memory of two members who had passed away during the past year, Messrs W. Grant Sr. and W. Fairweather. Mr. D. V. Sunday School is reborn Mr. Lowe who had faithfully filled the position for many years. Votes of thanks were offered to Mrs. J. Ansell for her services at the organ in the past years, and to Barbara Langton for her services as S. S. Secretary.

It was decided by the meeting to build up a fund through donations, to purchase a new organ as a memorial to the many members of the congregation who have passed on in recent years. Before the close of the meeting the fund had made substantial progress with over half the required sum subscribed. The evening was concluded with lunch.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Sedgewick Local Sec
Killam, Alta., March 26, 1940

Local Sec

Further to reports on above the following changes were made in the two months I was a Board member The Superintendent at my meetings on more cheques and the invoices are printed and distributed the 15th and statement for 1940 and also, through the local paves have shown the estimates for 1940 and intend personally to keep the electors right and through the same medium.

As the tax on property has reached the stagnation point beyond which it cannot go, it is necessary to see that assessment in the various units are kept equitable with service given When the Village of Killam was added to a Number the assessment on buildings was reduced to two-thirds value whereas all the other Villages have to pay a 100 p.c. plus an additional amount by agreement. As the Heisler S. D. was wasting assets for a year more than it paid, including grants, and as Mr Bastry advised that about one half of the people were from the Hamlet, we asked for an additional one-third of the $2450, or $1640 to be levied against Heisler.

As there is no provision for levying an additional tax on rural property in this instance the School Division moved Mr Smith from Killam to the Heisler School District In addition, there has been two rooms added to the Heisler school at the expense of the Division, so they can have no complaint when an explanation is given.

As Alliance was apparently repaying two-thirds instead of 100 p.c. of assessment, the tax on Alliance was increased from $6000 in 1940, to $4612.25 in 1940, with $1350 additional in each year by agreement.

Further equalizing of the tax burden may be necessary, as some knowledge of assessments is advisable Now we are having an unanswery election, and this will end all reports by me, except that I will answer any questions at any meetings are called I will swear that I am up against a cunning politician in Mr Nelson, who died on the 21st day of February A D 1940, are required to file with the undersigned Solicitors by the 15th day of May, A D 1940, a full statement duly verified of their claims, and all any securities held by them, and that after that date the Executor will distribute the assets of the Deceased among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which notice has been so filed, or which have been brought to his knowledge

Conservation In Canada

SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION on the prairies long ago ceased to be the problem of individual farmers and became matters of national interest and concern. Agricultural scientists have for some time been drawing attention to the fact that due to soil erosion and other factors which are causing deterioration of farm lands, there is danger of an acute and alarming shortage of food throughout the world in the near future. The problem has already been faced in Canada and a great deal has been done to minimize possible and prevent the soil of our great wheat growing areas.

• • • •

Canada Leads Other Nations

Nevertheless we are told that there are over 30,000 abandoned farms in Canada, totalling some $422,541 acres. These figures would undoubtedly be higher were it not for what has been accomplished in Western Canada in the last fifteen years in regard to soil and moisture conservation. L. B. Thomson, director of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration, under which as much effective work has been done since the serious drought in the 1930's, stated recently that he believes that Canadian farmers have much to be proud of because they are now ahead of most places in the world in the important work.

• • • •

Problem Now Serious One

It is interesting and encouraging to hear from an authoritative source that Canada is ahead of other places in dealing with this problem, now recognized to be a serious one in many parts of the world. The success which has been attained here testifies to the industry and initiative of those who have carried on the work of the P.F.R.A., and other services which have been maintained to help the farmers. It also testifies to the co-operation which the farmers have given in carrying out the treatments definitely laid down. The problem is one which may never be entirely solved and although much help can be given by governments and universities, it is also important that farmers should at all times be organized to deal with the individual problems of their own particular districts. There is every reason to be confident that there will be continued co-operation and progress in this understanding which is important not only to our own country, but to people in other countries who look to Canada for vital supplies of food.

West Lumber Output Higher

OTTAWA — Western production of sawn lumber maintained output from the rest of Canada in 1948, the latest statistics reports.

Increases in the output of British Columbia and Alberta counter-balanced declines in all other provinces as the all-Canada production totalled 3,334,000,000 board feet, a slight decline from the 3,346,000,000 feet produced in 1947

Output by provinces with 1947 totals in brackets: Prince Edward Island 3,000,000 (2,745,000); Nova Scotia 27,000,000 (34,269,000); New Brunswick 220,000,000 (247,147,000); Quebec 1,040,000,000 (1,144,128,000); Ontario 600,000,000 (725,280,000); Manitoba 47,000,000 (56,224,000); Saskatchewan 53,614,000 (105,572,000); Alberta 272,272,000 (336,575,000); British Columbia 2,068,147,000 (2,411,171,000).

Coal Mine Needs Railway

OTTAWA — (CP) — Hon. C. D. Howe Trade Minister, said in the Commons he could give no assurance that a railway branch line will be built into the Drumheller coal mine at Bleep River in Alberta

He was replying to John R. MacNicol (PC, Toronto-Davenport), who asked whether Mr Howe could give him assurance for hard coal consumers in Toronto

Mr Howe said the property is miles away from the nearest railway Negotiations for construction of a branch line must necessarily be undertaken between the mine owners and the railway itself.

Benefits Seen From Wild-Life Management

EDMONTON — Alberta's Banff and Jasper national parks are showing the benefits from a program of wildlife management, designed to ensure a proper balance between the elk population and the carrying capacity of the natural park ranges

The ranges themselves have shown general improvement and the animals themselves are in fine condition

One of the main features of the management program this winter has been reduction of the increased elk herds by carefully controlled slaughtering.

The slaughters were made necessary to increase as elk herds to the point where they were starving their food supplies threatening starvation to themselves and permanent reduction of the carrying capacity of the natural ranges

The slaughters are controlled as to numbers killed of sex, age and condition of the animals

There is no wastage of meat involved. Meat and hides are turned over to the Indian Affairs department for issue to needy Indians and the latter for work in leather crafts.

Railroader Recalls "Good Old Days"

He's been years since he stood off 500 armed Indians, or gave up a rancher's daughter with a dowry of 100 head of cattle to marry another girl or even ordered a $5 gallon jug of good Scotch whisky for the "real-of-vivel" at Winnipeg

Pete came to Canada from Cleveland in 1882 and started spadedriving for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company as the railway was being built across the prairies

They paid me $1.50 for a ten-hour day and I used to myself this could—it'd for another man but beat hell with 25 cents in my pocket," chuckles of getting out of it were mighty slim. Time I had enough money, I didn't want to leave. Pete recalled.

The Red Rebellion lament was at its height as Pete and his crew laid steel acts as the prairies between Medicine Hat and Calgary. One day a roaring party of 300 Indians decended on them.

They had a fine spree and we had fine dancing in the tall grass and It took a lot of nerve to keep on laying the track with those getting closer and more whooping all the time

The railroaders held their ground until a missionary Father Lacombe convinced the Indians that the railroad would be of advantage to them.

By spring, 1883, Pete's thoughts had "lightly turned"

Only eligible girl in the immediate vicinity of his prairie home was a rancher's daughter whose dowry included 100 head of cattle and $1,000 in cash.

So Pete, who had saved up $750 returned to Cleveland "to pick me out a wife."

At Cleveland, his first proposal was refused. The girl's mother pointed out that in Canada, Indians frequently killed white people and ate them. After a 180-day courtship, he married a pretty debutante and brought her to Canada.

At 90 Pete attributes his longevity to hard work, long-lived ancestors

The Chemical Reaction Which Causes Cancer Still A Mystery

MEMPHIS Tenn Even scientists ... words and scientific terms at this ... conference, it can be said that cancer ... or is caused in two ways—by chemical and physical reactions.

Extensive authors, for instance, can cause skin cancer. The ... chemical standard. But because of the long period it takes for the ... to appear, from 10 to 20 years, ... hard to put on a touch the ... cancer could cause ...

Other experts said that asbestos, automobile exhausts, the smoke of cities and certain road surfacings are "suspected" of causing the malignancy.

The American Medical Association's magazine has suggested that even skin ... cancer ... more ... may cause cancer.

But with the prediction that cancer deaths will double in the next half-century, the base question of "why" remains unanswered.

When the cancer specialists get finished here they don't expect to have the key to that question. For then the average man and woman ... would come — and left, unless caught in time.

Typical of these was an invitation to the Duke to be present at the final of a darts tournament at the public house in Liverpool. The Duke thought an ardent darts player in his naval days, was perhaps interested in, impelled to decline.

He also declined an invitation to act as judge at a Herefordshire baby show, preferring to let his official reply from Buckingham Palace ... he did not feel qualified" for the job.

"He has many of the qualities of a successful business executive," a friend said.

Immediately after the contest, the newly-crowned champion phoned his wife at their Seattle apartment.

"Fix me a mess of clam spaghetti, honey," he said. "I'm hungry."

The word "rodeo" was borrowed from the Mexican cattle herders, and means a round-up of cattle.

Have Equipment Ready To Go

Spring is just around the corner and now is the time to check farm machinery and equipment and obtain any necessary replacements ... as probably no more serious figure than the farmer who has just gone to the field to seed, hay or harvest, only to find that his machine has broken down. Next in line for disappointment, says W. T. Burns, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Substation, Smithers, B.C., is the farmer who starts his repairs on the day he should have started his field work.

In checking over machines all dirt, grease, and oils should be thoroughly washed away, using kerosene or gasoline where necessary. All bearings and other moving parts should be carefully examined, and those showing signs of excessive wear should be renewed. All bolts and nuts used in adjustments should also be checked to be sure they are operative. Machines should also be checked for broken castings. These are often indicated by the presence of rust. While it may be true that the machines were running fine the last time they were used it is equally true that some spell checking may have set during the off season and ... take time during the busy summer season.

Implements are frequently idled ... during the winter it is well ... to look at machines. However it is surprising how much can be done in a cooled, sized machine shop if ... filled with a small stove, particularly ... the coldest days are avoided.

We are too apt to forget...all the good days ... the moment in ill wind blows. However, Chief Khatsalano prescribes good medicine!

"Tell white peoples not to worry. By and by come spring."

There's a pretty thought to take to bed tonight, as we listen to the thermometer outside drop another degree below zero. Spring is coming, by and by! And maybe, sooner than by and by, is another Chinook.

Why The Big Blockbuster Bomb Was Called "Cookie"

LONDON Why was the big blockbuster bomb christened "cookie"?

Because, says a new book on Britain's wartime armament, Lancashire factory workers mistook one for a stovemaker and tried to install it in a custom kitchen.

Why was one room in the same factory called "the beauty parlor"?

Because women workers applied their glamour paint there. Forced by the protective face cream, the women complained it was unsightly. So the management tactfully named a cream "specially tinted to enhance the wearer's complexion." There were no more complaints.

Novelist Ian Hay (real name Maj. Gen. John Hay Beith, C.B.E., M.C.) recounts these episodes in "R.O.F.: a 100-pages account of Britain's Royal Ordnance Factories for 1939 to 1945.

He tells how 44 such factories compared with three before the war ... bought long boots and ... Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's tribute:

"They know we needed munitio ... many munitions and ... the war ... They were determined that we should get them, and we did."

The factories employed 250 000 men and women. Most of them worked ... 12-hour shifts daily, seven ... Sundays. One worker in the Liverpool area said he didn't see daylight ... for weeks on end.

One factory had a "card-index ... bureau" there were 60 workers ... among Ann Chats.

Headed by the 1 000-acre Royal Arsenal at Woolwich, the factories produced more than 5 000 000 small arms, 4,000,000 shells, bombs and mines and 6,000 000 000 rounds of small-arms ammunition.

... were practically unknown and absenteeism negligible.

Twenty-three of the 44 factories were employing 14,000 are being kept open for production in emergency.

AVERAGE TIME IS PLENTY LONG ENOUGH

LONDON — The Health Ministry has set up a special committee to find out among other things how long it takes a dentist to pull a tooth. The committee will ascertain the average time taken by dentists, both in the National Health Service and in private practice, to complete different types of dental treatment.

MANY USAGES

In Tampa, Fla., approximately half a billion cigars are manufactured annually. Many of the factories open their doors to visitors.

Cake Tasted Strange But Was Excellent

PORT COQUITLAM B.C. — How an English family mistakenly mixed the ashes of their deceased American uncle in a cake and ate it was told in a newspaper letter here.

The English family received a parcel from the United States with sergeants to make a cake for their daughter's 21st birthday.

Enclosed was a package of "greyish-white powder" bearing no label which the family thought was another American concoction."

A few days later they received a letter saying their uncle had died and his ashes had been forwarded to be scattered over a park in Long Eaton where he had courted his wife.

The letter said the cake was "somewhat" a little strange to English tastes, but nevertheless excellent."

The name of the American family was not disclosed.

GERM KILLER

Soap manufacturers claim that soap will last more than a month when used in solutions as weak as one drop of soap in 1,000 drops of water.

Canada Expects Record Tourist Trade This Year

OTTAWA — International tourist travel which was more profitable to Canada in 1948 than in any other year in its history, bringing into Canada some $262 million, will be even more profitable during 1949 according to officials of the Dominion Travel Bureau.

They point out that comparable statistics for 1949 to date—namely number of traveller's vehicle permits issued and number of inquiries for information received by the bureau—exceed substantially the number received during the similar period last year.

"There is a fair indication that 1949 will probably break the 1948 all-time high record," the officials submitted.

Tourists experts believe that while the period of flush money in 1946 and that individuals will have a little less to spend next year on the other hand there will be more of them coming and the volume of business will be greater.

"There are many people in the United States who are now receiving paid holidays and this is expected to have a definite effect on the trade," one official explained.

London, Paris Fashion Shows Skirts Shorter

LONDON — Canadian women can stop worrying about their hemlines. Skirts in London and Paris spring fashion shows are, if anything, a bit shorter than last year's.

But if Canada is going to follow Paris there will be a reduction in the shoulder line. Nine out of 10 dresses in Paris shows are cut on the salmon line, creating a sloping shoulder effect.

As far as London is concerned, fine tailored suits continue to be the vogue this season. Canadian matadors also will get more afternoon and cocktail dresses, in which designers predict simplicity supreme as designers gain experience.

The British and French shows are notable for their handsome fabrics. The best prints are paisleys—not in the old flowing patterns but dots, checks and plaids. Theme designs also show in floe cottons.

There is also a leaning for iridescent fabrics and crepe. Broadcloth is popular for coats and everywhere plaid taffeta is combined with solid navy or wool.

Some Paris shows include tight bubble skirts unsuitable for fashion-conscious Canada. Fancy dressy shirts of last summer have given way to tailored shirts.

Collections are beautifully presented with British models outstandingly striking. Emphasis is on costume-matching accessories. Blake continues to be a favorite of the big fashion houses.

Millinery collections feature the return of ribbons. Hats mostly emphasize femininity though two popular styles for the spring are the riche and a big black straw posed sideways on the head.

The one button suit, considered older style in Canada, is popular for youthful styles in Paris, with deep-decolletage jackets modelled after the uniform suits of the Louis XV period.

Difference Between Cars And Houses

Forty years ago when the most sophisticated horse was getting over his fright at an automobile, that vehicle cost about as much as the average 6-room frame house. Both were almost entirely a product of hand labor.

Today that frame house, still built almost entirely with hand tools and not greatly changed inside or out, will cost around $6,000.

In cars, however, there is a startlingly different story.

The price today is only one-third to one-quarter the cost of the standard small horse, when government ... takes ... a factor in 1910 car prices, are subtracted.

And what a difference from the cars of 40 years ago.

Then about all you got was a small gasoline engine mounted on four wheels, today we are offered practically a traveling living room.

If these models were to be built with the hand tools of 1910 they would cost at least $60,000 each, the U.S. Automobile Manufacturers' Association estimates.

In other words, while the builder of cars with modern tools has been able to more than keep pace since 1910, the builder of houses, still largely operating with the same old tools and methods, has seen his costs rise four times.—Financial Post.

The first gas ranges equipped with thermostat control or regulators, as they are variously called, were placed on the market in 1915.

OIL FINDS MEAN RICHES FOR ONLY SOME—Many Leduc farmers, like husband of Mrs. Anton Stacknek, (above), receive only a modest rental for land from oil companies, but they do not receive any money from oil found on their property. Many of farmers own their land, but the title to the land does not include the rich mineral rights. Martins Stanuls and his family, who owned mineral rights to their farm land, at Leduc, Alberta, received $85,000 bonus plus royalties on all oil produced from their land. Mineral rights to many Leduc farms have been retained by big companies.—BNB. photo

NOSTALGIA

By JANE DALE

There is beauty in the morning an - a frosty morn in winter
There is new wonder in the hour from the trees
And the silhouettes of buildings with - a misty veil about them
And the tang of freshness enough - shots the breeze

There is beauty in the courage of those we know who battle
To earn a living through the front - and stress
Yes, there's beauty in the living an - in the frosty morning
And 'tis ill all that our thoughts will ever go.

Though we live in ease and comfort - Where the soft words lull our senses
And our paths are often strewn with - pleasant ways

There's a longing for the bear sharp - to be dare.

A Farm Storage Tank Doesn't "Cost" IT PAYS!

A farm storage tank permits you to buy and store enough fuel at one time to be sure of having a supply on hand when you need it. No costly delays when tractors stand idle, waiting for fuel to be delivered.

It helps to keep fuel clean and avoid plugging of fuel lines and carburetors with grit, dust or worse. The tank can be measured with enough close to cause any impurities to settle away from the outlet.

It saves time in re-fueling tractors and trucks, if the tank is mounted overhead. Gravity flow is quicker than pumping or pouring. It prevents the spillage of the pump-and-pail method . . . or the wastage of the "last gallon" that is often left at the bottom of each barrel.

A farm storage tank pays in added safety, because it can be located well away from house, barn or sheds.

Tanks come in three sizes. The price is reasonable. See your Imperial Oil Agent.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE PILE OF JUNK

By WANDA MOORE

HEY, Mr Brown, want a silk," Mr Lacey shouted. Mr. Brown looked everywhere but at him. "Didn't expect to see me driving a car," Mr Lacey muttered to himself.

He poked his head out of the glassless side window. "Over here, Mr Brown. Hurry, before the light changes."

Mr Brown now turn and nodded As he stopped briskly across the sidewalk, he looked with disfavor on the battered front fender, at the rust spots dotting the bright blue paint and at the glassless door. He stepped gingerly on the running board and slid into the seat beside Mr. Lacey just as the light changed.

Mr Lacey joined the parade of traffic. Surprised you, didn't I?" His pale blue eyes twinkled momentarily at Mr Brown and then back at the car in front of him.

Surprised me?" asked Mr Brown The twinkle increased in the blue eyes. "Yes, me with a car. Wait till the wife and kids see it." Excitement bubbled in his voice.

Mr Brown looked at the seat and nodded squarely at Mr. Lacey "Haven't they seen it yet?" he asked.

Nope" Mr. Lacey shook his head vigorously "And, Minder, will they be excited

I should sit," said Mr Brown, as he turned to examine the worn upholstery. "I guess I mean to tell me that you are taking this pile of junk home and are going to pawn it off on your family as a car."

It was lucky for Mr Lacey that the light changed to red because he jammed his foot on the brake and turned to stare at Mr Brown "Was this his neighbor, Mr. Brown." The man who borrowed his lawn mower and whose wife borrowed the vacuum cleaner with regularity. Was this the man who said that no family was complete without a car" Yes, and a very near-hundred Mr Brown.

What do you mean?" he asked as he turned ahead with the green light

You people have been talking car for weeks now Your children stand around and admire my car whenever I have it out of the garage They'll be ashamed of this rattletrap." Mr Brown looked hastily "Then the laughingstock of the neighborhood."

Mr Lacey tightened his grip on the wheel Just keep on talking brother he said to himself and you'll be the laughingstock with that black eye you're aiming for me. I wished that he had not picked up this vice of short

He forced his voice to remain calm "They know we can't afford a fancy car. Of course," he added slowly, "if Mitz hadn't broken her arm falling out of that tree, there would have been more money

You shouldn't have gotten a car, if you couldn't get a decent one," Mr Brown commented smugly

Oh, yes, I should." The vision of Mitz was between Mr. Lacey and the car in front of him. Mitz crying with one arm dangling at her side Mitz begging him to forget the old arm so that he would have money to buy the car. Mitz not wanting to spoil something that they had all counted on during the months that they had pooled money toward the dreamed-of car

Now, my children," Mr. Brown was saying pompously, "are proud of our car. You want your children to be proud of what you have. There is no pleasure for them in something they're ashamed of."

We just want to have it," said Mr Lacey "The kids run tumble all over the car'

And brush for shame every time someone sees them riding in it," the voice of doom grew stronger

Mr Lacey was just craning now All the pleasure in his new possession had left him. Maybe Mr Brown was right. He could feel the new fancy upholstery looking at it. He could see the battered right fender and a smattering of rust spots. It would be a disappointment to the kids not to have a nice shiny car like Mr Brown's. The wife would say anything She'd understand, but the kids he had been so sure you'd like it now.

He shoved the car Maybe he'd better take it back No, by golly! He stepped on the gas He'd show Mr Brown

With a flourish, he stopped in front of his house and bowed to Mr Brown Mr. Brown pushed the remaining door handle and slid out of the car. He gained the sidewalk just as the Lacey front door flew open and three young Laceys and Mrs. Lacey raced each other to the car

I can run faster than Mama," yelled Mitz, her broken arm flopping in its bandana cradle.

Oh, Dad," cried Sonny, his eyes shining, "you did get a car. Can we help you shine it and then go for a ride"

Mr. Lacey said nothing Words were not necessary. Her eyes said, "Dear, you're wonderful"

Out of the corner of his eye, Mr Lacey saw the obvious disapproval on Mr. Brown's face. He felt like laying Those are my kids, Mr. Brown" He said nothing, as Mr Brown turned away with sourness puckering his face while he gave the car one last disdainful look.

Suddenly, the Browns' front door flew open The two brown children ran excitedly down the walk and up to the car.

"Oh, Mr. Lacey," cried the older girl, "Daddy has had a wreck"

The younger pulled open the back door and tumbled onto the seat. "This is the kind of car I want," she chirruped "No worry about scratching it. You can sit on the seat without being pulled at. Oh, Mr. Lacey, it's beautiful. Can we go for a ride?"

Mr. Lacey nodded happily, but he just dare to look at Mr. Brown. He did not want a chunk of the new exploding Mr Brown landing in his eye and keeping him from giving the whole bunch a bang-up ride

Place Names In Canada Lack Beauty

REGINA — During the last few years there has been a distinct change in the choice of names for Canadian sites

And in the words of a Saskatchewan historian, "The names they give nowadays don't mean anything

Dr. Reg M. Hamilton, secretary of the Saskatchewan Historical Society says many modern place names are seen ewdingly silly and show a sanguine lack of individuality

A few of our beautiful and ordinary names are straight importations of streets from the old country. Glenavon, Bank was named after a cemetery in Dumfriesshire and Balgonie is another Irish name

One string of towns in Saskatchewan sings a railway line is all named after relatively unknown railroad-

All over Canada the general practice of naming lakes, mountains and town-sites after a minor contemporary figure is increasing.

But names linked to actual local history or local description are becoming a thing of the past"

Mr Hamilton says many of the province's most beautiful names—those many years ago—came from the Cree, a gentle soft, lovely and very descriptive Indian language Names like Saskatoon, Moosomin are from the Cree

Lougheed Facts

The Curlers held their annual curling meeting and social evening at the Community Hall on Wednesday of last week, with a good turnout present. Three interesting films were shown entitled, Mountain Sheep Hunting and last but not least Little Black Sambo, a comic for the children. This was looked on by the meeting, and after minutes were disposed of, the election of officers for the ensuing year took place with Mr. Fowler as chairman. New officers are—President, O. Probst, Vice Pres., A. Lawley; Sec., E. Stobbe, Executive, A. Olson, R. Painter, N. Wright. The financial report was read by W. Reed, and proved very acceptable. A general discussion took place concerning rent of rocks, improvements to the rink and other items. After the meeting was adjourned a very lunch was served, which was enjoyed by all, as followed by dancing.

D. F McDonald returned to be home in the Green Valley district, last week after having spent a few weeks amongst the city lights.

Ray McCracken and Harold Hall are both patients in the Hardisty hospital. We hope by the time this is in print they are both on the road to recovery.

We saw our young friend Dick Stobbe in the city from Calgary, after attending the Stock Show.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Cochrane from Penhold have been in Lougheed visiting for the past week.

Mrs. R. Pope who is living in Killam at present, spent a few days of last week at the G. Probst farm.

Miss E. Matheson of Prentice is visiting for a few days with her brother Art and family, last week on her way home from Calmary.

The Lougheed Curling Rink held its annual meeting on March 22nd last Friday night and a most successful season from start to finish with the rink filled to capacity and never a dull moment. There was a fish pond, games, lucrative selling and many other features. The most exciting of the season of your Editor was in the Lorne races which kept everybody appealed in the young men. Wasn't she Cousin? The evening came to a climax when Carol Ann was crowned Queen of the Carnival and presented with a box of candy by Dick Yeast. The queen then drew the lucky number for the door prize and the lucky winner of that beautiful watch was Mrs. Elmer Strachan Cranna. After this the floor was cleared for dancing to music by Johnny Heron and his musicians. It was a real shiff!

Mervin Shobery was a business visitor to Edmonton last Thursday.

Noticed the Bates building in the route little house on main street this week. Mrs. M. E. Bax is home again She has been in Edmonton for the past few months, this time but his every body else, is more than happy to have Mrs. Lougheed again.

Any copper needs a chimney a perhaps if they call on Mr Boother and Jimmy they'll get the job done. We hear they did a very good job of cleaning the pipes in the Anglican Church last week.

Mr and Mrs. Ray Sutton and Kenneth returned home last week from the U. S. Nation, why they reported having a wonderful time, but as Mr. Sutton stated, there's no place like Alberta.

Little Sammy Steed was moose to a number of the young fry last Thursday the occasion being her 5th birthday She received many pretty gifts, and with all the goodies to eat everyone had a wonderful time

A large number of friends gathered at the Cambridge school house this afternoon where a miscellaneous shower was held in honor of Emerson Strachan. The honored guest received many useful articles for which she graciously thanked every one After the gifts were opened, a delicious lunch was served

In last week's news column I stated that Pete Gaudin was a visitor at the E. Oliver home. All was well until the paper came out, but I was soon informed by a very irate reader who told me that it was Pete's brother Nick who is in the district instead of Pete, and that he likely will be employed in the district for the present. So please, dear readers, accept my apology.

Rev. Ken Newmans returned home last week from a holiday in the old Eastern Canada, and we a mean they came in style. The truck is one by the Cafe in real swanky

Yes folks, that's Howard Pope driving around in that new car. He stopped his truck for a car. Quite a trade I'd say.

The Lougheed Rebekah Lodge held a regular meeting on March 22 with 15 members present. It was nice to have the country members present again After the routine of business was over the delegates to the Assembly, Mrs. Howard Smith read a splendid report After Lodge a delicious lunch was served.

FLOWERS FOR THE LIVING

Mr Editor—A few weeks ago there appeared in your column of "personal Stuff" a short poem entitled 'Don't Wait', which strongly advocated the presentation of flowers to the living rather than waiting until they are dead and that state where they reap not enjoy them. We humans are to prone to let our roses waste their fragrance on the desert air, while hearts are longing for them everywhere. "PETE" WON'T LIE DOWN TO SLEEP — "Pete" the dean of the world's hippopotamuses in captivity, got his first real sleep in days. "Pete", 45 years old and weighing 4,500 pounds, doesn't like to lie down because it is too hard for him to get up again. So, for years he has slept in a pool at the Bronx zoo in New York. His heavy meanderings wore the edges of the pool steps round, and he had a fall recently. Workmen started repairing the steps recently and with the pool closed to him, Pete refused to sleep. The work now is done and Pete can have his legal mattress again. Above he is getting some food. BNS photo

Canada's External Affairs

A REPORT ISSUED RECENTLY by the Dominion Department of External Affairs gives some interesting and informative facts regarding the part which Canada now holds in international affairs. During the war it was shown that on both military strength and economic resources Canada could contribute to the Allied war effort in a measure far beyond what might be expected of a nation with a population of less than ten million people. The prestige gained at that time has not been lost in the post war years, and Canada has continued to exert considerable influence in economic and diplomatic affairs reaching far beyond her own borders.

* * * *

Represented in Many Countries

At the present time the Department of External Affairs supports twenty-nine diplomatic posts abroad as well as eleven consular offices and four special missions. Seven new appointments of this nature were made during 1948. During that year Canada was represented at timely international conferences and meetings, covering subjects ranging from wildlife to atomic energy. In economic affairs it is shown that this country last year gave financial aid to Europe amounting to $325,000,000 in addition to sending millions of tons of goods to aid in the great task of European recovery. In making these contributions, Canada was reported to be second to none in relation to her population.

* * * *

Expansion Has Been Rapid

The part played by Canada in the work of the United Nations and in international affairs generally is summed up in the report, as well as the events surrounding the entrance of Newfoundland into confederation. It is clear that the work of the Department of External Affairs has expanded greatly during the past few years but Canada's representation abroad still does not keep up with the number of foreign countries who maintain missions here. It is not expected that the department will continue to grow at such a rapid pace but there will no doubt be continued expansion, and Canadians now have reason to be proud of the place which this country has made for itself in international affairs and of the part which it is playing in helping to solve the many problems facing the world at this time.

Good Seeding Methods Reduce Insect Damage

Good seeding methods will reduce wireworm damage the Dominion entomological laboratory, Saskatoon reports in general any operation or method that will encourage germination and vigorous growth of the young plants will result in crop to escape wireworm damage

* * * *

Good sound seed should be sown and if it is treated for smut control, a seed dressing is recommended rather than formalin treatment, since the latter tends to retard germination the department reports. It is most important to have a firm, moist seed bed. The seeds should not be planted deeper than three inches and should be seeded at the heaviest rate recommended for the district.

* * * *

An effective packing should follow the seeding so that moist soil is placed around the seed to produce quick germination. There recommendations are given for treating when seeding crop is infested moderate infestation or between grand, where wireworm damage is usually most severe. The laboratory reports.

* * * *

Flax, oats, and barley generally are more resistant to wireworm damage than wheat or spring rye. If a crop has been destroyed by wireworms, the field can be reseeded immediately However it should be noted that if cutworms are responsible for the damage reseeding is not safe until about a week after the cutworms are no longer a half inch long, it was recommended.

* * * *

Wireworm infestations may be reduced by regular clean summerfallow Fields should be summerfallowed every second or third year and kept free of weeds and volunteer grain from the middle of August until the end of July for the best results, it was reported, but many frequent than is necessary for weed control and may result in soil drifting as poss ble to provide a firm seed bed for the following crop Where there is a heavy infestation of wireworm infestations will not normally be a problem

Still Seek War Missing

OTTAWA – Nearly four years after it all ended, they are still seeking and finding men who vanished into the long, vivid wartime nights.

Of the 10,000 and more Canadian airmen reported missing in the Second World War the bodies of some 4,000 have been recovered, from temple graves all over Europe and parts of Asia and Africa, from the men from rugged mountainside in the Pyrenees

Of the other 6,000, says Wing Cmdr W R Dunn, M.B.E., head of the casualty branch at R.C.A.F. headquarters it has been estimated that between 2,000 and 4,000 were lost at sea including most of the 255 reported missing in Canada and will never be found. For the others the search will go on for years.

The R.C.A.F. which once had as many as 100 men engaged in it, now has left the task to the R.A.F. teams which still roam Europe There are Canadians at the air industry in London to act as liaison with Ottawa.

Company Plans To Spend Millions On New Oil Wells In Alberta

TORONTO To achieve self-sufficiency as far as petroleum products must find perhaps 15 new fields as large as Leduc or Redwater, several of the latter published in the Imperial Oil Review. The new fields would have to be in areas where transportation and other facilities permit competitive production and distribution.

Although Leduc, Woodbend and Redwater represent large reserves, they are by no means adequate for all of Canada's needs the article continues "It has been estimated that from these fields alone we need 70,000 barrels a day far short of the consumption anticipated by 1955.

In 1948 Canada imported 87 per cent of her oil and if the same proportion goes foreign sources the annual outflow of currency becomes 80 the article states. It estimates a current consumption of more than 250,000 barrels a day will exceed 350,000 barrels a day by 1955

"Large reserves must be proven or else blocked out to justify heavy investments in pipe lines and refineries. By producing less vastly than installation pipe lines are going to cost. Alberta crude competitive over a wider area However it is obvious that the pipeline will be built to the Lakehead long before the ultimate capacity of the fields is reached. Without being sure there is sufficient oil to justify the pipeline it is a big investment over a period of years."

As more and more wells come in production in Alberta there may be a period when new wells would not add to the total daily crude output The situation might come about while drilling efforts were being expanded, new markets were being developed and new pipe line transportation facilities were being constructed.

Woman Proves Good At Trapping

PORT ARTHUR Trapping in the bush may seem like a job for hardy men only, but Lillian Plummer, 40-year-old licensed trapper in the Ghost River Lake region of Ontario for the past seven years, has proven that women also are equal to the job.

She brought her winter's catch in to headquarters recently. It consisted of 10 fine beaver pelts, three fisher, one otter, three mink, a red fox and 15 weasel.

A veteran trapper in any standard, she has been in the business since early childhood. Before she started farming at 20 she lived with her mother.

Mrs Plummer covers her line on snow shoes, sometimes by dog team. The only thing she dislikes about the life, she said, was cold weather, in summer she works at a tourist lodge.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

WHAT'S PHONY ABOUT LOVE?

Won A Wife And Will Win An Election, Besides.

:: :: ::

By RUTH K. KENT

I'M CAMPAIGNING for Herby Walters for Governor. Here's how it happened One evening I read the headlines and shouted, "Not Herby Walters for Governor!"

My wife eyed me "Mr Walters is running for Governor? Has Herby been helping him"

"Oh, he," I groaned, "he'll lose, sure thing.

What makes you so sure?" Helen asked.

Didn't I ever tell you that if it wasn't for me Herby wouldn't have a wife?" I asked "We lived in the same neighborhood. I remember when Herby met Dixie She came to call one of the times I was there Herby was so nonstop over her that then were engaged when she left. Herby never thought Mr Beaucourt wouldn't let his daughter marry a mere land clerk"

Mr Beaucourt is a wealthy man," Helen said

Sure That's why I made the bet with Herby, I have been active in politics for the last twenty that he couldn't marry the girl while he was there"

Helen smiled "Well, he married her. So he ought to be elected Governor"

I leaned back comfortably "Listen I met the train when he came back from vacation He kept bubbling about Mr Beaucourt and ran for one of the phones. Dixie got started to cry She didn't have any money. Then we began to worry. Herby started to cry She didn't have any trouble."

"What trouble?" Helen asked.

"That crazy girl went and bought herself an engagement ring on her dad would thank Herby send it. She had to buy it For a little dame with a little ring, mouth and was having trouble in the customs office.

He just mean to tell me the fashionable Mrs. Walters did that?" Helen gasped.

"That isn't all Dixie had her papa convinced that Herby was a hero. That pleased Herby and he was ready to back up the bet Then Dixie told him that she got the ring from a character who dealt out from a hotel room All on the QT. He had found out who Dixie was and was demanding the balance. She had the perfect solution. If Herby'd pay the man, then they could be married."

"Did he?" asked Helen.

"He was willing." I said. "until he found out the balance was two hundred dollars, and he had thirty in his wallet. But he decided to go and stall the guy The fellow was smooth and said until Herby nominated two hundred dollars The guy searched something about the girl being married. The balance was four hundred. 'Okay, you want blood money,' Herby said. Then the guy got a month full of fat and the rung to fly that time Herby had to take the train home"

"Oh dear, and he lost the bet," Helen said.

"Five," I said, "you don't seem interested in me Well, Herby was arrested to go to pay and tell him about it because papa would have paddled Dixie and kicked Herby out of the house. Then he got a realization he should have told papa. That's why he kept telephoning him. Herby was also as an honorable guy."

"What did Mr. Beaucourt say?" Helen asked.

Herby couldn't get him. He got the house and they said Mr. Beaucourt was gone Herby came out of the booth looking like all the crows had poked him. 'Fork over the twenty,' I told him.

"How horrid of you," Helen said

"Yeah" Just then a big guy grabbed Herby's shoulder. I figured the dealer had sent the detectives after him. Instead it was the fellow said, 'Good work young man Dixie was right home and told him and we got the police after that crook Now we have papa over a barrel on hand bars, thanks to you Of course I knew that ring wasn't genuine but I kept mum.'"

Helen leaned forward "Yes"

"That made Herby make the smartest 'I love her What's phony about that?'

I sighed "The old man looked at them then held out his hand to Herby There was a lot of handshaking and hugging and Dixie was in the middle of it. Between times the old man grabbed a plane and flew to Reno. There they got his blessings and we were on our way to a wedding Well, my dear, Herby won himself a wife and twenty dollars besides"

"He'll win the election." Helen smiled "You ought to help him."

"I'm electioneering for Governor Herby."

Here briefly are Watson's ideas on curing the result of 20 years of partisan politics in the game

1 A curler is at his best between 30 and 35 years of age

2 It s stability—not brilliancy — that wins games

3 It requires 10 years for a man to learn curling as it should be

4 After a man passes the age of 50 he begins to take his place as the do the most work He says that 10 years ago he personally would make more shots than he makes today

A Team work is all-important His own rink, which, in addition to himself, is a model of team work, consists of Mrs Grant Watson, Gisele Dyker and Charlie Read

Mrs Watson preserves its strength by "sweeping" only when it is a beaten game. She says that sweeping lightens the leg muscles and makes it difficult for a curler to deliver a shot.

The rink is no age limit for curlers. Look at Winnipeg's Howard Wood, who still is a keen competitors at 68.

The 1950 Canadian curling championships will be held at Vancouver next time in the 50-year history of the tournament the Dominion final has been held in Montreal Columbia.

THE Blackwood's Brier Trophy, emblematic of Canadian curling championship, has once again come back to the West. Ken Watson's rink of Winnipeg's Strathcona Club, defeated Reg Stones rink from Trail, B.C. who made a worthy try to take the famous trophy back to British Columbia. Then 1 A.more of the name B.C. Ken has made curling history, as he is the first in the competitions a history to play a rink to victory three times He won his two previous Dominion titles at Toronto in 1936 and Quebec in 1942 It marked Manitoba s 12th championship that is representative from that province has won the trophy

This year's Canadian classic displayed some brilliant curling which electrified large galleries who watched ten-end see-saw battles. Watson Read, Dyker and Grant Watson all of whom Canada battle it out for supremacy Popularity of this event has grown to such heights that today's Brier is almost as well attended as the oldest veteran follows it from day to day. This annual event has been a big factor in bringing about the interest that is shown in curling here having today A Dominion Curling Association high school competitions have been recognized by the Dominion Curling Association

Ken Watson's big moment was he rose to find the stone or the weight. They try to make their shots to the side instead of making them before the slide starts. The curler who pulls the rock to keep their balance, or trying to steer it slow it down or speed it up They don't realize that the rock is going to be in good shape when they come out of the house. Half of they've lost their balance in dragging the rock to the weight—they've lost that is shown in curling here having today A Dominion high school competitions have been recognized by the Dominion Curling Association

Mrs. Chas. Berkmire celebrated her birthday last Sunday. About 15 relatives were present and needless to say a very enjoyable day was had by all. We wish you the heartiest of congratulations and many more very happy birthdays.

Our Pioneer man, Art Lawley passed another milestone on Tues. To celebrate the occasion several friends were invited to help him eat a sumptuous supper prepared by Mrs. Lawley. The remainder of the evening was spent in a few friendly games of cards.

Dr. W. M. King, Professor of Theology at Canadian Nazarene College, Red Deer, has been secured as guest speaker for special services over Good Friday and Easter Sunday, at the Church of the Nazarene, Lougheed. Dr. King will also be speaker at Sedgewick Nazarene Service at 2 p.m. Easter Sunday.

With three beautiful days we've been having for the past week everyone is convinced that spring is here again, and everyone is getting quite anxious to get out in the garden. The farmers are waiting patiently to get in the fields. We've noticed many of our feathered friends chirping delightfully, which is a sure sign of spring. Also noticed the spring house cleaning in full swing in many homes and that the housewives are extra ambitious. This is the time when the husbands try to find a secluded little corner to escape the activities. They seldom succeed tho', poor souls as we've heard that many hobbies are right in the midst of the spring cleaning. But work or not, everyone is happy at this time of year.

We have a April Fool girl in our midst, and none other than Jeanette Birchill. She was 12 years old last Friday. To celebrate the occasion five guests were invited to the Cafe. They played various games and had a sing song. Miss Sarowski was on hand to help the young fry in order After a delicious supper was served by Mrs. Birchill. Jeanette opened her many gifts which brought the happy Birthday to a close.

The dance Friday night was well attended by both local and neighboring folks. Lively music was supplied by the Western 4, and the sponsors were the Hall Committee

What's happening out in Alberta these days? Plenty! New oil is being sought and found. Money's flowing faster. There's lots of activity, lots of opportunity. And as a result all Canadians are better off.

For instance, oil from Alberta's new wells is expected to save 66 million U.S. dollars this year! That's one of the big reasons for Canada's better trade position, one of the reasons we are able to buy more U.S. goods.

The new discoveries have meant lower cost operation in Alberta and Saskatchewan for farmer and industrialist, and this must ultimately benefit all of Canada.

Then, too, it takes a lot of money to find oil and lots more to develop a field once it's found. Two million dollars a week is being poured into oil exploration and development in Alberta today. That spending creates new markets for the things the rest of Canada has to sell.

And finally let's recall that in the war years—and after—we were dependent on foreign oil for roughly 90 per cent of our supplies. This year prairie production should exceed prairie demand. With continued efficient and reasonable success it is not too much to hope the men who search for oil will make Canada self-sufficient in petroleum in years to come.

Everywhere in Alberta you hear about new oil discoveries —all the more because they followed the long years when nature baffled the oil seekers. Years when men drilled holes two miles deep and found only water. Years of million-dollar disappointments.

In 1947 the tide turned. First it was the Leduc field . . . then the Woodbend field . . . then Redwater . . . now, still untested by time, other discoveries give new promises and the hope of still greater benefits for all Canadians.

IMPERIAL OIL LIMITED

If you're interested in facts . . .
Consumption of oil in Canada is the second highest in the world on a per capita basis. United States alone is higher.
Canadians are using twice as much oil as in 1939 and more than three times as much as in 1935.
At the beginning of 1946 Canada was importing 84 per cent of her oil.
During 1948 Imperial Oil drilled a total of 132 wells in its search for oil and in developing the new fields of Alberta.
The oil industry is spending more than $100 million in exploration and development in Alberta this year.
Bringing you oil is a big job—and a costly one.

Know Your Provinces

SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatchewan's Great Wheat Province

This is the second of a series of articles appearing in these columns portraying the provinces of Canada, outlining natural resources, industries, points of interest, provincial parks and lake resorts, with a view of acquainting and familiarizing our readers of the vast and wonderful Canadian West.

SASKATCHEWAN, the breadbasket of Canada, is a land of many locals. Known far and wide for its limitless prairies, it is still a fact that the great wheatland stretches do not comprise half its territory — and this territory, much of it virtually unknown, is an empire of lakes, forests and mineral riches.

Saskatchewan"—the word means a fast flowing river — teems with tourist attractions. It harbors rich farmlands, mighty rivers, quiet streams, innumerable vast and small lakes, and majestic woods. Most cosmopolitan of all Canada's provinces, and probably least known to the outside world, Saskatchewan has been built of sterner stuff. It is a state without prejudice, where a man is judged for his true value, where hospitality abides in the push.

The size of the province often astounds visitors. It is larger than any European country except Russia. It is twice as large as the British Isles, as large as the whole of France, Belgium, and Holland. Its area is greater than the combined areas of North Dakota and Montana. The population reached a peak in 1931 when it stood at 921,785. During the drouth years the population fell but by 1941 it had climbed to 895,932. Slightly more than two thirds of the population is rural. Over 70 per cent in Canadian born.

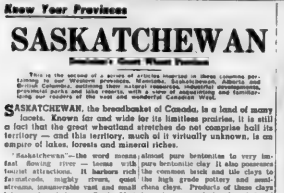
Few realize, however, that nearly two-thirds of the wealth produced lies in the half that juts into the Northwest Territories. It is land of forests, lakes and rivers with great potential wealth in timber, fur and fish, and with unexplored riches in a vacation land.

Saskatchewan possesses an abundance of clays suitable for use in the refining and clarifying of oils and fats. They vary in composition from almost pure bentonites to very impure bentonitic clay. It also possesses the common brick and tile clays to the high grade pottery and semi-china clays. Products of these clays have been manufactured and found markets outside the province and country.

The greater part of the sedimentary area of Saskatchewan, comprising some 170,000 square miles, or two-thirds of the total area of the province, may be classified as prospecting ground for petroleum and natural gas. Only a limited amount of development has been attempted to date and for the most part the vast potential source of petroleum products has remained unexplored.

Saskatchewan is ideal waterfowl country. The province is smack in the centre of one of the most thickly-populated of the waterfowl flyways down which millions of ducks and geese travel every fall to their winter feeding grounds. It is also the haven for the big game hunter and trapper as northern Saskatchewan is an ammo-tax region whose fur returns are the richest with a great variety of fur-bearing animals.

As a vacation land Saskatchewan can be classed as one of the best. Many parks and summer resorts are established both in the north and south of the province, where the setting of beauty cannot be excelled and development is steadily being carried forward.



CHAMPIONS—These two steers were bred by Bhara Brothers Kelvana, B.C., and placed first in the Angus Steer Class. Right, A Shorthorn steer, 1041 was the grand champion steer at the Kamloops Fat Stock Show. J. Bhara holds the reserve open champion steer.

Parachuting at 20,000 feet, 11 crew members survived without injury the crash of a B-29 in desolate northwestern Colorado when the plane's engines failed.

The United States plans to switch military to civilian control of Japan before the end of this year unless the cold war with Russia gets hotter, authoritative sources disclosed.

An organization aiming at advancing within Canada the civil rights and liberties proclaimed by the United Nations was formed by a meeting of more than 300 persons at the Ontario museum in Toronto.

Cairo gave a hero's welcome to Egyptian troops who withstand a five-month Israeli siege at Faluja, Palestine. Thousands of persons jammed Bab el Hadid square as the soldiers paraded by.

Czech Army troops in the future will have to salute when the Soviet International is played according to the Army newspaper Obrana Lidu. They must also salute at the playing of the Czech "Song of Labor".

Important Stage Milk Production Often Neglected

One of the most important stages in milk production and one often neglected — is pasteurization, the scientific heating of the product to kill all virulent disease germs.

And, one of the reasons for this neglect is the argument that pasteurization, regarded by medical science as a disease-preventing and a life-saving measure, destroys the nutritive value of milk.

Such a claim has no basis of fact. Medical authorities state that none of the essential ingredients in milk is adversely affected by the heating process. There is no evidence that pasteurization destroys any element of which raw milk has an adequate supply — considering that even milk is not a complete food for nourishment or unpasteurized, it is deficient in Vitamin C—that is why infants are fed orange juice or tomato juice.

Pasteurization affects neither the limited Vitamin D content which therein requires supplementing, nor the content of Vitamins A and B. The mineral salts are not affected.

The protein is rendered more digestible by heat, and the fat globules are more finely divided Pasteurized Milk is Safe.

Farm Product Prices Decline

The index on farm prices for the month, based on 100 for the 1935-39 period, was estimated at 256—down 2.4 points from the December figure However, it was still 17.6 points above January, 1948. The all-time high was 264.1 in August, 1948.

The bureau disclosed that the decline from the December level was due to lower prices paid for livestock, furs, poultry, eggs and grains other than wheat. The decrease in prices of these commodities more than offset increases recorded for dairy products and potatoes.

There is something in the air,

There is something in the very trees
Which tells me spring is nigh.

Tells me of spring again'

HELP PREVENT EXTINCTION
Important Role Played By Museums In Preserving Wildlife

(By G. M. Storm, W. H. C.)

MANY here oft times soon the word "Museum", passed through buildings where birds, animals, insects and other creatures have been preserved in their natural form and color, and placed in display cases with background and formation that resembles the natural habitat as closely as possible One seldom realizes or can visualize the great care and preparation that is necessary to accomplish the so-near realistic appearance. We also fail to value the important role it plays in preserving the near extinction of some bird or animal that has become very scarce by familiarizing the public with a specimen and display.

The work of a museum in this connection has been greatly valued during the last few years as numerous nests and other associations have made efforts to prevent the extinction of the whooping crane that come to our north country to nest. The Saskatchewan museum has the distinction of owning two of 10 known whooping crane eggs to be found in museums. The museums are also one of the greatest educational contributors. Specimens and displays are often distributed to schools where children respond most enthusiastically in learning further about birds, animals, insects, etc. Furthermore a museum is also a medium for attracting tourists and business to our provinces.

To really appreciate museum displays a visit to the workshop is essential, since it is there that each specimen is mounted and the display case built. The writer had the privilege of visiting the workshop of the Saskatchewan museum at Regina. The man most largely responsible for Saskatchewan's exceptionally fine museum since 1941 is Fred Bard, whose first acquaintance with the museum was in 1922. In that year he joined the staff as an apprentice under H. H. Mitchell, who later retired. Mr. Bard, now director and curator of the museum, is the third man to hold that post.

One room of the workshop represents much like a cabinet-maker's five-month's search scraps at Faluja, Palestine. Thousands of persons jammed Bab el Hadid square as the soldiers paraded by.

Czech Army troops in the future will have to salute when the Soviet International is played according to the Army newspaper Obrana Lidu. They must also salute at the playing of the Czech "Song of Labor".

The exhibits now occupy the museum's entire basement and are open to the public. Most of the exhibits are obtained by interested individuals or groups, but many are purchased directly by the museum. Most natural history specimens are acquired by establishing field camps throughout the province in appropriate seasons. The museum also keeps abreast with the province's ethnological history with many fine exhibits of Indian beadwork, kitchen middens and peace pipes. A genuine Indian birchbark canoe from Northern Saskatchewan and a reproduction of an Indian grave, as well as photographs of prominent Saskatchewan Indians of the past, add further interest.

Some of the most common birds mounted are the mourn hunting mourning dove, ruby-throated hummingbird, great horned owl, pygmy owl, saw-whet, sandpiper, western yellow-throat, yellow warbler, kirtland's warbler, magpie and prairie sharp-tailed grouse. Outstanding are the habitat displays of waterfowl

Among the animal specimens included the beautiful pronghorn antelope, the white-tailed deer, the long-tailed weasel, the snowshoe hare or jack-rabbit, the bald moose and the Prairie dog with his near relative the gopher

Our provincial museums are always interested in the possibility of adding to their exhibits, and appreciates any aid the public may be able to give

Farm Product Prices Decline

The index on farm prices for the month, based on 100 for the 1935-39 period, was estimated at 256—down 2.4 points from the December figure However, it was still 17.6 points above January, 1948. The all-time high was 264.1 in August, 1948.

The bureau disclosed that the decline from the December level was due to lower prices paid for livestock, furs, poultry, eggs and grains other than wheat. The decrease in prices of these commodities more than offset increases recorded for dairy products and potatoes.

Are you expecting A CHEQUE

FROM THE WHEAT BOARD this month?

If you are, part of the money is bound to come in very handy at this time of year.

There are debts to be paid, also provide you with a cash reserve for other crops and opportunities.

But don't say to yourself, "I had a bad hail's of debt to pay." Without realizing it, you soon find you've spent it all — often on things you may way to avoid wasting those precious dollars . . . As soon as you receive your cheque, deposit it in an account at your nearest branch of the B of M.

It's then a simple matter to draw out the money you need for necessary spring expenditures. But you're not so apt to spend the remainder on non-essentials. And you'll be holding on to that reserve — a reserve you can call on if something unexpected crops up.

So why not drop in at the B of M as soon as you get your Wheat Board cheque? If you haven't an account at the B of M, we will be glad to open one for you.

Know Your Provinces

MANITOBA

Canada's Keystone Province

It is our intention to report in series of articles on these provinces pertaining to our Western's progress, agriculture, industrial activities, natural resources, industrial possibilities, production facts and lake resorts, with a view of acquainting and familiarizing our readers of the vast and wonderful Canadian West.

TODAY Manitoba is a well-developed, populous Province, but only 75 years ago it was on the very rim of civilization—Winnipeg was a few scattered buildings sprinkled on the edge of the prairie, a small fur-trade hamlet isolated in the heart of the continent, living hyperonely on the crossroads of the Canadian west.

Before the great Selkirk settlers applied the Red River and stage coaches rattled over the trails, the canal was carried upon a trail by horses in the summer and by dog train in the winter to St. Cloud Minnesota. Soon the railway brought immigrants in thousands to the great western plains and the boom began

The total area of Manitoba is 246,512 square miles, of which 26,789 square miles is water surface. This is greater than the combined areas of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan — Population — 730,744. Rural population—467 871 ; Urban population—221 873. It has the largest individually owned railway yards and the largest grain grain market in the world.

For decades in peace and in war, the agricultural industry has been the mainstay of Manitoba's economy. From the first Red River shipment of wheat in 1876—857-1 6 bushels of Red Fife—to the record expansion of acreage in wheat from a quarter million acres in 1901 to three and a half million acres in 1921, Manitoba has been called a wheat country, a land of field crops famous for its No. 1 Manitoba northern hard wheat, the world's standard. Today there are 58,000 farms in Manitoba. Of over 12,000,000 acres of possible farm land, half is in occupied farms.

Though wheat has been Manitoba's primary staple, each year sees a further broadening of its agricultural base. Dairying, fruit growing, beekeeping, and especially the raising of livestock and poultry are coming in for greater prominence.

Manitoba has great water resources. There are six hydro-electric plants in the province, five on the Winnipeg River and one in Northern Manitoba. It possesses one of the largest and most valuable Pickerel water fisheries in the world In 1942, the province produced over 66 per cent of Canada's fresh-water commercial catch. The world famous delicacy, Winnipeg Goldeye is taken from its waters.

In little more than a decade mining in Manitoba has forged ahead to become a major industry producing an output valued at approximately $18,000,000 annually. The great strides have been the key to northern development. Manitoba's great mining

Propose Oil Drilling Inside Of Edmonton

EDMONTON — Oil derricks may sprout throughout the City of Edmonton in the near future.

First application for permission to explore, test and drill for oil within the city limits was made to city council by James E. McGregor, a service station manager.

He seeks rezoning of a quarter section of land within the city limits from agricultural to a classification that will permit the exploitation of the property.

To date council has not not any policy regarding exploration for oil within the city limits.

However conversations are proceeding between civic officials on ways and means of consolidating civic-held mineral rights, and to determine policy as to their development.

Officials said many more applications for permission to explore for oil within the city limits will be made to city council.

The city owns the mineral rights on 75 per cent. of Edmonton s 116,000 lots.

Mr. McGregor's application for rezoning is the first made in Edmonton since the discovery of oil in the Edmonton district a little more than two years ago.

Saskatchewan Doctor Carries On In Spite Of Physical Handicap

DR. R. C. MERIFIELD had been practising in the small town of Rossaville, Saskatchewan, for only about eighteen months when he lost his vision at the age of forty-five. That was in 1930 during the depression and, like most country doctors, he was practically penniless as far as ready cash goes. It can be imagined what mental torture he endured left almost blind, and knowing that it was impossible to carry on. Day after day he sat in his office, surrounded by a patient coming in, while his mind went round and round in frustration, trying to formulate what would happen to his wife and daughter, who was still in high school, reports the Braille Courier.

His first little gleam of hope came when he took up typing. He obtained a book of instruction, borrowed a machine and started in. At first it seemed hopeless, but it made many a long winter evening pass surprisingly quickly. After a few weeks, he was surprised to find that he was really making headway. It gave him a little confidence to realize that he was not too old to learn a new thing

"About this time," says Dr. Merifield, "I first became acquainted with the CNIB. This opened up a great field of new opportunities. I obtained a book of instruction in Braille reading Learning by myself proved a great struggle, but I could not devote enough time to it to warrant having a home teacher come to stay with us. As in the case of typing, it gradually came to me, and this again gave me a feeling of confidence. It has been a blessing being able to read once again

During the first two years after he lost his sight, Dr. Merifield's practice was almost nil. In 1941 a turning point came when he opened his office into his home. From this time on things began to improve Patients began to have more confidence, and his practice grew. Dr. Merifield maintains that a great deal of the credit for this goes to his wife, who became his assistant as soon as he set up his office at home She infers a hint, for example, what the newspaper reporters when he is taking blood pressures, takes the thermometer readings and, of course, drives him to the car and accompanies him on all calls Indeed, she has been a nurse on many occasions when he was attending a maternity case out in the country.

Regarding the actual practice, Dr. Merifield admits that there are some things he used to do, such as surgery, which he cannot do now He points out, however, that in ordinary medical cases, seventy per cent. of the points of evidence, upon which a diagnosis is based comes through other twenty per cent. comes from the physical examination, in which all are almost equally important, so what they hear through the stethoscope and feel through palpitation, The other 10 per cent. is learned from X-ray and other laboratory tests

"In the case of an obscure internal disease one's eyes may be a help at all," he says. "One can also get some evidences through the eyes of one's nurse. I try to do every bit of work just as carefully as possible. I have to check and re-check. I cannot take as great a chance as the sighted doctor, for the public is naturally afraid that the blind person may make a mistake."

Dr Merifield believes that in some degree he has added assistance to his other senses since the loss of sight. He recalls that on some occasions he has become aware of a tumor or internal mass through the sense of touch, where sighted doctors have not felt them. He has been told by doctors in Regina, where his most difficult cases go, that his diagnoses have been correct in many instances as with sighted doctors.

He is humble about his own achievement in carrying on his practice despite his handicap, Dr. Merifield is justly proud that he has been able to give his daughter a full course in Arts at the University of Manitoba, and, following this, a year at the Normal School. He is full of encouragement to others who may have their sight in adult life and feel that the outlook is hopeless.

PERSONAL STUFF

— By A. W. B. —

During my regular weekly visit to Hardisty last Friday I had occasion to enter into conversation with Cpl. Jimmy Brandon, and during our little talk he related to me a sad story of an unfortunate accident. Realizing no I do, that his story contained a moral I am going to repeat it here, or at least a part of it. The incident refers to Mr. Leonard Mottrel North of the Battle Bend district, who accidently shot himself with a 22 rifle through the stomach. The gun was in the car, loaded, and in an attempt to remove the gun from the vehicle, the weapon accidently discharged. As a result Leonard is now a patient in Hardisty hospital, where, according to Cpl. Brandon, he is suffering an cold agony.

The story contains a moral and a warning. Firstly, is to strictly against the law to carry a loaded gun in a vehicle; secondly, the regular conception that a rifle is a toy and a plaything is a fallacy. The .22 rifle is a dangerous weapon with the ability to kill at some distance, thirdly it is against the law for minors under 16 years of age to carry, handle and shoot a gun.

We often hear it said that the government should do something in regard to minors in possession of rifles. The think is putting the cart before the horse. Towns, villages and Municipalities perhaps should be a bit more strict, but the crux of the whole situation is that parents are not energizing in this matter. I have seen 9 and 10 year old children out "playing" with .22 rifles. It may be fun to put a target up in front of the thing. Better to risk the chance of a child's agency by refusing him or her the pleasure of a 10c-time spent in regret and mourning. Think it over

LETTER TO EDITOR

The Community Press does not necessarily endorse and cannot be held responsible for the views expressed by contributors.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Would you please publish the following letter taken from the Winnipeg Free Press. It may prove to be of interest to some of your readers

"I am a woman of the north who frets among those who once had freedom but who are now under the sway of Mr. Phelps and his monster regimentation. Until the coming of the CCF, one charm of the north was a little man, each one as big as the next, fellow. He could think as he liked, and do as he liked within the wide bounds of reasonable govern ment regulation. But this is true no longer. Virtually everything practised in the fishing, trapping and fur industries must be submitted through the CCF government agency. The typical northerners need to make their living from timbering, fishing and trapping. They are lacks of all these three industries There is little timbering left and they now have to depend on fishing and trapping. For the fisherman is told where to fish and held down to rigid quota. He nets about $150 a season. Trappers can trap only in limited space which means his earnings are limited to a couple of hundred dollars. (Mr Phelps is no long er natural resources minister)

Thank you very much Mr. Editor for the space. — A Subscriber

Oil On The Prairies

WITH THE DEVELOPMENT OF gasoline engines, oil has taken on increasing importance through the years as a source of power, and has brought great wealth to many of the areas from which it has been secured. In time of war its value becomes very great because of the large amounts required to operate airplanes and other motorized war equipment. It is also important in time of peace to both the economic and industrial life of a nation. The United States is the largest producer of oil at the present time, supplying about seventy per cent of the world's needs. Other rich sources of supply are in Russia Iran parts of South America Mexico and the Dutch East Indies.

* * * * *

Is Produced In The West

For some time crude oil has been produced in Alberta at Turner Valley and more recently in the rich Leduc and Redwater fields in the northern part of the province. There is now great interest in extensive development taking place in Saskatchewan. These are mainly in an area extending from the American boundary about 400 miles north and bordering on Alberta. This territory includes the Lloydminster district where more than 150 wells are now capable of producing. More than 15,000,000 barrels of oil were produced there during the first four years of operation and in July of last year the yield exceeded 2,000 barrels a day. There is an estimated reserve of 200,000,000 barrels in these fields and in the coming months great activity is expected in the search for new wells in the province.

* * * * *

Now Supplying Local Markets

Another great potential source of oil in Canada lies in the tar sands covering 1,000 square miles of northern Alberta, and research work is now being carried on to determine whether it would be practical to extract oil from these sands for commercial purposes. Proposals have been made that some day a pipeline might carry oil from that area to join one now planned to be built from Leduc and Redwater, to convey oil across the prairies and eventually to the United States. Undoubtedly Canada has considerable potential wealth in the oil fields of the province. At the present time they supply a large proportion of the gasoline being used in the West, and it is expected that in the future they may serve many wider markets bringing consequent benefits to the economy of this part of Canada.

Sunflower Seed Hulls Used As Fuel

WINNIPEG. — Co-Operative Vegetable Oils Ltd., plant at Altona, which processes the sunflower crop raised by Mennonite farmers in south-central Manitoba, has developed a new industry to utilize sunflower seed hulls on fuel.

Since the plant started, hulls have been a waste by-product but late last year the company began turning them out as "Prairie-logs".

Logs are about 12½ in. long four in in diameter. Tests have shown they have a higher Btu rating than lignite coal. After careful trials they are getting a ready market as an ideal fuel for kitchen ranges, fireplaces, and—if weather is not too severe—in furnaces.

Special machine has been installed in plant which turns out from 10 to 12 tons of logs a day. They are sold at $12 a unit—nightly less than a ton.

Large machine has three intakes—30, 13 and one h.p.—which go on and off each 20 seconds. Special high tension line was built to the machine by Manitoba Hydro-Electric system, which also supplied three extra transformers especially for the plant.

Seed hulls are compressed under 165,000 lb. sq. ft., turned out in a solid fuel that burns like hardwood as dense as wood and which burns in the coal. Logs are packed into smaller pieces.

Out-of-season operations of the plant leave more than 16 tons of sunflower seed hulls a day. Five new machines installed caused handle this; left-overs are given to farmers who haul them away for feed for poultry litter, cattle bedding, and in some cases for cattle feed.

Farmers in the Altona district put 25,000 acres of land in sunflowers in 1948 to supply the plant. Grown yield was 23.1 million lb. at an average of 1,850 a lb. Farmers were paid $1.3 millions, averaging $66 an acre.

Seed Cleaning Plant Opened At Camrose

EDMONTON — First modern municipally-owned seed cleaning plant in Alberta has been opened at Camrose for 60 miles southeast of Edmonton. It represents a $30,000 investment, cleans several grains rather than grass seed.

Funds for the plant came equally from the municipality, the province (agriculture services board) and profits of a previous venture.

Plant storage capacity is 18,000 bushels and can clean 100-200 bushels an hour, depending on kind of grain.

Two more seed cleaning plants are to be built this spring with Government assistance at Wetaskiwin and Westlock, according to A M Wilson field crop commissioner.

At Camrose the plant is entirely under municipal control but is operated by the agricultural services board.

In Wetaskiwin and Westlock, the Provincial Government will contribute $10,000 to the municipality each with $10,000, and farmer shareholders will subscribe the other $18,000. The farmers will operate these plants on a co-operative basis.

TURNED DOWN PROPOSAL

Report of United Nations economic commission for Europe have turned down a proposal to construct a tunnel under the channel between France and England.

Alberta Farmer Is Glad He Doesn't Share Profits Of Richest Oil Strike

EDMONTON — Phillip Schoepp, a middle-aged farmer, owns the land on which Canada's richest oil well is being drilled—and he's happy because he'll get none of the profits.

Austin-born Schoepp owns the half-section of land about 15 miles southwest of Edmonton where Imperial Oil Limited is drilling a well that already has proven the richest pay-zone in Canadian oil history.

Schoepp might have been well on his way to becoming a millionaire if he had owned the mineral rights on the land where drillers have found 220 feet of oil-bearing limestone. But he doesn't mind.

"I think I am happier than I would be if I owned the mineral rights," he said. "I have no worries. A lot of money always means a lot of worries."

Mr. Schoepp, in his 50's, retired from farming a few months ago, and moved with his family into the nearby town of Spruce Grove.

Even when the first oil strike at Leduc electrified the nation Mr. Schoepp family hadn't the slightest idea they were sitting above such rich oil field.

"I was really glad when some wells were abandoned a few miles from my farm. I thought 'now we won't be bothered by any more'," Mr. Schoepp said.

Of course Mr. Schoepp will be paid for surface drilling rights and a purse will likely go across his farm as the new field is developed. But he's missed out on the big jackpot.

CYANIDE GUNS USED IN DESTROYING WOLVES, COYOTES

WINNIPEG — Cyanide guns have been in use in Manitoba for the past years, state Medland of Killing predatory animals, C. W. Mainher, director of the fish and game branch of the mines and resources department said.

The guns had bagged between 25 and 60 timber wolves, scores of coyotes and a bear, Mr Mainher said.

He was commenting on a report from Regina that the Saskatchewan government was considering adopting the cyanide gun and was preparing to send men to the United States to study its operations.

The gun consists of a short tube sunk in the ground. Inserted in the tube is a blank shell packed with cyanide poison. A bit of rabbit skin or cloth is wrapped over the end of the gun protruding from the earth. It is doused with a special scent which attracts wolves and coyotes.

When the animal bites the bit of skin a catch is released which fires the shell and surrounds him with cyanide vapor.

Mr. Mainher said the gun was only used in isolated districts of Manitoba by representatives of the fish and game branch trained in its operation. It had been found effective, he said, providing it was operated by a man experienced in setting the gun.

The bill was referred to the ways and means committee.

Our Forests Are Worth Preserving

THE history of Canada is staged against a forest background. In fact, Canada's have had great influence on the progress and welfare of mankind in every land and in all ages. Without forest history would be a very dilluse.it story.

Take Canada today. Of all the wealth - united in our vast reserves of produ.tion - agriculture, forests, fisheries, trapping and mining - the forests produce one third, or by far the largest proportion of our exports. In these same industries our forests are a large and important source of employment.

In addition to its value in the national economy, the foundation of engineering projects, such as railways, highways and rural power lines, depends largely on the forests. In our early history the forests of our east-coast seaboard played a significant part. They were so favourably located with reference to both the sea and rivers that our colonists built a thrifty trade overseas. Here was the largest personal of Longfellow's Evangeline. Here Scottish ships were known on every port of the world, and by 1874 Canada was fourth among the shipping nations. That era passed away with the coming of steel ships, but the wealth of our maritime shores for framing timber has not died. Nearly eighty per cent. of the land area of Nova Scotia is unfit for agriculture but is well adapted for the production of timber crops.

The job our merchantmen have to do in one of conservation-communication-agreement, not development. Fifteen hundred miles westward began the prairies, where the task is entirely different. It is a matter of maintaining a forest or woodlot already there and of attempting to establish a grove of trees where none exists.

The development of prairie farm tree growth has been phenomenal. The government policy of tree distribution, started in 1901 as an experiment, has grown until by 1946 the output from nursery stations had totalled 200 million trees.

It is not many years since the western plains farmer derided the idea of growing trees, but already the benefits of woodlot and shelter belts are widely acknowledged. Twenty-five years ago one seldom saw fruit and farm husbandry there were no vegetable patches or flower gardens and the sight of a few willows living their precarious life near a gully or at the bottom of a coulee was a relief to dust-choked eyes.

Today, trees give shelter to crops, buildings and livestock. They collect and hold the snow, preventing it from banking up around buildings, and they retrain it slowly in spring so that more of its precious moisture is fed into the earth. They break the force of gales and winds in summer, slowing down evaporation. They give shelter for gardens and make living more pleasant.

Use Of Land

This development was made to indicate that forestry is practicable not only and desirable in all parts of Canada from the natural home of trees on the Atlantic and Pacific slopes to the grasslands of the Prairies. But not all land is suitable for trees or for the same kind of trees.

Forestry represents one of the three major ways of using land. The others are cropping and pasturing - only woodland grass land and desert occupy the surface of the earth among them, and between them there is constant conflict. Progress lands are forever attempting to encroach upon the woodlands of farm with the assistance of men bent upon establishing their farms. The forest is always trying to encroach upon cleared land as attempts which have been neglected. It is only in the last twenty-five years that we have come to understand knowledge about wood and other materials by research with the aim of wide scope.

Thus, upon myriad recipes, rule of thumb, as to where trees should be planted or not planted. Experience is being backed up with research and the long-term results are weighed as the immediate effects should be considered. The cleaning of waterfor example is being developed by the Dominion Marsh. On farms and not available water storage and the protection of land in being put to good use. The cleaning of Florida swamps on the other hand has upset the balance of nature as well as the bank balance of those who did it. Not each expert advice but common sense is needed.

Different parts of the country demand different trees and different uses. A well-kept forest in British Columbia will look quite different from one in New Brunswick, yet each may be perfect for its location. The trees are suited to the soil and climate, and, so far as may be possible, to the requirements of the owner.

There are, however, certain qualities they will have in common. Poor or surplus trees have been thinned out to give the good ones room. There are no over-ripe trees, past their best growing years, no diseased

BUBBLE GUM AN ESKIMO FAVORITE

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — It's boom and bust beyond the Arctic circle.

The Eskimos are chewing bubble gum.

It was a troubled Arctic while residents think by soldiers stationed at Cape Spencer and other northern outposts. Some of the soldiers may have gone, but the bubble gum has stuck.

Among the more gifted manufacturers are the older women who used to chew tobacco. Now it's bubble gum or trouble, chum.

Observers say it is not unusual when one trading post is out of bubble gum, for Eskimos to hitch up dog teams and travel as far as 60 miles to another post where stocks are ample.

It is a common sight when any... trading post to see Eskimos lining up before the window, each with a dollar bill in the outstretched fist.

...ut unexpected items, not very heavily or bodily shaped, crave. The record flow is covered with needles, knives, rings and small brooches, so that the end absorbs the large amounts of water trees need and prevents erosion. Grazing animals and fire are kept out. These are the marks of a good forest anywhere.

Age, Growth And Man

There are two dangers facing the planner of a woodlot or small forest. One is that he may expect returns too quickly, and be disappointed or that he may decide the time needed for growth is too long, and find results not worth his best effort.

It is true that trees do not grow to maturity with the speed of radishes or nasturtiums. With some trees one must think in terms of half centuries and centuries and it may be said as an aside that countries with the vision and courage to do so will benefit because children now at school will live to see the culmination of much thinking.

If you wish to be remembered, and the English essayist in Dreamthorp, better plant a tree than build a city or strike a medal. It will outlast both." In England there are oaks whose acorns were forming that June day when King John signed Magna Charta at Runnymede, and a few years ago there still existed the Newland, Gloucester, oak mentioned in the Domesday Book which was rooted in A.D. 1080-1086. It is also recorded that sequoias of California have reigned since back to 200 B.C. And in Mexico there is a cypress said to be 3,000 to 5,000 years old.

That is one side of the shield, the exotic side which has not much material significance for the Canadian farmer intent upon growing fence posts, firewood or merchantable lumber. He will be immediately interested in the fact that it is natural home east of the Rockies a spruce forest reaches maturity in 80 to 100 years and balsam reaches merchantable size in 60 years. These two, which account for 90 per cent of the wood used by pulp and paper mills, make up by far the largest part of our softwood forest.

Here is a table based on the average of hundreds of trees of each kind growing in plantations on the nursery station at Indian Head, Sask. It shows the age of the trees and the height attained at that age:

| Species | 5 Years Ft. In. | 15 Years Ft. In. |

Forests Store Water

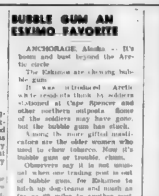
Over thousands of square miles of North America, the forests, undisturbed and overgrazed, declares William Vogt in Road to Survival, are natural controls of moisture and skimming water reservoirs, feeding springs and streams above the effect of this devegetation.

Although forests indeed rain, impounding evaporation for before the water reaches the ground, they are most effective at immediately available water, they more than make up for it in other ways. Research findings show that the residual water is almost all usable. Roots move the forest, and the run-off becomes clear, usually wasted and always laden with valuable topsoil.

The trees, their roots, and the humus of the forest floor are a great sponge. The result is a tendency to equalize stream flow, to reduce the spring freshet and low water stages, and to lessen the seriousness of floods. This is of importance to not only to adjacent farms, but to distant centres of industry which depend upon a steady flow of water in the rivers to supply their electricity.

This water control we have been talking about is managed mostly by the great forests which mantle the mountain ranges and the highlands which are the headwaters of our great rivers, but even the small farm woodlot has its part to play.

One farm woodland has little effect on the whole flood-control problem, but a little patch of woods here, a larger one on another farm, and so on for thousands and thousands of farms—why, even today these farm woodlots amount to 26,782 square miles, and that is important acreage in any country's water conservation programme. — The Royal Bank Of Canada Monthly Letter.



"I'VE AN EVEN MORE TOOTHSOME TOT"—A gurgling, 10-month-old girl wonder moved into first place in the international teeth derby at Ottawa on Sunday from Alkirk in the Florida Keys hopefully took count of their offspring's cuspids. The derby-leading young lady with 20 teeth is Elizabeth Ann Dowd, of Ottawa. The unofficial competition got underway when 12-month-old Diadra Julinot, of Houston, Texas appeared in the newspapers with what was then thought a grand display of 16 baby teeth. She was officially billed as having "the greatest number of teeth reported in the U.S. for any child of her age." Ottawa's minister entry, two months younger and sporting four more molars than her nearest rival, was a nasty blow to the "biggest and best-looking complex of the Lone Star State. Elizabeth Ann got off at the crack of the gun in her toddle for top honors in the teeth derby. At eight weeks she already had two shining kewers to her credit. With her 18 others came her claim to the national crown of "Chiclets" most toothsome tot." C.N.S. photo.

Manitoba Farm Income For 1948 Establishes Record

WINNIPEG — Total value of agriculture in Manitoba during 1948 reached a record high of $278,174,000, a 37 per cent. increase over the previous year.

A $5,290 average income per farm established another record.

Radioactive Calendar Developed

CHICAGO — Establishment of a radioactive calendar which reaches back 30,000 years was announced by a University of Chicago scientist.

The new time-measuring system developed by two years of work directed by Dr. Willard F. Libby - an determine to within 200 years the age of any human or animal relics.

It is based upon the degree of radiation from carbon 14, a radioactive substance which Libby says all living organisms possess.

Dr. Libby and his associates, E. C. Anderson and J. R. Arnold, have tested 20 human and animal relics from such varied locations as the Antarctic Florida, Chicago, Europe, Africa and the Near East.

The tests have shown there is a consistent degree of radioactivity from carbon 14 in all human and animal bones. At death, absorption of the isotope stops, and the degree of radioactivity begins a slow decline as it is dissipated by radiation.

It is this constant rate of decline, a radioactivity which supplies Dr. Libby with his yardstick of age.

The time formula was checked by measurements of the radioactivity of organic specimens whose approximate ages were known. Obtained measurements measured were about 4,000 years old.

The radioactive dissipation graph shows approximately 50 per cent. dissipation over 5,000 years. Then bones 10,000 years old would produce about 20 per cent. of the radiation that living bones do.

Rocket Sent Past Earth's Atmosphere

WHITE SANDS, N.M. — A new-type rocket launched by the Army Ordnance Dept. at White Sands has attained the highest altitude and speed ever reached by a man-made object.

Army officials said the rocket reached 250 miles into the skies, above the earth's atmosphere, during a firing. The missile reached the peak of its flight when it shot outside the earth's outer atmosphere at a speed of more than 5,000 miles an hour.

The previous speed record was 3,500 achieved Dec. 10, 1948 with a single-stage V-2 rocket - a German rocket, like the one recently fired, is launched from the ground, then propelled farther by a second explosion after it had started its flight.

Brig. Gen. Phillip G. Blackmore, White Sands commanding general, announced the new altitude record is 25 times greater than the previous record of 114 miles.

Sincerity Prompts Church Attendance

LONDON, Eng. — A survey to determine why people go to church, published in the British Weekly, says that a congregation is attracted by sincerity and leadership on the part of the minister rather than by his personality or showmanship.

Among other things the investigators found that:

1. In successful churches youth clubs, socials, parties and dances, while helping to attract people to church services, are subordinated to the main religious purpose."

2. Churches with the best attendance usually have a fairly massive programme of week-day activities, in which Christian leadership courses and guild meetings play a greater part than socials, parties and dances.

3. There is little evidence that popular churches draw their adherents from other churches. "Most of their people would otherwise be unattached."

4. A large building is a handicap where the congregation is small. "What is desired is a partitioned section which can be enlarged as the congregation grows."

It is said that painstaky existed in China 3,000 years before Christ.

EDUCATION OFFICIALS REPORT ON SPECIAL SERVICES

(By J. W. Chalmers)

Divisional Dormitory

Miss A. B. MacFarlane, Supervisor of Home Economics for the Dept of Education, has recently issued a report on the Dormitory Miss MacFarlane commented on the general cleanliness and good order to be observed in kitchen, dormitory and elsewhere about the building. Bright curtains and recreational facilities were also features that were commended. The general atmosphere and deportment of the students was found to be happy, with the students sharing in the planning and carrying out of activities in a prompt, efficient and economical manner. Recommendations were made for the purchase of additional equipment, and the surfacing of the compost floor in the kitchen.

High School Use of Films—

Inspector H. C. Sweet has studied the use of films in divisional high schools, and suggestions and recommendations have been made by Central, Dogsland and Athabasca High Schools. Suggestions are made by the Supervisor of the Audio-Visual Aids Branch, Mr. Hamilton, advise that films for the fall term be ordered by August 1st, and those for the spring term by November 1st. He also recommends that a complete record of films that have been shown. Where projection rooms are not available, classroom should be closed for framing. Finally, the value of the film aside as a teaching device must not be overlooked.

Divisional Activities—

Mr. A. A. Aldridge, Supervisor of Guidance for the Dept. spent two days in Killam, Division in February, and was also with the Central, Vilanee and Improved high schools. His long and careful report on guidance activities contains recommendations in five fields

1 Cumulative Records — These are rare being used in all schools in the division. It is suggested that a committee of teachers working with the Supt. outline a uniform procedure to be followed in keeping these records. A suitable member of each school staff might be assigned to the duty of seeing that records are uniformly understood by teachers and kept up to date.

2 Testing — An organized testing program will greatly assist in counselling students. Mr Aldridge suggests a counselor committee to establish purposes of a testing program, select tests, and plan for remedial work. The pre-graduating matriculation test should be of academic ability, aptitudes and interests Achievement tests assist in planning remedial work at all grade level.

3 Counselling — At Central High time-table provision should be made to provide time to assist senior students to plan future courses. Grade 9 students should be given more help in planning their high school program.

4 Library and Other Aids — Information should be made available to these students on occupation and employment Further development of professional library for staff members is suggested also Mr Aldridge also recommends the use of film - occupations, mental hygiene, and the problems of personal growth

5 Using Community Resources — Suggestions in this field include school visits by business and professional men, trial interviews survey of local job opportunities, familiarization of employers with provisions of Apprenticeship Act, and awarding of scholarships or bursaries by local organizations.

Does oil help pay your taxes?

Oil may not actually pay your taxes—but it helps.

Seven million dollars—equivalent to about $37 for each family in the province —was collected by the Alberta government in oil royalties, rentals and bonuses alone in the 1948 fiscal year. Actual taxes paid by the oil industry added much to that total. And '49 promises even larger revenue.

Then there's the increasing prosperity brought by the new oil finds and the growth of industry which means work for more people—and more people to share the provincial tax burden. The Alberta oil industry is spending one hundred million dollars this year on equipment, land, buildings, supplies and payrolls. That's almost $2,000,000 a week! It can and does support new industries—and more employment.

Meanwhile, the new discoveries have kept oil prices down in Alberta and Saskatchewan This means savings not only to users of petroleum but to everyone—because it means lower cost production on everything from agriculture to heavy industry. So you'll hear more money to pay your own taxes!

All this has come about because new oil was found in Alberta. And that oil was found because there were people who were willing to take a risk looking for it.

Bringing you oil is a big job—and a costly one

IMPERIAL OIL LIMITED

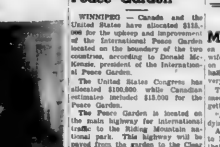
Pioneer Weekly Newspaper Publisher Retires—Son Follows Father's Footsteps

AFTER 49 years in the printing and publishing business in our Canadian West, it can be correctly said, that such a record has been the means towards cementing the foundation that has helped our Western provinces to make such strides of progress since the beginning of the century." That honor goes to Mr. William Thomas Murphy, of Viscount, Sask., who on December 31st last retired from publishing the Viscount Sun. On that date he realized his life long ambition that one of his sons should follow in his footsteps in the person of William B.

Besides publishing the paper at Viscount, Mr. Murphy served for 18 years on the Village Council, and for seven years as overseer. He has been an active member of the A.F & A.M 151 at Viscount and at present is the D.D.G.M for District 18 G.R. of Saskatchewan. W.T. has also been active in the Saskatchewan division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association. He was elected as president in 1936, and persons to that was on the board of directors from 1933 to 1935.

William Thomas Murphy was born in Carlton Place, Ont., one of late Mr. and Mrs C. A. Murphy, and migrated to Hartley Man., as a small boy. He began his venture into the newspaper world as a bellowsetter. He was apprenticing under an older brother, who like all journeymen had become restless and things in his trade. Thusly young Tom was always put to tasks under



WILLIAM THOMAS MURPHY

The next trade [illegible] 1911), was that of a steam-fitters helper. Once again young Tom's fame had got him into tight corners. This time he was required to crawl bodily into the internal workings of a steam engine and with boilers in his rear and a rubber between his [illegible] a press while tubes were rushed. During the apprenticeship here of W.T. was called upon to set up a press for the Hartley Advance.

Preferring this type of work to the steam fitting game he became a forge Mr. Murphy applied to Dr. Fred H. Woodhall who at that time owned the Hartney Star (Man.

Forty-one years ago, March 4th, young Tom began his trade as a printer. During the next few years the Hartney Star printing plant was moved several times and each time this necessitated the dismantling carting moving and reassembling of the old Minnow press.

When Mr. Wampole Murdock, now residing in Santa Monica, Calif., purchased the plant, Mr. Murphy had become a full time printer's devil. After serving the Star for several years W.T. spent some time on the staff of the Winnipeg Tribune, a year or so on the Brandon Sun setting hit on the back of a stiff-collared neck with a wet sponge, and then spent three years with Joe Mc-Intyre of the Russell Banner. (Man.)

On April 1st, 1911, Mr. Murphy came to Viscount, Sask., to manage the Viscount Sun and purchased the plant in August of that year. The Sun has been published continually since January, 1910 (W. McL. Potter established the Sun in 1910. J. H. Hutchison bought and sold it in 1911).

Recipe

Measure into bowl, ¼ c lukewarm water, 1 tsp granulated sugar and 1 envelope Fleischmann's Yeast. Stir in 1 tsp sugar. Let stand 10 min. Scald ½ c milk; cool to lukewarm. Add ¼ c granulated sugar, ½ tsp. salt, 2 tbs. shortening, and to lukewarm. Add to yeast mixture. Measure in 1 well beaten egg. Stir in 1 c sifted all-purpose flour. Beat until smooth. Work in 2½ c more sifted flour. Knead on lightly floured board until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl and brush top with melted butter or shortening. Cover and set in warm place, free from draught. Let rise until doubled in bulk. When dough is risen, combine ½ c. brown sugar (lightly packed), ¼ c. honey, ¼ c. butter or margarine, melted, divide in half and spread in two 9" greased pans. About 2 pecan halves over each pan. Punch down dough and divide mixture into 2 equal portions. Into each portion roll 9-10 each pecan into an oblong ¼ in. thick and 12 long. Spread dough with melted butter or shortening, sprinkle with ½ c brown sugar (lightly packed) and cinnamon, ½ c chopped pecans. Roll up, as a 12" edge, and cut each piece loosely, like a jelly roll 1 cut into 1 slices. Place, a cut side up, as prepared muffin pans. Grease tops. Cover and let rise in warm place, free from draught, until almost double in bulk, about 1 hour. Bake in moderate oven, 375°, about 30 minutes. Turn out of pans immediately and serve hot, or reheated

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

POOR ROGER

By Charlotte McCarthy

MR. LANE propped his dripping umbrella carefully in the brisk. He was in a hurry to get home to his wife's excited news, as she carried on a telephone conversation in the hall. "Wonderful, Millie! I'm so very glad you can come."

There was a pause, while Mr. Lane frowned and wondered if he were getting a cold.

"Albert will be so pleased too. He's dying to meet you"

An unpleasant thought occurred to Mr Lane If it were the Millie that he believed it was, he was not going to meet her Far from it! This Millie had been a college chum of his wife's, and had married a Roger Maxwell, who it seems was not only the next thing to a millionaire, but had at one time proposed to Clara, Mr. Lane's wife.

Clara wasn't a nagging wife, but the fact that she could have married an almost millionaire seemed to stick in her mind. At the most unexpected times, for instance the night they old car had given out on a hill, she had dragged Roger's name into the conversation.

Millie had moved away just after she had Clara had met, and apart from Clara telling him that her friend had caught the wealthy Roger on the rebound, he had heard little of Millie since. Until last week, that is, when another school chum of Clara's had seen Millie driving past in a big car with a chauffeur at the wheel.

Since that day, every time the phone had rung Clara had dashed to answer it. "Millie is sure to get in touch with me, now that she's back in Cedarville she had remarked to her husband "Just as soon as she gets around to booking up our address

Her face was glowing, as she hung up the receiver and greeted him. "That was Millie! She's travelled all over the world, and tomorrow night she's coming here."

"She won't have to pack much for her next trip" commented Mr. Lane with dry sarcasm. "Never a husband I've heard so much about!"

"Oh, Roger" Mrs. Lane tried to appear unconcerned. "I didn't mention his name. After all, she may feel a bit odd about his having been in love with me."

"Poor Clara!" To let a catch like Roger slip out from under your nose, to marry a salesman."

In spite of herself, she had to smile "I'll have a ready made excuse for Millie."

But that. She's probably half starved

"Just imagine," said Mrs Lane dreamily, "All over Europe!"

The next night, Mr. Lane came home to find Clara in the most eminent chair in the living room. He hadn't been quite prepared for her. She seemed such a nice, sensible young woman, and if he hadn't had a little training against Millie himself, he would have really enjoyed her company. But these "plain Jane" and things in hair pieces were obviously what she didn't mean standing.

At the table, as he had known it would, the conversation got around to Millie's travels. She's coming in from New York next week Mrs. Lane's office here, you know" she told Mr Lane.

Mr. Lane hadn't known, and really wasn't too interested. Mrs. Allen a neighbor dropped in just then to borrow a book her husband needed, and was full of apologies for coming at this time. That is an old school chum of mine . . . Mrs. Maxwell," said Mrs. Lane with patchwork pride

An odd expression crossed Millie's face but she acknowledged the introduction graciously. Then, after Mrs. Allen had gone and the book had departed, she turned to Mrs Lane, her face slightly flushed. "But I thought you knew, Clara. About my first husband, I mean."

"What? You mean that Roger isn't" gasped Mrs Lane.

Her face crimson Mrs. Lane avoided her husband's eyes. "Of course I'm glad before we'd heard, Millie, but"

"Poor Roger" said Millie

"Poor Roger" echoed Mr. Lane happily and added their guest of the evening would be much chick.

Father Murray's Famed Notre Dame Now Incorporated

REGINA — Back in the 30's Father Athol Murray gathered together a few bank cars in the little town of Wilcox, 35 miles south of here, and started a college for athletic fellows without much money.

The school was called Notre Dame College. That beginning grind with his coon-skin coat soon became a familiar figure in hockey rinks all the Province. His name became known throughout most of Canada. His teams almost always named "Hounds", were respected for their spirit despite the occasional lack of equipment.

Today the hard-working priest's proteges still play hockey, baseball and football—but with a difference Their college — Notre Dame — recently was officially incorporated in the province here, under the Saskatchewan Legislature. The bill passed without a word of debate.

SOME FACTS

Dear Sir:

February 19th, 1949

Motion by Mr. Cole: That in accordance with the provisions of Section 220 of The School Act, the Minister be requested to grant permission for an additional levy in the amount of $750.00 on the hamlet of Meister. Cd.

March 22nd, 1949

Dear Mr. Roberts:

Application for increase in Requisition under Section 220 — Hamlet of Meister.

In reply to your letter of March 1, 1949, I am directed to advise you that the Department does not consider the proposed increase in the library requisition to be justified by the reasons which you have given.

Section 220 makes no reference to the relation between requirements of operation and estimated revenue. The requisition must be justified by a comparison of estimated costs of education for the hamlet concerned with those throughout the Division.

It is found that according to the below School District No. 2710 seems to justify the number of rooms spent and that there has apparently been no significant change of organization within this school during the present session.

Unless other reasons can be given we shall expect this requisition to remain at $350.00 for 1949. Yours faithfully, J. F. Bunn, Secretary.

Strome, Alberta
Mr. Wm. Campbell, Dayaland, Alta.
Dear Mr. Campbell:

Owing to disagreements which have taken place since I saw you in Daysland on 7th instant, I feel I must write you a few lines. As you will know, the recent election of Mr. Cole was declared null and void owing to the failure of the Division Board to observe the provisions of Section 252 of the School Act, and the costs of the court were awarded to the School Division for the same reason. I feel that all of the members of the Board were equally responsible for this infraction of the Act. In our conversation, you spoke of Mr. Cole being responsible in raising the taxes on the Hamlet of Meister. He does not deny this and was able to give a satisfactory explanation of his reasons for doing so. I would just like to ask you one question. Why should the Village of Strome be assessed nearly six times as much for School purposes as the Hamlet of Meister, as was done in 1948 according to the financial statements? Please let us fight our own fight in Sub-Division 2 Yours respectfully, George J Cosh.

Strome, Alta., April 2, 1949
Mr. W. E. Campbell, Dayaland
Dear Friend: When I wrote you our letter this week I had the impression that the Hamlet of Meister was paying only a small fraction as much taxes for School purposes as the Village of Strome. On further study I find I was mistaken. However, it is unable to make a correct comparison without knowing how the assessed value of taxable property in the Hamlet of Meister, and until I know this, I do not wish to make any further comment. Yours respectfully, George J. Cosh.

Strome Assessment .. $123800.00

We as members of the Killam School Divisional Board do not approve earnestly and sincerely solicit your support on behalf of Mr. C. White.

Social Progress

THE UNSETTLED CONDITIONS which prevail in the world today have caused many people to forget that in spite of wars and periods of economic adversity notable progress in matters which are of great importance to the welfare of humanity has been made during the past thirty years. In most countries during that time definite advances have been made in the field of social legislation and in spite of disruptions caused by great national and international crisis, the welfare of the average citizen has become a matter of increasing importance to his government. During that time too, a number of great social objectives have been realized.

* * * *

In Canada conceptions of social welfare have changed considerably in the last thirty years. Before the First Great War, workmen's compensation measures had been introduced as well as legislation for unemployment insurance. During that war the first pensions for mothers allowances were made to be followed in the 1920's by laws providing for old age pensions and for pensions for the blind. Great advancement has been made in this period too, in the important matter of child care. During the years of drought on the Prairies, when many farmers had their income cut off because of that disaster relief was provided. There have also been the measures passed for the welfare and re-establishment of veterans of both wars, and more recently, the trend toward continued social legislation has been evident in the introduction of family allowances and increased expenditures for public health.

* * * *

New Welfare Laws Passed

Advances Made in Short Time

A recent issue of "Canadian Welfare" an official publication of the Canadian Welfare Council draws attention to the progress which has been made in welfare work here in a comparatively short period of time. In 1921 it is pointed out in the report, the entire amount spent on social welfare in Canada by provincial, federal and municipal governments was $45,000,000 while now the annual expenditure for this work is close to $250,000,000. It is evident from these facts that in spite of the adverse conditions which have been experienced in many matters, slow but steady advancement has been made in the very important field of human welfare and there will no doubt be continued efforts in improve living and working conditions for the people as long as such needs exist.

Brandon Horse Wins Event

REGINA — Bouncing Buster from the Lalla-Gord stables at Brandon Man., showed he still had youth in his bones despite his 19 years as he swept to victory on the featured Elers challenge trophy jumping event of the Regina Light Horse show.

With Gord Williamson up Buster had the crowd of 4,000 cheering wildly as he leaped through the intricate and hazardous course twice for a clear-cut victory over Cool Customer candidate of the Melvin Grave Farms, Calgary. The two horses had to jump off for first place with rails heightened after losing the first jump.

Manitoba Plans Record Road Building Program

WINNIPEG — A record road building program to cost an estimated $7,475,000, is planned for Manitoba in 1949.

The cost will be met by drawing $2 millions from current revenues, the balance out of capital account.

Biggest item in the expenditure on the Winnipeg-Dauphin highway which brings into Manitoba the majority of tourists from the United States. The grade for part of it was built last year and $841,200 is provided to finish the grade for a 26-mile stretch south from Emerson and $1,140,750 to concrete surface the grade built last year. Concrete surfacing of the grade built this year will be done in 1950.

Another major item is $967,650 for surfacing part of the Trans-Canada highway; west from Brandon to the Saskatchewan boundary. The provinces are still awaiting word whether the Dominion government will make any contribution to building the Trans-Canada but Manitoba is proceeding with its program in any event.

Placing Reindeer In Eskimo Care

OTTAWA — New efforts are being made to place reindeer under the management of Eskimos in the Mackenzie Delta region of the Northwest Territories, Resources Minister Mac. Kinnon said.

Since last December two trained Eskimo herdsmen, with two apprentice herders had managed reindeer in the Kahnie lake area under department supervision. The government maintains a reindeer station at Aklavik N.W.T. and hopes to interest other Eskimos in reindeer management.

Reindeer were introduced into northern Canada in 1935 to provide Eskimos and Indians with a means of livelihood in addition to the northern game resources on which they depend. The animals are a valuable source of food and clothing.

The original herd of 2,370 reindeer was established on a selected range on the east side of the Mackenzie delta and in last summer's roundup some 8,000 reindeer were counted.

So says Edward Turner, official of a British motorcycle company, who is busy selling his product across the Dominion.

"Cycle racing, after all, requires tremendous physical strength. Women just don't measure up to that," he says.

If it's any consolation, Turner doesn't question feminine ability only their lack of strength.

Bills' Hoist Helps B.C. Berry Growers

VANCOUVER — Berry growers of British Columbia's lower mainland and Vancouver Island will continue this year to enjoy their bush market in Washington State.

Two bills in the Washington legislature, both of which might seriously hamper the export trade, have been given a hoist and probably won't reappear soon.

Ironing and Sleeve Boards

HEREWITH are plans for ironing and sleeve boards for convenience of the housewife. Finding ironing boards can be purchased or made at home with ordinary woodworking tools but those that stand on their own feet and are not dependent upon other help for their support are considered preferable by many. Shown here also is the adjustable leg to the rear of the kitchen ironing table. The ironing board is made from a piece of pure 12-inches and any factory. If a water-heating coil stove is used, the ironing board should be of the type that folds into the wall. Then, when not in use, the ironing board is folded out of the way. Sometimes the ironing board is made from a piece of pure 12-inches and any factory. If a water-heating coil stove is used, the ironing board should be of the type that folds into the wall. GRANUM, Alta.—Twenty-eight years ago Mrs. Thear sent a money order to a firm in the United States asking for parts to repair a motor. Once this was received Mrs. Thear and the money order was forgotten.

Recently the postmaster at Granum received a query from the company in the United States asking him to contact Mrs. Thear and ask the reason of the omission.

He did this and recently Mrs. Thear's money order was returned with an explanation. The letter explained the money order had become lost in the mail. It is interesting to note that the parcel was delivered safely.

KNOWLEDGE WILL CONQUER CANCER

A FRANKER recognition of the Cancer peril on the part of each individual citizen is of vital importance in the fight to conquer the disease. We've got to realize that Cancer is a disease we can fight, and the most effective way to fight cancer is a willingness to discuss it and to learn all we can about it.

Although doctors and medical scientists have not yet discovered why certain body cells turn traitor and prey on healthy body cells, they do know that once cancer growth begins to develop, its victim is usually warned by certain DANGER SIGNALS.

You should know these danger signals. If you notice one of them in yourself it might mean that you have cancer. But if you go to your doctor immediately the chances are that if it's cancer he will be able to treat it successfully with surgery, X-Ray or radium.

EARLY CANCER CAN BE CURED IF TREATED BEFORE IT SPREADS

If you wait until you are in pain it may be too late.

LEARN TO RECOGNIZE THE SEVEN COMMONEST DANGER SIGNALS OF CANCER .....

1. Any sore that does not heal.
2. A lump or thickness in the breast or elsewhere.
3. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
4. Any change in a wart or mole.

It is to be emphasized that these signals don't always mean cancer. Only a doctor can be sure. So go to your doctor immediately if you have any reason to suspect that you or any of your family has cancer.

5. Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
6. Persistent hoarseness or cough.
7. Any change in normal bowel habits.

HOW MUCH OF THIS MONEY WENT INTO YOUR POCKET?

That's a lot of money! It represents the gross income from farm products in Canada for 1948. It represents the earnings of Canada's biggest primary industry.

Is the share of this huge sum of money which came off your farm as much as it might be? In other words, is your farm producing to the full extent of its possibilities? Could it be made to produce more?

You can answer these questions for yourself here if you are in a position to know exactly how much you spend and how much you receive in each of your farm operations.

You can know these facts only if you have some reliable way of keeping track of your receipts and expenses. We don't mean anything complicated... just the opposite — something quite simple, such as our Farm Account Books.

A few minutes at this book every day or so and you will know just which operations of your farm are doing well, which only fair, which are falling behind. Then you can take the necessary steps to correct matters.

A copy of this book is yours for the asking. Call at our local office for a copy. While you are in, have a word with our manager. He will be glad to see you and to discuss any problems you may have in the operation of your farm.

DO YOU NEED READY MONEY FOR SEED AND FERTILIZER THIS SPRING?

Drop in and talk over your financial requirements with your local B of M manager.

That's what thousands of go-ahead farmers do every year. It's a routine part of their farm financing, a take-over arrangement till the proceeds from sales come in after the harvest

And remember — when you ask for a loan at the B of M, you do not ask a favour.

You'll find your local B of M manager easy to talk to and anxious to be of service.

10,000 Tons Of Uranium Could Produce World Electrical Power

NEW YORK — About 10,000 tons of uranium would produce the present yearly electrical power of the entire world.

That first glimpse of what the world is likely to want in atomic tonnage stems from a study by Dr. Robert F. Bacher, one of the four United States atomic energy commissioners.

The 10,000 tons is nearly 10 times more uranium than the entire world was producing during the war. How much more the world may now be producing is a government secret in all countries.

Dr Bacher says 1 000 tons could make 17 per cent. of the electric power the United States used in 1947.

He explains how the 1,000 tons would be expected to work. This tonnage is ordinary uranium known as 238 which includes the rare 235 that splits and gives the heat to make electric power. In 1,000 tons there is only a little more than seven tons of the splitting 235. That seven is not enough to give 17 per cent. of the country's electrical power.

But when this seven tons is splitting, it automatically changes some of the ordinary uranium into the new metal plutonium. This new metal dividend in nearly three tons a year. The plutonium splits and gives heat. Added to the seven tons it gives the 17 per cent. yield.

Dr. Bacher says each pound of the atom-splitting 235, or plutonium equals in power about 25 carloads of coal. On that basis, the 10,000 tons of ordinary uranium containing the splitting stuff that will give the entire world electric power could be carried in 250 cars. But the coal to make the same power would need 500,000 cars.

Eskimo Book Of Wisdom Popular

OTTAWA — Interest aroused by the first polar expedition among Canada's Eskimos draws attention to the government's "Book of Wisdom for Eskimo", a 28-page publication that tells the native Nerdy everything from what scares baby to the statement that the family allowance is a gift from the King.

First non-religious book to be turned out in the shortest-like syllabic writing the white man invented for the Eskimo, it is an unpretentious, simple booklet produced by the Department of Mines and Resources and the Health Branch, and placed in the hands of every Eskimo family.

A more elaborate, more detailed version is being prepared, but it is not expected to be ready until 1950.

The booklet, reported popular with the natives, 90 per cent of whom can read, is divided into two parts, one devoted to good health, the other to the allowance, care of rifles and boats, game conservation and other topics.

It, significantly, devotes its longest space, three pages, to observations, starting "Jung sickness is everybody's."

Of the allowances, it says "the King is helping all the children in his land." He is giving aid to the Eskimo children also and has instructed his servants, the police, to proceed in this way."

The native is told that the allowance will not be issued in good times; "it will be saved and issued only when there is dire need for it."

The native is urged to do cyclical hedgehog piling of meat, with the trader in good times. He is urged ever the hazardous for slaughtering more caribou, seal and walrus than he actually needs. In fact he is told he should eat more fish and care for his dogs.

The book of wisdom urges cleanliness in a number of ways and admonishes that no Eskimo live a whole winter in one igloo. He should build a clean, new one every so often. In summer he should move his tent around.

Scientists Find Pre-History Idol

VANCOUVER — British Columbia scientists and historians have a new "find" which may be a clue to the missing link in the pre-history of the Pacific northwest.

It is a weird stone idol — a grotesque, 10-pound head with a goitre like protuberance on each cheek. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Grant near Courtenay, 100 miles north of Victoria.

"It is of immense scientific value," said Prof. H. B. Hawthorn, department of anthropoly, University of British Columbia.

He said it was definitely not Indian and what appears to be the forehead may actually be a low-brow "helmet" in the style of ancient Egypt, Central America or even Asia.

Germans Seek "Hitler Cars"

BRUNSWICK, Germany — Thousands of Germans who paid in advance for Adolf Hitler's promised "volkswagon", are suing the firm which makes them for non-delivery.

When the Nazi government introduced plans to produce a small, cheap automobile so that every German family could own one, hundreds of thousands of Germans paid 5 000 reichsmarks into a special account. They were assured they would receive a car as soon as production started.

Now the manufacturer of the car says legal action has been instituted by thousands of irate subscribers. The volkswagon never reached production before Germany went to war in 1939.

The company says the lawsuits are ridiculous as the contracts were made between the individuals and the Nazi Workers' Front—an organization which no longer exists. The money was not invested into the firm, they add, but was diverted by the Government for war purposes.

The Dominican Republic was formed in 1844.

Cows Need Care Before Freshening

Special care of the dairy cow before freshening is highly important. Proper attention at this time not only assures the maximum production of milk, but also the continued foundation of the dairy herd by developing strong, healthy calves.

Good herd management should allow for a dry period of one to two months between lactations during which the dairy cow can be built up for the succeeding lactation. Cows freshening all twelve months do not give the most economical annual milk yield.

At the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, says W. S. Logan, cows are bred to freshen at the same time each year, permitting ten months normal production and approximately two months dry. This ideal procedure is not always possible in the case of difficult breeders.

Some livestock farmers feed a liberal amount of grain during the latter part of the lactation, to build the cows up in condition, and then they good quality roughage without grain during the dry period. A problem of difficulty with this procedure is that persistent milkers will be harder to dry off when still receiving grain.

Dry cows at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, are fed plenty of quality legume, or mixed legume and grass hay, and corn or legume silage. These are fed at the rate of one pound of hay and three pounds of legume silage daily for each hundred pounds of body weight. Thus a 1,200 pound cow would receive 12 pounds of hay and 36 pounds of silage daily. Except for cows in a run-down condition, no grain is fed until from two to three weeks prior to freshening. Cows that are reduced in flesh are fed a grain mixture of 4 parts ground oats, 4 parts ground barley, 2 parts wheat bran, and 1 part linseed oil meal. Rations are added at the rate of 1 pound of bone meal and 1 pound of salt to each one hundred pounds of meal mixture. As the cows approach parturition the proportion of bran is increased to make a more laxative mixture. Thus a ration of 2 parts each of ground oats, ground barley and wheat bran, and one part of linseed oil meal together with the above ratio of minerals is quite satisfactory. At parturition a bran mash, made by scalding six or eight pounds of bran and fed warm, may help to relieve constipation for the first three or four days after freshening.

When on pasture dry cows require no additional grain as a rule. Plenty of exercise and a good winter supply is needed for cows in the late pregnant stage. Avoid exposure to slippery footing, crowding with other cows, or movement through narrow passageways or narrow doorways.

"Alice in Wonderland" Model is Dead

LONDON — A little girl with long golden hair who 80 years ago entered English literature as "Alice in Wonderland" has died at the age of 83.

She was Mrs. Mary Probert, widow of the late Col. W. O. Probert.

Her portrait attracted artist Sir John Tenniel as he was discussing with author Lewis Carroll the type of child he wanted as a model for the novel's illustrations. The famous pictures of the little girl with swept-back tresses and pinafore resulted.

As a grown-up, Mrs. Probert became a noted genealogist.

Mastoids On Way To Become Extinct

Penicillin and the sulfa drugs have not only proven mortal enemies of germs but a few diseases but in one instance at least they are causing a disease to disappear, in Brantford and elsewhere.

This is occurring in the case of the once dreaded ear infection, mastoiditis, which in seldom heard of today and in many operating rooms has become a rarity.

The experience of local doctors is that mastoiditis is only a help in keeping away infections from spreading to the mastoid cells or cavities which are situated in the skull alongside the middle ear, but penicillin is even more effective.

Some doctors report that the action of the mould drug is so curative that ear infections which have already advanced to the mastoiditis stage can be cleaned up without resorting to surgical operations.

One Brantford doctor said he doubted if he had done more than a one mastoid operation in the last two years, whereas, in pre-penicillin and pre-sulfa days, he might have had as many as 12 in a week. Another remarked that he seldom saw mastoiditis any more and a third said that it had almost disappeared. But all these agreed that successful treatment required the co-operation of patients in reporting ear ailments promptly.

Like other diseases which are almost conquered because the public has learned to work with doctors and health authorities, mastoiditis can apparently be ended if the individual with-an-earache can be educated to see his doctor before it is too late - Brantford Expositor.

Elephant Showed Its Intelligence

Edna B Williams writing in Our Dumb Animals, tells of returning from an island in the Ganges by elephant with some friends. As they neared the river they noticed that the animal was wandering uneasily. The mahout looked closely. They decided to dismount and walk to the water and advised the mahout to circuit the bad place However before every struggle and soon the elephant was struggling as quickly as he could. They threw planks to the elephant, who sensed them in his trunk and laid them in a pile before him. By a gigantic effort he managed to pull his foreleys out of the quicksand and to get his front feet on the planks Soon he was safe though trembling in every limb. It was growing dark, and it was still 50 feet to the river Picking up a plank, the elephant placed it before him and then stepped upon it. He never took a step until he had very carefully and patiently laid a plank before him. He then moved on, step by step, on successive planks until he reached the river and safety.

Says Army No Use Without Women

LONDON. — Princess Elizabeth said "the modern army would be no use at all without the women behind it."

She spoke at the annual reunion of the auxiliary territorial service and Queen Mary's army auxiliary corps. The princess, a subaltern in the A.T.S. near the end of the war, said,

"I am sure that each one of us gained something, and most of us a good deal, from our service with the colors.

"The rough no less than the smooth gave us a chance to develop qualities which should make us better wives, mothers and citizens."

Declaring the world is "very far from secure," she said

Dark clouds are still massed on the horizon, as they have been for all of the years up to that generation."

She expressed the hope that former servicewomen not tied by visions of children would hold themselves "ready to serve."

Oats, Barley, Stay Under Support — Oil Crops Withdrawn

It has been announced by the Minister of Trade and Commerce that the existing floor prices for western oats and barley will be maintained for the 1949-50 crop year. The floor prices for oats and barley produced in western Canada are—65 cents a bushel for No. 1, feed oats, and 90 cents a bushel for No. 1 feed barley, both in store Fort William or Port Arthur The Minister emphasized that these are support prices only and producers will have the advantage of whatever higher prices prevail during 1949-50.

Announcement was also made that the Government is withdrawing price support from the oilseed crops—flaxseed, rapeseed and sunflower seed, because of developing surpluses of seeds and oils. Under the circumstances', the Minister said, "the Government is not prepared to encourage the production of oilseeds by establishing support prices for 1949-50. The position will be examined again at the beginning of the next crop year."

Helpful Advice In Ironing

Keep the bottom of the iron clean. Wait until the iron is cool, then wipe it off with a damp cloth. If necessary, use soapsuds or a mild scouring powder, followed with a clean, damp cloth afterwards. Never immerse the iron in water.

Be sure the iron is perfectly cold before putting it away. Many fires have started from hot irons being put in cupboards.

Always unfasten the plug to the iron, then connect to wall outlet. Remove action either connection before connection of the terminals

It's a good idea to keep the tags that come with clothes so that you will know what type of material you are ironing.

Always take advantage of the fact that your work will be done more rapidly than it cools. Organize the material to be ironed, beginning with those pieces that require the least heat, then your iron will be right for the others

When dampening fabrics to be ironed, warm water should be well spread through the fabric more quickly than cold. Save the cleanest pieces rolled up for at least half an hour before the moisture is to penetrate

Remember that rayons should be ironed before they have dried to the right degree of dampness; don't wait until they are dry and then start to sprinkled. If you iron on the wrong side you'll prevent the surface texture

Save time in ironing handkerchiefs by ironing them out flat and piling them together Then fold each one lengthwise, place on the edge of the pile and press the iron heavily over each pair.

In general, parts that dangle from the board should be ironed first. Collars and cuffs may be pressed last, provided the garment is not so large that it will be off the floor in wrinkles

Trimmings such as ruffles, should be ironed before the body of the garment

Iron the top part of long garments first—the hedice of the housecoat or dress, for instance—then the skirt. It saves running and wrinkling

Fold hem to hem, occasionally instead of lengthwise, using all the same place tends to increase wear at that part

Wants Soo To Be Handy With Flats

LONDON — The Duke of Edinburgh is going to let his son who has taught him to fly. "There is plenty of room," the proud son of the Duke and Princess Elizabeth, is less than 4½ months old.

Presenting prizes to boys who had won boxing matches at a settlement house in London's East End, the Duke told them. "One day I hope my son will box as well as any of the boys here tonight."

Maybe they'll prove there's more than meets the eye in the spoken word.

Mr and Mrs. A. Lovley of Metiskow were Good Friday guests with brother Hagman and family.

Mrs. Norman and Johnny spent a few days visiting in the city

Here, to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lien at Killam hospital, on April 13th a baby daughter. Congratulations.

A few of the Mason members took in the Lodge meeting at Hardisty last Thursday evening.

Little Billy Hagenmaeh is in the Killam hospital, but we hope by this time he is feeling much better and well on the road to recovery

Realized our school mates Miss Mac overly boarding the bus last Friday Didn't ask her where she was off to but my guess is she is spending holidays somewhere in the Wetaskiwin district.

That new building you see going up by the Whitehead residence is our new Shoe Repair Shop which is operated by Mr. Beaner.

Keith Pulster, our Alta Lumber man spent the holiday week end at his parental home at Tofield.

Mrs. L. Sproule of Beshaw spent a few days with her daughter, Mrs. A. Petersen.

We are glad to see Charlie Ollis back in our midst again. He has been holidaying in Edmonton this winter

Ina Coughlin spent a few days of last week visiting her sisters up at Wetaskiwin. Even tho' she was only gone a few days we missed her very cheery smile, and if the ladies' hats looked slightly cramped you'll know why. What will we do without her when she leaves for the States? We thought maybe us end.

The holiday week-end brought a large number of our friends into the home circle again and we were glad to see them back. A few of these included Phillis Barthel, Wayne and Harry Shirvell at Barthels; Mrs. G. Rushmore and her sister Miss B. Knight at E. Bushton; Mrs. Swain at G. Cruders; Margaret Hostel at home, Kay Jack at home; Ann and Melvin Jablonski at home.

Mrs. Coughlin spent a few days in Edmonton last week.

We heard there was a pie social at Valley School last week. We left a write-up about these things so give your local Editor the low-down so we'll put it in print. Everyone like to read of such events.

We noticed one cheapest sympath to Rev. Hansen in his bereavement.

Earl Lawrence left last Friday for Calgary. Don't know what his plans are but we wish him good luck.

Everyone returns to Lougheed sooner or later. This past week I brought back the two Nona boys, Cliff and Lloyd and their families. Cliff and Lloyd are going to take farming again. We'd like to see them a welcome home.

We noticed a few of the band out down at the baseball diamond last Sunday. Better get into action fast fellows, the 24th is not far off and Wetaskiwin expects!

We saw Mrs. O. Probst coming into town in the jeep the other day while Orville drove in the car past. Don't you trust women drive in that new car?

Carol Lake is a patient in the Hardisty hospital. We wish her a very speedy recovery.

Allen McCoy is here at the store

The future lies at the point of the drill

The names of Canada's new oil fields have been heard from coast to coast . . . Leduc, Woodbend, Redwater.

They are fields discovered in the greatest search for oil in Canada's history. Already they have brought benefits to all Canadians; and in the next where they are turning back the tide of expensive imports the direct savings are counted in millions.

But before the fullest benefits can reach everyone even more oil must be found.

The successes of the past two years have been possible because there were people willing to go on risking millions in the search in spite of repeated disappointments.

Now, after the barren years that went before, there now fields seem large—and they are large! But they are far from enough to make Canada self-sufficient.

Canada is still dependent on foreign countries for more than 80 per cent of her oil and so her own resources must be developed. Exploration must be continued. More and more wells must be drilled so that markets can be expanded.

There is not yet enough oil to justify the big investments that will be needed if all Canadians are to enjoy the fullest benefits of western resources. Pipe lines, for instance, cost a lot to build; but over the years they provide low-cost transportation—so necessary to reach out to wider markets. The Edmonton-Regina line planned by Imperial is but a beginning.

Further discoveries are the only means of breaking through the distance barriers that bar western oil with transpeninsular costs. The future lies at the point of the drill.

That Last Look

A Man's Game—Hand And Fight!

By ROY V. PRICE

THRIFTYING fear swept through her as Grace stood looking out the door down the rough path toward the swamp. "But, Ben, he's outside!" Her voice was scarcely above a whisper.

"Suppose the skunk?" Ben snapped. "I'll show 'im who's the cowardly!"

Grace's eyes were glued on the double-barreled shotgun across her husband's knees on the back step of their little log farmhouse. She shivered more when Ben caught about the poor shot Ben was on account of his eyes.

For short range of Ben is better than anybody within a mile of the section with bloodhounds. They'll get 'im, shore!"

"I know'd somethin' like this was bound to happen! That's what made me beg you not to tell the sheriff about 'im," she said.

Logic will groan I done the only right thing a decent, honest man could do!"

Raising his trap jaws, Ben had come upon Elmer Rake and another man burying something in the swamp. Ben had heard their plans for robbing the bank. The sheriff had caught the two in the act and recovered the loot from other robberies.

"When the pen couldn't hold his kin," Grace moaned.

"It did for more'n six years until he shot his way out." Ben shot another glance at the swamp. "And a stiffer term'll be waiting for the skunk."

"Jist 'cause he called you a 'weakkneed coward' was bad 'nough, but 'twas no reason for you to stand out in the open and be shot down."

"I'll fix 'im," was all Ben said. If he raises his gun, I'll shoot. That's a man's way of doin' things."

Before Grace could reply, her face turned white. She saw a figure sidling out of the twilit realm of the swamp . . . nearer . . . nearer . . .

Forcing back a scream, she watched the bedraggled Rake standing a few yards from Ben.

Holding his shotgun with trigger finger ready, Ben waited. "You won't rat on nobody else, you sneaking coward!"

"Git off my place!"

Suddenly, Rake lost his nerve, stiffened.

The eternity of each second squeezed all Grace's breath as she watched from within.

Rake cast a wild, despairing stare at Ben, then lowered his gun and stepped back.

The quiet was broken by the rousing of a pack of bloodhounds voices of men behind them . . .

Grace stepped to the door. Rake was in full flight, headed toward the swamp. Suddenly he stopped, raised his hands...Three men stepped from behind trees . . .

Ben's voice. "Ta see, hoity, a man's gotta stand 'n' fight!"

Grace knew he would never guess why Rake had backed down; because he had looked into the cabin, over Ben's shoulder, and stared into the muzzle of her rifle.

Dominion Will Contribute To Road Diversion

OTTAWA — The Cabinet has approved a Federal Governmental contribution of 60 per cent. of the cost of a diversion on the Trans-Canada Highway at Pond, five miles south of Shuswap, to eliminate a railway crossing.

The diversion will keep the highway entirely on the south side of the railway at this point.

Prairies Need Good Spring Rains For Crop

WINNIPEG — Early good spring rains will have to fall on the prairie wheat lands if an average crop is to be harvested this season.

Moisture reserves, estimated last fall at only 64 per cent. of normal for stubble and summer fallow land and at a low level, and will only be made up by better than average rains.

According to an estimate published by the Bonis grain company summary failure reserves average 61 per cent. of normal for the prairies Stubble moisture only amounts to 41 per cent.

In the United States the picture is different. Most bondfield agencies report favorable conditions over most the winter wheat belt, and the United States agriculture department's bureau of agricultural economics little that there has been very little winter kill

The American wheat is sown on the largest acreage on record, four per cent larger than the record 78,-000,000 acres planted in 1947. The United States corn acreage for 1949, as indicated in the agriculture department's report on intentions to plant will be the smallest in 50 years

PERSONAL [illegible]

—By A. W. S.

It has been brought to my attention that there are about thirty very beautiful white swans which have been in the Sedgewick district for over a month now. If left undisturbed and encouraged they may remain throughout the nesting season. This would indeed be welcomed by most lovers of the outdoors. Sorry I am to report that one of these beautiful birds has been shot, allegedly by another of our minors. It seems to me pity that young boys are allowed to go out with guns with the sole ambition of shooting at anything or everything that moves. I found out for myself that it can even be most dangerous to be on the golf course when children are there with guns Just on a reminder, let me inform you that by shooting a swan you are liable to a fine of $100. These birds are protected by law Furthermore guns made for life, I say, and I am sure there is one without a murder, therefore fewer birds to delight the lovers of wild life.

HARDISTY LOCAL TALENT SHOW WAS BIG SUCCESS

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary, aided by members of the Legion, a record audience enjoyed the very good show of local talent on Friday night, April 22nd, stage in the Keiver hall, Hardisty

Reg Jamieson, young an excellent sub m. C., opened the program with O Canada, and the show was on A duet (Shirley Day), was sung by Yvonne Morrison and Verlene Quinn, followed up by the three little Draper girls singing (When My Little Mem Turns To Gold Again) with their mother at the piano. Doreen Powell sang (I Want To Be A Cowboy's Sweetheart) playing her own accompaniment on the guitar. Under the leadership of Mrs. Jamieson, the school girls performed a military drill (This Is The Army Mr Jones). The three Draper girls, dressed in white aprons bleached, and accompanied by their Dad on the drums, gave a rendition of (Granny's Little Baby Loves Shortnin' Bread) Con M. C., then sang (Danny Boy) while the stage was being made ready for the skit put on by the Auxiliary, who, with costumes and make-up of the world, held a Ladies' Meeting, each one answering Roll Call with a "help my household bird", provided the audience with many a good laugh. Vic Rooks and Marie Kwapnu topped our Tidewaters of New York" in the offering, and the Hardisty Choir, made up of 25 girls and boys ably trained by Mrs. Cureton, sang (Floating Down the River) and (Down by the Station) which was followed by Leslie Johnson and Dale Thomas play ing a very pretty piano duet

One of the highlights of the program was Mitch Brewster singing "The Mac River", black face and all, after which the Legion enacted "Shooting of Dan McGrew" with Bill Powell as the Lonesome Stranger, Mrs. Mitch Krez as Hjalmer Fonsen; Wm. Monk as Bert Monroe; Jim Hall as Sam McGee; Mrs. Jack Cleaver as Lena; Mrs. Jack Cleaver as Dangerous Dan McGrew

Evidence Of Prosperity

WITH THE PERIOD OF ADJUSTMENT from wartime to peacetime economy now past it is encouraging to emerge that industrial production, export trade and employment are still at high levels in Canada and that there seems to be little cause for anxiety regarding economic conditions in the immediate future. Statistics compiled late in 1948, showed that there were 4,000,000 employed persons, while the number of unemployed registered at the various offices throughout the country had fallen totalled 106,000. Employment in manufacturing industries had advanced by 75,000 during the three months ended June 1, while farm employment had dropped by 300,000. This movement was attributed largely to the normal seasonal decline in that type of employment, rather than to any serious set-back.

Highest Levels Of Production

In trade and industry the past year has been the highest levels of production and external trade in our peacetime history. At the same time, the figures for income and employment have never been exceeded. These facts were included in a statement made by Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Trade and Commerce, when the past two years have been steady progress in Canadian industry with many old established companies extending their facilities and many new ones developing. New products have been introduced and records have been made in efficiency and in cutting production costs. There has also been rapid development of the mineral resources. In agriculture there has likewise been evidence of greater economic stability. Larger farms, increased use of machinery, the practice of using land for more diversified crops and interest in the modernization of farm homes and installations that agriculture is in step with other industries in the trend of the present time.

Depends Upon Foreign Trade

Canada's most serious economic problem now centres around the fact that much of our domestic prosperity depends upon foreign trade, but because of the dollar shortage in some countries we are at present unable to sell as much abroad as we could if it were not for this difficulty. Our own population and that of the United States is continually growing, providing increasing demands for our products on this continent, but Canada has great interest in cultivating more extensive markets abroad. Developments in international trade and finance are of the utmost importance to us at this time and any adjustments in the present economic barriers between nations making possible more freedom of movement for the products of our farms and factories would be of advantage to us and to those who have need of the things we produce.

It was dark when they got there so one man stuck his head in the den while his friend struck a match.

Then both beat a hasty retreat. The flickering match showed the man with his head in the hole that it was about four inches from the head of a bear who had a rather habit of growling its teeth.

Maximum Of Wheat Acreage To Be Sown

—EYE. TLEE DOWN

WINNIPEG —Western farmers will be putting maximum possible acreage to wheat this year. The odds are against a high crop yield. Heavy wheat plantings are encouraged by increased guaranteed basic price of $1.75 a bu. (2c more than last year) in this final year of the present marketing plan.

Two conditions operate against chances of a high yield: there is a serious deficiency in subsoil moisture in most of the grain-growing areas. There's a heavy infestation of grasshopper eggs.

Both difficulties can be overcome by the right weather sequence—warm days to hatch the eggs; followed by wet, cold term (foreign) weather.

Normally, about 60 million acres go to grain production. Last year 22 million acres was put to wheat; 17 millions to oats, 6 millions to barley, about 2 millions each to rye and flax.

Expectations this year is for 27 million acres to wheat—or 17 per cent more than last year, with perhaps three millions transferred from other crops, one million from summer fallow.

While flour prices this year for oats and barley are considered reasonably good, they're not attractive enough to persuade many farmers to prefer them to wheat.

Flax production is discouraged since price is no longer guaranteed, rye because extravagantly high prices which prevailed for a while have disappeared.

Land Phenomenon Frighten Indians

THE PAS, Man. — Frightened Indians in the Island Lake region of Manitoba called on Game Guardian Barney Bachbuch to find out whether the devil were their hunting grounds as a sleeping place.

Two Indian game hunters reported that a 300-by-50 foot patch of ground in the area had been completely free of snow all winter. The patch is 10 miles east of Wanipigow River, on Bjarnhill Lake, near Island Lake.

There has been no spring thaw and no apparent reason for the snowless patch of ground.

The Indians believe a devil lives nearby and they have refused to return to the region until game officials investigate.

Officials believe an underground sulphur spring may be responsible for the phenomenon.

Big Black Beetles Cause Muskrats

TORONTON Trappers and Indians in northwestern Saskatchewan have been reporting recently that large black water beetles, the size of a man's thumb are driving muskrats out of their homes.

Donald McKee of Ontario has brought some of the beetles to Yorkton, and there were as many as a bucket full in some of the muskrat houses. These found them edible and were tossing open the muskrat haunts to get at the insects.

The minister made it clear that the child must be employed in productive labor instead of outside help and that he must be paid in cash.

Coutts, Alberta, Growing In Importance As Port Of Entry

COUTTS, Alta. The two-way stream through this small Canadian border point to the United States border is turning into a flood.

Customs officials haven't seen anything like it.

Increased development of Alberta oil fields has sent mammoth truck convoys of machinery and drilling equipment flowing through the primary port of entry to Alberta from the United States. The U.S. demand for Alberta sheep and cattle and other produce has also kept the rear door open much of the time.

But this is only one phase of the busy life of the 15 customs men and five immigration officers.

An average of nine automobiles carrying Canadian passengers were cleared every hour at Coutts during 1948. Almost 50,000 autos passed through the port in the one year.

With present facilities inadequate, officials have had to take over an old warehouse and part of a C.P.R. office for additional office space.

Recognizing the growing importance of Coutts as a port of entry, the federal government already has appropriated $140,000 for a new customs and immigration terminal.

The "import value" of shipments through this small Canadian border point to the United States border is twice as much as it was in recent years in Alberta industries. In 1942 the import value was only $3,296,000. Last year it jumped to $16,262,000.

Establishment in 1936 as a full-fledged port of entry from Montana, Coutts is about 70 miles by road from Lethbridge.

It's been a busy year!...

This week many thousands of Canadians will be reading the story told in Imperial Oil's annual report. It is a story of how, to meet your needs Imperial last year found more crude oil, produced more crude, transported, refined, distributed and marketed more oil and products than ever before.

To do this we had to spend a lot of money. We sent men ranging over thousands of square miles in the search for new oil fields—and we found new oil. We built new ships . . . new pipe lines . . . new refining units . . . new marketing facilities . . . and a host of other things. Again last year we spent more money than we earned, but it was an investment in Canada's future as well as our own.

We raised most of the money we needed by borrowing and by selling some of our major investments; the rest was earnings put back into the business after paying dividends.

On the year's business we made a profit of less than a cent a gallon on products sold. This amounted to 4 and 9/10ths cents out of each sales dollar we received.

It was a busy, successful, interesting year. When it began we were sometimes hard pressed to meet all your needs; when it ended supplies were assured. It saw new oil discovered, making Canada less dependent on foreign supplies; new equipment added, helping to serve Canadians better with the products they need.

Bringing you oil is a big job—and a costly one.

If you're interested in facts . . .

1948 set new records in oil finding at Imperial Oil's operations.

If the wells drilled by the company to find and produce oil in Canada during 1948 were placed end to end they would total 183 miles.

Two large tankers were added to the company's fleet, the largest new one was welcomed to Edmonton, and plans progressed for eight more. Fifty-one were in service; 4 711 load cars moved more than 1 190 000 tons of crude oil and products.

Imperial's eight refineries processed an average of 143 127 barrels per day, a new record.

Sales totalled 1 819 000 000 gallons. Up in Canada—for the first time—oil provided $1 671 000 of every $1 000 spent per dollar for each of the 1 819 000 000 gallons sold. From its shareowners the company received $5 936 907.

Know Your Provinces

ALBERTA

Province Of Progress

This is the third of a series of articles compiled to acquaint patrons living in our Western provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, outlining their natural resources, industrial developments, playgrounds and lake resorts, with a view of acquainting and familiarizing our readers of the vast and wonderful Canadian West.

THE province of Alberta has virtually all the assets for building a great and prosperous community. The area is 248,700 square miles. In width it varies from 186 miles along the Montana border to 400 miles at its widest point. This vast expanse contains 158,678,560 acres of land, half of which is suited for agriculture.

Agriculture is the basis of Alberta's economy. Diversification is the aim of the province. But even this Alberta is larger than pre-war France. With a population roughly one-tenth that of the city of London it is more than twice the size of the whole British Isles. The combined area of Montana, North Dakota and Minnesota is little more than the province of Alberta.

Speaking of coal the province has reserves of 46,562 million tons. With an annual production of about ten million barrels of petroleum it yields almost all of Canada's oil. Alberta has the largest single area of natural gas on earth. From that source alone we can obtain more than 200 billion barrels of oil enough at present rate of consumption to supply the world for centuries. In the matter of agriculture there is plenty of room for expansion and further irrigation projects will turn a million more acres into use.

The province is only in its infancy as regards to manufacturing yet in 1944 it produced $200 000 000 worth of secondary products. Unexcelled coal and power resources, the skill and energy of a progressive people, adequate transportation facilities if has them all.

Alberta falls naturally into three sections. In the south there is the true prairie. Flat and treeless, except where great rivers wind through lonely valleys this section is covered with short prairie grass. Then to the west of this lies the land the Alberta foothills roll up in growing abandon to the Rocky Mountains almost all of Canada's and Alberta's highest and most majestic on earth. Several Alberta rivers rise on the mountain. Extending from the Red Deer river south beyond the city of Edmonton this section may be described as parkland. The natural grass of the plains and eastern British foothills mingles with native poplar and Balm of Gilead trees. The soil is darker in color.

North of this we find the wild timberlands of Alberta. Here is a region of great forests and lakes, famous "back north" of Saskatchewan as well as the Grand Beaver lakes area. Stretching over thousands of square miles Alberta has more than thirty billion cubic feet of saw-timber and lumber suitable for pulp, ties and posts. Most of it stands on the fats of the Rockies and extends into the vastness of the north.

An outstanding feature of Alberta's climate is the Chinook wind. Named after an Indian tribe, the Chinook is a warm westerly wind that brings balmy weather in the middle of winter. Generally speaking the climate is invigorating and healthful. The high altitude gives the air a clear, tonicing quality.

No spot in Alberta is more than an hour's drive away from a popular resort. Blue lakes and picturesque rivers are found from the mountains to the parklands and the prairies. Some of Alberta's resorts are world famous. Such centres as Banff, Lake Louise, Jasper Park and Waterton attract holidayers and tourists from all over the world. Other playgrounds include Elk Island Park, Wabamun Lake, Quil Lake, Pigeon Lake, Lac Ste Anne, Sylvan Lake and many more, while not large, are still notable for their beauty and charm.

It has always been Alberta's policy to build good roads so that each centre of population has a way to markets and a means of communication. It can boast now of having over 300 miles of paved highways, and nearly 3,000 miles of gravelled roads.

CHURCHILL MADE PROFIT OUT OF HIS ACCIDENT

NEW YORK — Lents J. Aller who booked Winston Churchill's lecture tour several years ago, tells of Churchill's arrival in New York in the '30's, when he stepped from a cab, landed the wrong way, confused by the traffic direction and was hit by a car. He was taken to Lenox Hill Hospital where Churchill made notes about the accident, the commercials of the road, the police the doctors, etc., and his own thoughts throughout this experience. Then he dictated the story to a stenographer, and its syndication earned enough money for him to pay the hospital, and medical bills, plus a $1,500 profit.

GRADUATION

Graduation time—time for white dresses and corsages.
Graduation is a special time for mothers, too. Especially if it's the last child to graduate.
Graduation is the time for mothers to feel sad and happy and proud and humble and grateful and lonely and thrilled and tearful and wistful and a dozen other emotions all at once.
Graduation is the time for mothers to realize that their children are no longer children.

THEY HAVE EARS ::

"Home Is Dead As Those That Won't Rise."

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

THE fat man was a purple pool, the slants that fell into it were rose red and pale blue, orange and violet the girl who danced about the fountain's edge, pursuing a swaying, lighter than spray, was a quite too lovely to be real Presently the dance was finished and the girl like a water-nymph vanished in the fountain's spray and was seen no more by the applauding audience of the Tuesday night performance of Water Frolics, doing well on Broadway.

The couple occupied backstage was much as a summer Sunday. I hate this act. It's all wet." And she paid no attention to anyone, but went to her dressing room. Her name was Louella Benet. She had tapping red hair, the ivory skin and blue eyes that are the companions of rippling red hair. A bumper she had, too, and the usual number of nice about toes.

One suspected at her door just after she had exchanged the dripping clothes of the nymph for a soft wool and was sitting a comb on her hair. This young man was rather slowly, had tired, decisive eyes, made to be half pulled low over those eyes and talked softly and with a certain dignity from his mouth. It made little jerks motions when he talked.

Louella paid him no attention, seemed oblivious of him leaning there against the door. Finally she looked his way.

Brett it, paul. I told you I didn't want you around. You newspaper men —

I wouldn't have showed up t night, Lou, only I want to put you wise about Cary Ballinger in case you do anything rash. You may be thinking of marrying that egg!"

Louella made no answer She stood in front of her mirror and performed the usual rites. She shook her head as swimmers do, bothered by water. She sang very softly and sweetly—"I love you truly."

Red Byrne wasn't settled. Six years of newspaper work, four of them on the tabloids, had made him fertile-pated. He grinned at Louella's lovely reflection in the mirror.

"Love has truly, yeah?" he said "Look here, baby — you don't You love his roll. You think you'll be an easy street if you hook him. That's fair enough. I don't blame you. You'd be crazy to marry a guy like me, but this is what I came to tell you—the Ballingers are flat Young Cury doesn't know it yet, but the old man's business has gone into the scrapheap I'm not kidding, Lou It'll all be in the papers tomorrow, and I had a hunch you'd better know tonight—the way you and Cory are going around. Well, don't mention it, kid."

He grinned ironically. Louella said nothing. She kept on combing. When Red went out she made a face after him and sighed. There was a large amount of roses on her table and Cary Ballinger's card lay atop them. She buried her face in their fragrance. And she continued to sing— "I love you truly."

Cury Ballinger was waiting for her. A nice, well-spoken fellow, Cury; but quite useless. Millions to play with. Without them millions—only he Louella didn't think of Cury without those millions.

"This is the night, Louella," said Cury. "What's it going to be? But I got the license and the ring. I'm afraid I took a bit for granted—"

Her shoulder pressed his arm. He looked at her with love, and with the assurance of the Ballinger millions. Of course, Louella was one in a million, but chorus-girls, even those who are on their way to stardom, don't turn down Cury Ballingers.

"I guess—you didn't take too much for granted, Cury," she answered huskily.

"You really love me?"

"Yes I love you. You'll think I'm a little liar if I say it's you I love, and only you. I don't think of what you are, what you have."

He hand pressed hers, hard. Perhaps he believed her. It didn't matter anyway he thought, whether she loved him for himself alone. She loved him, and only that mattered.

They flew on wings of love. And, far from the city, in a little parsonage, they were married by a smiling young clergyman whom Cory knew. Louella, Mrs. Cury Ballinger now, thought of Red Byrne and wondered if she'd give him the news first. It would be a big scoop for Red. He was a pest, but perhaps she'd call him and break it to him. Cury had called his paper from the hotel where she'd wait with Cury and Red's strategic exclamation was aimed to her ears. Ah, but she was sweet!

The honeymoon had a big day Old man Ballinger raged and—he was married immediately to a showgirl. And Louella Benet—a splendid specimen of American womanhood—Red Romance on Broadway — she had never paid special attention to that part of the river's bank where the 1951 Festival of Britain is to be held.

Ex-Mountie Is Dress Stylist In Scotland

GLASGOW, Scotland — Gilbert Gibson, formerly of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, is in Glasgow designing dresses

Lee, a Yorkshire man, took a course in textiles at Leeds University, when he was 20. He was left some money then went to Canada and spent it

He said his last hack-roll rein an all-swell that produced no oil, and then joined the Mounties.

Life in the force, he says, brought him many thrills. He visited other parts of the world trailing wanted men—and he always got his man.

"How I laugh I ever left," says Kim, "even when I trailed a man clear across Canada and lost him. I went back to Winnipeg and was about to report failure when I went into a restaurant for a meal. There was my man—and he even offered me a right."

Kim retired from the RCMP with the rank of inspector. Then, with his knowledge of fabrics, he became a designer and chief pattern-cutter for a leading fashion house in the United States.

He returned to Britain just before the Second World War, was rejected by the armed forces and met and married May Hutchinson of Bearsden, near Glasgow.

They recently started their own fashion business and, perplexing right girls, say they have as much work as they can handle.

TOP FLIGHT "TRAPEZE" — Taking a hand at the wheel, Herbert Morrison, President of the Council and Minister of Transport in London, steers one of the three "Queen" soons to go into service on the route to ease the strain on long transportation. ## Says Women Must Be Twice As Good To Get Recognition

TORONTO — Agnes Macphail thinks there will be less talking and fewer night sessions when more women get into legislative bodies.

"It's a queer place, the legislature," said Miss Macphail, CCF member of the legislature for York East. "They seem to think time runs out on March 31 and they have to get everything settled before then."

She stopped away from a night sitting of the Ontario House to attend a program marking the fortieth anniversary of International Women's Day. She told her listeners that women "have to be twice as good as men to get recognition—and they are lucky to get it then."

Politically speaking, women are still in the infant stage said Miss Macphail.

FIRE COMMISSIONER VISITS TOWN OF HAI Y

Mr. M. Bedard, Inspector for the Fire Commissioner, Edmonton visited Hardisty on April 2 and a number of pictures were taken. Mr. Bedard, himself expressly to impress upon the minds of the onlookers, the seriousness and the tragedy of loss equals means of fire fighting equipment, and the lack of knowledge of the average person during a fire. The first film dealt with the fundamentals of a flame, fuel oxygen and ignition temperature, showing laboratory tests on the usage of carbon dioxide, foam, water stream and fog, and where each is most effective.

"Men of Fire", filmed with the aid of the Los Angeles Fire Department, having its humorous side beginning in the water bucket days, showed the very rigid military training of today's brigades, their every second whose duty alone is to prevent damage to furniture etc; and the Rescue Squads, where every split second counts.

"Fire Over Fifty Cities" showed their booths and games and hope to see them back at future events.

"They Call Us Firemen" showed the operation and equipment, and Mr. Bedard, having inspected the town during the day, commended Hardisty upon the equipment on hand and the progress being made toward the purchase of more. The Town Council is now asking for sheet 16 volunteer men willing to do their utmost to prevent and destroy fire in the proper organized body, as very important in every town. Fires don't HAPPEN, they START.

Termination Of UNRRA

FOR FIVE AND ONE-HALF YEARS the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, known as UNRRA, carried on a great post war relief project which helped immeasurably in dealing with the distress of those who suffered directly from the effects of the war. The world-wide operations of the administration were completed last September, but it was formally voted out of existence on March 31st of this year, when the Governing Control Committee agreed that the emergency task which it had undertaken was now completed. Remaining funds were turned over to successor organizations. It is encouraging to know that the need for such services are at an end but the work of that great humanitarian effort will not soon be forgotten.

Supplies Sent From Canada

The total cost of UNRRA was estimated to be just under $4 000 000 000. Reports of the activities of the Administration show $537 000 000 worth of food, clothing, medical supplies and services were distributed in various parts of the world during the five and one-half years of its existence. In carrying on the task of bringing relief and help to those who had suffered material loss and physical hardship because of the war, a great deal of help in the form of cash and supplies was sent from the United States and Canada. Canada was able to contribute much in the way of vitally-needed food supplies for those areas where the war had interfered with crops and normal food production and distribution.

Services Will Be Remembered

While UNRRA has now gone out of existence it will without doubt long be remembered for the great service it performed in bringing relief to war-torn countries. It is to be hoped that there will never again be need for such an organization but UNRRA showed what could be done by united effort in solving such gigantic problems as those faced after the war in attempting to rehabilitate the many thousands of homeless and destitute people left after the hostilities ended. While this century has seen some very terrible developments in respect to warfare, it has also seen some great humanitarian undertakings, of which UNRRA stands out as one of the finest and its work, and the men and women who helped to carry it out will not soon be forgotten

$300 Duty Free From U.S., But Buy On Credit

How's your credit at U.S.? It has to be good or you'll have to get it established—if you plan to take advantage of eased Canadian customs regulations on goods you bring back from that States-side visit

These regulations, effective Jan 1, allowed Canadians to bring back goods to a maximum value of $100 duty-free every four months $300 for the year

But — the purchases have to be made on credit You get no addition to the $100 travel ration when you start out Instead the Foreign Exchange Control Board promises to allow you to honor invoices on your return, on presentation of customs clearance papers

That way FEER keeps track of things And this applies as well to anyone who's able to get more than the $150 basic ration

Of course if you want to use your $150 travel ration to buy for cash it's okay. But these purchases are included in the total $300 duty-free goods.

Manitoba Agriculture Dept. Worried Over Grasshopper Prospects

WINNIPEG—Officials of the Manitoba agriculture department said that "soon tens of thousands" of farms in the province may be hit by grasshoppers this year and that, if the season is hot and dry, the outbreak may have a severe effect on the entire province.

H. E. Wood, director of extension work, recommended early seeding to protect the crops.

Women Always Seem At A Wedding

By ESTHER M. DOUTY

As he waited before the altar, Kent Parish hoped desperately that the wedding guests would consider his nervous perspiration only natural. Above the sober wedding music, his heart thudded in his ears From the corner of his eye, he watched a small cloud of pink feathers floating on a wisp of veil above a well-moulded but hard young face.

How dared she come! The little cat! And of all things, sitting right in front!

What would Marie think? She had worked so hard to have this wedding perfect.

He bit his lips and swallowed. "Take it easy," Clark, his best man, whispered.

Clark didn't know, of course. No one knew How could he have become involved with Kay anyway? He turned so he could see her face That was a mistake. She was staring, at him, her eyes bold. A dancing gold sayed about her lips Her fingers toyed with the necklace he had given her, last year.

He jerked his head away, damning himself for a twice-made fool, one for taking up with Kay and again for not pressuring Marie into an elopement. She had done it, and as she said she would She had fastened her way to the front where she could watch Kent vow to love and cherish Marie.

Would she really go through with her threat? He held his hands to his eyes to prove away the black spots in front of them. Would she dare break up the ceremony by screaming accusations just as he and Marie were being pronounced man and wife?

There was a hush. Softly, the organ began the wedding march. Marie was entering with her father. She was lovely as a bride should be, her eyes soft and lustrous, her lips curving with happiness. He would always love her. If only he could forget Kay's mocking presence

They knelt before the minister Through the mistiness of her veil, he could see Marie's long eyelashes. He felt the soft pressure of her hand She was reminding him of his responses

The blessingly, it was over. Marie was all radiance and smiles as she stepped gracefully down the aisle, her hand on her arm proudly possessive.

He couldn't keep from darting a guarded glance at Kay. She had a silly, almost weepy look.

Out in the fresh air, he rushed Marie into the waiting car. "Hurry! Hurry!" his brain dictated.

The car moved away from Marie's moist-eyed family, the guests. He saw Kay on the steps. Her jaw was squared, menacing.

The impasse rounded the driveway. Safe! Keep relaxed, suddenly exhausted and perspiring. Then his bride was in his arms.

"Sweetheart, loveliest," he murmured. He trembled as he kissed her.

Marie held him off fondly. "You foolish darling. I've never seen such a nervous bridegroom. But I'm glad you were, darkie. That showed Kay Lamers how you really felt about things all right."

Kent went rigid. "Kay?"

His bride laughed. "But of course, Love. I sent Kay Landers an invitation to our wedding. She came to see me last week—and had a bet to say She swore she was coming to the wedding, no matter what, so I thought she might as well get a good look. You know a woman always gets sentimental and weak at a wedding, even when the groom in her—

Lougheed Facts

The meeting of All Saints W. A. School and Church services. Rev. held at the home of Mrs. Kitchlevich was very well attended by members and visitors. The regular business of the day was carried out. Quilt blocks and reports was dispensed with and some work was passed out for the summer to the fall. After the adjournment a lovely luncheon was served by the hostess. Mrs. Cheston will entertain at the next meeting.

Mrs. F. Kirkman was presented recently at the Anglican Church with a pin and life membership to the Women's Auxiliary, in token of her long and faithfulness and work in the church, by the grateful members of All Saints W. A.

The congregation of the Church of the Nazarene enjoyed and profited by the ministry of two guest preachers during the past two weeks. Dr. W. N. King, professor of theology at Canadian Nazarene College, Red Deer, was the very interesting preacher Good Friday evening, and Easter Sunday. On April 21st, April 24th Rev. William and Mrs. Calder with son and daughter, were visitors at the morning Sunday

June Olsen and Peggy Shaw both of the Camrose Lutheran College, spent the week end at Olsen's.

L. Johnson of Provost spent a short visit at Malcbourne last week.

T. W. Poe of the Community Publications was a visitor to Lougheed last week. Mr. Rogers, our former correspondent for the Lougheed Journal, has retired from his job. His local scandal column was enjoyed by readers and we will all miss his weekly accounts. The new Editor (and my opponent) is Mrs G. Mallow and I am sure she will be very capable in keeping the public informed of all the local happenings.

Helen Probst was hostess to a few friends last Monday evening, April 25th, when she celebrated her 13th birthday. The evenings fun consisted of various games, the opening of the presents and of course the delicious goodies prepared by Hostess Helen. We wish you many more happy and joyous birthdays Helen.

School's in full swing again after the Easter holidays and by the looks on the student's faces they were all happy to go back again. Just two months to go till you pass everything with honors kids and then that lovely summer holiday. Really something to look forward to, isn't it? The kids have been busy preparing for the festival at Killam for the past few weeks. From the high school gang we hear talk of a picnic party in the near future. Have a dull moment during dinner hours.

Grandma Johnson, Mrs. Matheson and Merle Reed were patients in the Killam hospital. We hope by the time they are all fine and on the road to recovery again.

Don't forget the Lougheed W. I. Girls Club is entertaining their members and the W. I. members on the 16th, May 7th in the hall at 8 p.m.

The Rummage Sale and Tea held in the hall last Sat. afternoon and sponsored by the Junior Red Cross, was a huge success.

Miss Tweedy has been visiting at the E. Newmans for the past couple of weeks. Mrs. Tweedy, who has been at Wetaskiwin, is going to move to the Amisk district shortly.

Quite a few from here attended the Sedgewick dance last Friday night. Music was supplied by the Alliance Orchestra and everyone reported a good time. Winner of the door prize was Ron MacLean of Sedgewick.

Did you notice the pictures in Norman's Store, of Lougheed taken from the air? If not you now really missed something for that is a very good picture of the local Village. It shows the business section, highway, and nearly all the residences. Probably many of us didn't realize how cute the little town looks until we saw this picture.

The Lougheed junior baseball team along with a few faithful supporters motored over to Sedgewick on Wednesday last week for their first game of the season, defeating the Sedgewick team by a score of 3-0. The boys played a good game and with a few more practices and games they should be right on the beam for the 24th.

Helen Probst was rushed to the Hardisty Hospital last Thursday afternoon after getting hurt while playing ball at school. Just turning thirteen years wasn't so lucky after all but we hope you are home again now and feeling much better.

The Lotheran Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs A. Matheson with a good attendance of members and guests. After the regular business meeting was handed out to members. A delicious lunch was served.

Margaret Hertel and Rneie Adams spent the week end at J. Hertel's.

Just before payday you've probably looked at what's left of your wages or housekeeping money and said: "Where does the money go?" A company can ask itself the same question, and each year provides the answer in its annual report.

The dollars we received last year—for gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil and other products—went this way:

Crude Oil and other raw materials we needed to make the products took the first big slice. Depending on where you live your oil may have come from Arabia, from South America, or from deep in the United States. In Canada only Alberta produced crude in quantity.

Manufacturing and packaging came next—complex and intricate refining operations are needed to make the hundreds of oil products which find thousands of uses in our homes and industries, on our highways, in the air and on the sea.

Transportation was the next big bite—products must move over wide areas to serve all communities in Canada.

Marketing was fourth. Marketing provides the products you need wherever you are—power, heat and lubricants for factory, farm and home. Marketing supplies that local businessman, the dealer; and if you're a fuel oil user, keeps oil in your tank!

Taxes to provincial and federal governments absorbed 7.06 cents. And this does not include gasoline tax, which—depending on where you live—takes from 22 to 35 cents out of every dollar you spend for standard grade gasoline.

Profit was 4.9 cents out of each sales dollar. From this we paid three cents to shareholders as dividends. The rest was used—together with a lot more money we borrowed and still more obtained by sales of investments—to help meet your increasing needs for oil!

Predicts Bright Future For Prairie Farmers

REGINA—A bright future for the farmers in the prairie provinces was painted by L. B. Thomsen, director of Prairie Farm Rehabilitation, when he addressed the University Women's club here. His topic was "Water Conservation in Western Canada."

Mr. Thomsen stated that moisture conservation—an academic term to conserve the rain that falls—was vital to the national economy of Canada and went on to explode the theory that congress belts and keeping the top of the soil scratched were of any real use in conservation.

He explained that the damming of coulees and the construction of dugouts had not been for reasons irrigation projects but merely to insure there is enough water for stock and for maintaining small garden plots.

The prairies' bright future would become a reality when the South Saskatchewan dam at Elbow and the resulting wide irrigation of a large acreage, and similar projects were completed.

In answer to the oft-heard query "Why don't they get on with the project", the speaker explained that a great many engineering problems had still to be completed before construction could be started.

These problems include the testing of the ground in a large area around the proposed site to ascertain there is no quicksand, as for as 1 000 feet down, or any other form of data which would not withstand the strain of holding such a large quantity of water as will be held back by the damming of the river.

Then too there is the problem of getting the permission of the other provinces to hold the dam for there is the possibility that controlling the water in the river and through the Qu'Appelle valley may interfere with the power supply at Winnipeg, unlikely as it may seem to the layman.

PERSONAL STUFF

— S A W S —

I'm not a prophet and I do not particularly like to make predictions, nor am I very anxious to listen to prophecies of others, but to my mind the present weather conditions point to one of our old-fashioned dry seasons. Of course in this day and age all annually reliable indications fail us by the wayside, as it seems that all the world is more or less off balance in more ways than one. A dry season, heavy freeze-up, followed by a late run-off and continual high winds in the spring usually means there will be trouble ahead. We may hope, nevertheless that in this case forboding prove to be false.

• • • •

The fishing season opens on May 15th and due to the above mentioned light spring run-off, the outlook for the anglers in these parts is poor. Usually fish are able to get into the spawning areas, but this spring the trip was impossible owing to low water. Another result of this condition is that many fish winter killed in one spot and where there are around 300 fish varying in length up to two feet, dead in one spot.

• • • •

Some few weeks ago I read an editorial in the Killam News which was to the effect that people met to suppress local news, but rather to present it for publication to the local paper. Since that time I have been waiting for the Editor of that paper to announce the fact that his plant at Killam has been closed and the equipment mostly moved to the city. I would deem this news of importance, especially to the business men of Killam, but as for the Editor; let's not suppress the news.

• • • •

Well, since I have not heard from my good friend Mr. Hugh Roberts, I presume that the official count of ballots in the Killam Divisional Election leaves Mr. Gale on the map as Member for Acreage in the Provincial House. Mr. Gale will be gratified to know that at last that election is over and done with and not be subjected to the expense of another "whirl" through some minor technicality. We are glad that we are over now and the board can now get down to the more serious problems of conducting the affairs of the Province.

It has been apparent, from the vast amount of publicity given the elections, that there has not been by any means, perfect harmony amongst the board members. Well, if not carried too far and allowed to become a bit too petty and personal, I don't know but what a little discord is a healthy sign. I am always suspicious in a democratic form of any board or council where there is perfect harmony prevails. Sometimes there is an odor You know — something stinking. It would be an exceptional group of three, five or more men who always saw eye to eye. Of course I do not mean that there is to be antagonism on every question, but first on expenditures of public funds, and major improvements, a lively altercation is a healthy sign. On the other hand, small, petty, personal bickering and ill-concealed thinking does not improve the situation, nor does it improve the standing of an individual in a community.

The election date has been set for June 27th and already predictions are being tossed around in the local sanctum. Mr. Drew, who in any election contest has "hotter than a two cooker shotgun" has all but declared a win for the P. C's; Mr. St. Laurent (cool customer with tongue on roof of mouth), says that if the Liberals can't form a government there is no use in anybody else trying; Mr. Coldwell says the P. C's are a nonstarter and the fight will be between the CCF and Liberals, any nothing at present, but keep tuned in for your Community Press. I'll likely have more to say when Drew could keep my big mouth closed.

Readers will be surprised to know that four young ladies from our own Vancouver way have stowed away to New Zealand because, "there are 11 thousand more women than men and thousands more throughout China; because the crime wave here is the worst in history; Reds have taken over and have returned; Canada is no place to live in; Canada is no place to raise a family in; Canada is no place for any one", but especially I disagree with the first statement. I would not trade my life in Canada for that of any other nation on the face of the earth Canada today is the 'Garden of Eden' of the world (figuratively speaking) and for the opportunist. Security is here, without question. But we have no quarrel with those four young women, and it is almost certain Cupid will be among those New Zealand will be no richer

Hon. F. Gordon Bradley

CANADA IS A BROAD COUNTRY and its population is widely scattered. The recent entrance of Newfoundland into Confederation has widened the boundaries still further and added a new province in which many of its people live in remote districts. Although the people of Canada are separated by such natural barriers as the Rocky Mountains, other mountain ranges and mighty rivers, a remarkable degree of unity of thought and purpose has been achieved. Food and air communications, the press and radio have all contributed to the growth of Canadian nationhood, and as Newfoundland becomes more closely linked to the rest of the Dominion by these agencies its people of that province and those of the rest of Canada will become increasingly aware of the widening of their interests through this new relationship.

Appointment Well Received

Walter Cranshaw, have travelled widely, or not travelled widely, they are generally familiar with the names of important places and the outstanding people in public life. . . . ad parts of the country. We are already beginning to be acquainted with the names of men in Newfoundland who are known as leaders of the political, industrial and intellectual life of the people there. . . . end of the British Empire, how will the new comers to the people of Canada in Hon. F. Gordon Bradley, who was invited by Mr. St. Laurent to represent that province in the Cabinet as Minister without Portfolio? Mr. Bradley's appointment made at the time that Newfoundland entered into Confederation has met with general approval in the new province and throughout the entire country.

* * * * *

Favored Union With Canada

A member of the government in Newfoundland for the last twelve years, Mr. Bradley has first elected to the House of Assembly in 1932 as a member of the Liberal Party. He was defeated in the election of 1933 but was returned in 1934 and has been re-elected in every succeeding general election since that time. He was Minister of Public Utilities in the Commission Government which governed Newfoundland from 1934 to 1946 and was Minister of Natural Resources in the Government of Premier Joseph R. Smallwood which was in office at the time Newfoundland entered into Confederation. He has been a strong supporter of Union with Canada and led the opposition in the Legislature when Premier Smallwood was in office. Mr. Bradley was born at Harbour Main, Newfoundland, and was educated at Bishop Feild College, St. John's, Nfld. He was called to the Bar in 1924 and practised law in St. John's until 1932 when he was appointed Deputy Minister of Justice. He was also Secretary of State for Newfoundland from 1932 to 1934. Mr. Bradley is married and has two children. He has had a long and varied career in the public life of Newfoundland and will be a valuable addition to the Canadian Cabinet. He will represent Newfoundland in the Senate and will be Minister without Portfolio in the Government of Canada.

Stockholm, Sask., Gets Swedish Flag

STOCKHOLM Sask. — Sixty-three years ago a group of Swedish settlers came to this Assiniboia district. Every July 1 they celebrate "Colony" day in conjunction with Dominion Day. A Swedish flag flew on the flagpole of the picnic ground with the Union Jack.

But over the years the Swedish flag has disappeared. This year however they will have a new one in response to a request from Stockholm, Sask., to Stockholm, Sweden. A parcel came recently containing a letter from King Gustaf of Sweden, his autographed photo—and a large Swedish flag.

Geological Party To Study Oil Strata In Sask.

OTTAWA — Intensive study of the oil and gas bearing geological strata in Saskatchewan will be completed this summer by Dr. R. T. D. Wickenden of the geological survey of Canada, it was announced by Hon. Colin Gibson, minister of mines and resources.

Dr. Wickenden has already done a great deal of work in this field and will co-operate with the Saskatchewan department of mines in the examination of well cores and samples. Two parties directed by geologists will work with Dr. Wickenden's department.

The department says: The economic stratigraphy first became of great importance from the standpoint of oil and gas and heavy oil production in Waterhen, Vermilion and Lloydminster areas. It has now become of importance in the production of oil in the Readymix field and in the Joseph Lake well, 18 miles southeast of Biggar.

Also the recent discovery of gas with distillate fertilizer and the gas producers of north central Alberta fill in numerous details here further shows that it contains large reserves in both gas and oil. A knowledge of the local and regional stratigraphic relationships thus becomes of great value in the exploration for new oil fields. Dr. Wickenden and his assistants will continue their field work with the laboratory of collecting data and making it available to those engaged in searching for oil and gas.

SCHOEPP WELL IN PRODUCTION

EDMONTON — Hailed as one of the continent's biggest single oil wells, Imperial Schoepp No. 1 discovery well in the Golden Spike field near Edmonton has gone into production.

There was no fanfare marking the event which climaxed a five-months drilling saga during which the thickness of the oil bearing zone was established at 345 feet.

Officials report the well has one of the richest formations on the continent and one of the best from the productive standpoint.

CAUSE FOR COMPLAINT

ERROR COST HIM $177,000

WEST BRIDGEFORD, Nottinghamshire, England. — "We trust you will have no cause for future complaint," the post office wrote Lucian De Pontins, after a letter he mailed was delayed three days when it caught in the folds of a parcel.

The Post office sent a photographic copy of the envelope to De Pontins showing the date of the postmark March 19 and the endorsement saying "Found in parcel March 21."

De Pontins, however, is complaining.

The envelope contained an entry to a football pool with all the answers correct. But the one-in-a-million correct forecast of scores for March 19 didn't reach the pool officers in time and De Pontins missed $177,000 prize.

Tommy Probst has been a patient in the Hardisty hospital for the past week, having been injured by falling out of his wheel chair. We hear he is on the road to recovery though, so we hope it won't be long before he is home again. Helen just returned from the hospital when Tommy had to enter.

Glen Smith was a recent Edmonton visitor, and returned with another of those new Hillman cream boats.

A number of little girls gathered at the Rogers home last Friday afternoon to help little Linda Duncan celebrate her 6th birthday. The little girls all reported it had been a wonderful party and we all wish Linda many more happy birthdays.

We hear Mrs. Coughlin and Ina are in the U. S. now. When last heard from they were enjoying the sights at Salt Lake City, Utah.

The Killam village has been very quiet for the past week. With the farmers busy turning over old mother earth there doesn't seem to be much excitement. We've had a beautiful week of warm sunny weather but a little rain to mix up those seeds would be very welcome, as we'll just have to crums our fingers.

A few of the Elks and their wives motored over to Galahad to attend a Lodge and social meeting. A very enjoyable time was had by all.

Grandma Johnson returned home from the hospital last week, and we are happy to report she is fine again.

Our local shoe repair man, Archie Deaner, was taken to the Hardisty hospital last Friday. We wish him a speedy recovery.

The high school line party held at Sedgewick last Friday night drew a huge crowd from far and near and nearly all the neighboring school were represented. Thanks Central for a wonderful time

We heard a lot of hammering at the sports grounds the other night, and later learned that all the commotion was caused by the Waldrie when they were attempting to repair the back-stop at the baseball field. Quite the carpenters I'd say.

A meeting was held in the hall on Wed. last for the purpose of organizing committees to make plans for Lougheed's biggest day of the year, the 24th of May. Plans were made in connection with booths, games and etc. and the sports this year is to be bigger and better than ever

Tragedy Of Never Having Been On A Train

(From The New York Times)

In a town within commuter flight of Times Square a show of hands or, revealed a pathetic situation. Not one of the twenty-odd children in the second of five classes in a certain school had ever ridden on a railroad train. Not one had ever been on a steamship. It developed that not one had ever been in a subway. Not one had ever been in a taxicab. Not one had ever been in a motor bus. Not one had ever been in a private automobile. Not one had ever been in a theatre. Not one had ever been in a restaurant. Not one had ever been in a department store. Not one had ever been in a hotel. Not one had ever been in a skyscraper. Not one had ever been in a church. Not one had ever been in a moving picture theatre. Not one had ever been in a museum. Not one had ever been in a public library. Not one had ever been in a bank. Not one had ever been in a post office. Not one had ever been in a police station. Not one had ever been in a fire station. Not one had ever been in a hospital. Not one had ever been in a jail. Not one had ever been in a courthouse. Not one had ever been in a city hall. Not one had ever been in a state capitol. Not one had ever been in a national capitol. Not one had ever been in a park. Not one had ever been in a playground. Not one had ever been in a swimming pool. Not one had ever been in a gymnasium. Not one had ever been in a theatre. Not one had ever been in a restaurant. Not one had ever been in a department store. Not one had ever been in a hotel. Not one had ever been in a skyscraper. Not one had ever been in a church. Not one had ever been in a moving picture theatre. Not one had ever been in a museum. Not one had ever been in a public library. Not one had ever been in a bank. Not one had ever been in a post office. Not one had ever been in a police station. Not one had ever been in a fire station. Not one had ever been in a hospital. Not one had ever been in a jail. Not one had ever been in a courthouse. Not one had ever been in a city hall. Not one had ever been in a state capitol. Not one had ever been in a national capitol. Not one had ever been in a park. Not one had ever been in a playground. Not one had ever been in a swimming pool. Not one had ever been in a gymnasium.

The children were confined to the city and their immediate neighborhood because of poverty. The average commuter pays no attention to a railroad train. He is so familiar with it that he takes it for granted. He does not realize that it is a source of wonder and delight to children. He does not realize that it is a source of wonder and delight to children. He does not realize that it is a source of wonder and delight to children

This is the fourth of a series of articles inserted in these columns pertaining to the Western provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, dealing with their resources, industries, industrial developments, national parks and lake resorts, with a view of acquainting and familiarizing our readers of the vast and wonderful Canadian West

To the average person, unfamiliar with the Province, British Columbia suggests a vast playground rather than an industrial centre. Actually it is both, and the industrial aspect has been developed enormously in recent years. In fact, it is doubtful if there is anywhere a country of steeper characteristics and wider versatility than British Columbia. Vigorous, young with its immense wealth of natural resources still largely unexploited, it offers a most attractive field to those possessed of vision and determination and a proper appreciation of its possibilities.

The Best Situation in Western Canada

Line Elevators Farm Service offers no apology for again emphasizing the seriousness of the smut situation in the Prairie Provinces. The most disease of wheat, oats and barley still present a problem of first-rate importance. Only through the concerted efforts of plant breeders, extension agriculturists, seed growers and farmers can these destructive grain diseases be brought under control. At the present time these easily controllable plant ills take an annual toll running into many millions of dollars to Western Canadian farmers.

Smut Tests on Seed. Annually, during the past 4 years, Line Elevators Farm Service has tested thousands of farmers' seed samples of wheat, oats and barley from all over Western Canada, for the surface-borne smuts. The results of these tests, showing the percentage of samples carrying seed, with the number of samples tested each year within brackets, are given below.

| | 1915 | 1916 | 1917 | 1918 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Wheat | 32.2 (2,000) | 72.6 (9,267) | 58.8 (9,723) | 60.2 (1,094) |
| Oats | 63.6 (2,000) | 69.2 (9,267) | 59.2 (9,723) | 61.6 (1,094) |
| Barley | 49.1 (1,000) | 53.3 (6,267) | 50.2 (6,723) | 52.0 (1,121) |

(Up to November 22, 1918)

A comparison of the findings for 1918 with those of 1917 offers no evidence of any improvement in the entire smut situation in the Prairie Provinces. If the condition is allowed to continue, Western Canada is likely to achieve, before long the dubious distinction of being the great smut centre of the world.

Line Elevators Farm Service is more than ever convinced that smut tests on screened seeds, particularly wheat, with special seed treatment recommendations to farmers, will play an important part in reducing the enormous, although entirely unnecessary, losses that Western farmers now suffer annually from those cereal smuts that are carried on the surface of the seed. The work, therefore, we are doing for farmers to make full use of the free smut testing service offered by this Department, through Line Elevator grain buyers.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Don't Jump at Conclusions

You Cannot Help It With This Story.

By SAMUEL CAMPBELL

IRENE squashed another cigarette on the ash tray, threw a harried glance at the telephone, then rose back to the book she was reading—"The Expectant Mother." She had pegged the bell with cotton so that it would hum, rather than ring. She didn't want to awaken Philip at any cost.

Philip Carleton, Jr., was an irresistible lady-killer. He had that charming, somewhat manner about him that got him exactly what he wanted when he wanted it. Whenever he went, women were drawn to him like moths to a flame. Bobbysoxers shouted over him. Even oldsters admitted he was cute. Philip was not a prized possession, as Irene and Phil Hayden — pretty and twenty-one — Yet they both had occupied the same room in a hotel for the past three days and nights. Tonight was the last night.

He was city in which Philip travelled had money to burn cars, boats, trailers, a summer home and a new home to be built after June.

Philip II. Yet all this luxury that his parents had had down at his feet left him relatively unimportant to him. He gave his wholehearted attention to the simpler things in life.

Even before Philip was born, his father had been well on the road to graduation, he would automatically enter the law firm of Carleton, Carleton and Co. But, tonight, he could look back on an idyllic boyhood and sister. He had not even finished high school, let alone university. That girl who was with him knew all those things only too well. Yet she adored the signs of ignorance in Philip or his family, no signs of response at all. If anything, she was happy and carefree . . . except for the nagging shred that rail.

There were times when she kissed Philip that she might as well have been kissing a brick wall — and all she got in return. He took all her love and all her affection and gave nothing. Still, there was something about him that attracted Irene like a magnet draws iron filings. And there were other reasons, too, why she stayed.

There was this to be said about Philip Carleton, Jr. He had never been in a hotel room with a girl before. And if there were any irony in the situation, it was in the fact that Philip and Irene were deliberately thrown together by his own mother and father. It was Philip Carleton, Sr., with Mrs Carleton's approval, who had insisted on the hotel arrangement.

Now, Irene, with suitcases packed, was waiting for the message that would set her free. The room had been a prison to her in the three days. In a few hours she'd be out flying across the country to the man she really loved. She looked over at Philip and mused that this time next week she'd be Mrs Dr J. J. Gordon, the wife of one of the west coast's most brilliant young surgeons.

"Poor Philip," she whispered, "I'll miss you. We did have a lot of fun together, didn't we?" And I wish you good luck and all the happiness in the world."

Philip stirred restlessly.

Irene knew that the time to go was drawing close, she sensed a little tingle of sadness. She knew she would cry if she stood there looking at him much longer.

Suddenly the telephone rang. She tiptoed over and picked up the receiver.

A man's voice, the desk clerk's, said unconcernedly: "Mr. and Mrs. Hayden are on their way up now, Miss Hayden."

"Thank you very much." She sighed and hung up. At least this much had happened without waking Philip. She hoped to high heaven that nothing would spoil it, now, till she got completely away.

When Philip's mother and father came in, the farewells were cut as short as possible. Mrs Carleton hugged Irene, they both expressed their regret at losing her and wished her happiness in her marriage. The bellboy came for Irene's luggage; Mr. Carleton spoke to her briefly in the hall; and she left.

A few hours later when the awful truth dawned on Philip Carleton, Jr., that Irene had gone away forever, he cried his eyes out. For even a two-year-old youngster can become attached to his pretty, blonde nurse if

Whaling Industry In Manitoba

Reviving an industry which was first started some 300 years ago a company has been organized to operate a whaling station this summer in Churchill, Manitoba, to provide oil and feed for fur-bearing animals. The scenes above show some idea how these salt water whales, or belugas, are caught when Churchill Harbor is their playground in mid-summer.

Modern Science Aids Fishermen

NANAIMO B.C — A detailed and incredible "fish story" will be the text of 700 top piscatorial experts at the United Nations World Science Conference at Lake Success May 17.

The fish story" is the work of Dr. J. L. Hart of the Pacific Biological station here. His paper, "Technological Advances in Fishing Methods", has been released for study by the experts—22 of whom are Canadians—and will form a basis for part of their discussion on methods of boosting living standards.

Dr. Hart says radio, telephone echo sounders, radar and directional finders are pulling more fish on the world's dinner tables than ever before.

Use of complicated equipment has increased the qualifications needed by the modern fisherman, but better returns and the better life aboard ship make up for the effort required.

BOOM IN TRADE

SALMON ARM, B.C.—A boom in trade between Canada and Japan is predicted by Charles Nakamura of this town, just returned from a visit to Japan. He said wages in Japan had risen as much as 300 per cent over pre-war levels.

New National Park To Be Opened In N.B.

ST JOHN, N.B.—A new Canadian national park will be opened this summer overlooking the Bay of Fundy in New Brunswick. To be called the Fundy National park, it is an 80 square mile scenic and recreational area. Hotels and bungalow camps are being built by private interests. The park will have a salt water swimming pool.

BOY SCOUTS GATHER SCRAP TO PAY TRIP

SALTSPRING ISLAND, B.C. — Proceeds of a house-to-house collection of bottles, sacks and junk and a sale of cookies and candy will help to send three boys to the Scout jamboree at Ottawa.

The plan was decided at a meeting of the Scout committee in Ganges Inn. Lt.-Col. Desmond Norton presided.

The painted desert in north-east Arizona is so called from its bright colorful rocks.

FAITHFUL DOG SAVES FARMER FROM BULL

YORKTON — Alf Neibrandt farmer of Wallace district owes his life to his faithful dog.

Mr. Neibrandt was attacked by a purebred Hereford bull. The animal tossed him into the air.

Stunned by his fall he was unable to move when the animal began to gore him.

The rattle dog, however came to the rescue, kept the bull away until help arrived.

Mr. Neibrandt disposed of the bull.

Canadian Scientists Aiming To Extend Grass Growing Season

OTTAWA — Dr. E. S. Archibald, director of the federal experimental farms, was back on his desk after a three-month visit to New Zealand which taught him a few things about pasture land.

Visiting the sister commonwealth, Dr Archibald found year-round grass developed by scientists there to meet their climatic conditions and alternating most of the labor required in cutting and storing hay and other stall food.

Canadian scientists already were working on the problem of improving pasture grasses, he said, and the success of similar work in New Zealand made him confident a new contribution to Canadian agriculture could be made.

"In Canada our grass season is from five to eight months, depending on locality," he explained. "Besides this we have the curse of summer drouths that increase the demand on hay and other similar stores.

"If, in Canada, we can extend the grass season two weeks at both ends and provide a grass that will withstand drouth, we will have increased the grass season the equivalent of two months."

In Canada, two acres usually carried one cow with a production of 150 pounds of butterfat, including stall feeding for about half a year. In New Zealand the same cow farms with year-round grazing and a somewhat richer feed having to be provided. The butterfat yield often was 300 pounds an acre and sometimes as high as 500 pounds.

While New Zealand had better climatic conditions as a whole, he said, "research and experiment will make, I am sure, an immense contribution to Canadian agricultural prosperity through the improvement of the natural, soil-conserving food — grass."

The 1949 Crop

WORK ON THE LAND has now been going on for some time and the current weekly reports issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce on the farming prospects for the harvesting of this year's crop are of real value to the discriminating. Weather, hourly trend of growth, prices and the many other unpredictable factors which play a part in determining the success of the crop and the financial return, which the farmer receives for his year's work, this season farmers have been passing through a period of prosperity during which there have been good crops and a heavy overall demand for agricultural products, at high price levels. Last year the value of agricultural produce in Canada was placed at $2,500,000,000 which was farmers' cash income, or the total of all the goods produced in Canada.

* * * * *

Believed To Be A Record

This was believed to be a record for agricultural production, but it was emphasized that this percentage was based on monetary value, not on volume of goods, and was an indication of the rise in price levels for farm products. Last year about forty million acres of land in Western Canada were used for the production of grain of which about twenty-three million acres, or 58 per cent, were summerfallowed. This year, it is expected that twenty-seven million acres of wheat will be sown. The heavier acreage is believed to have been encouraged by the increase of twenty cents a bushel in the basic price of wheat. In spite of the fact that about seventeen per cent more wheat is expected to be sown this year than in 1948, there is some doubt as to the likelihood of there being a high yield because of a season lack of moisture in many districts and because of the threat of a plague of grasshoppers.

* * * * *

No Certainty As To Outcome

Both of these items do, this year a crop may be affected if suitable weather conditions should prevail, but these and other factors now threaten the success of the harvest. From the acreage sown it is apparent that at the present time there is no inclination to destroy the amount of land to be put in to wheat. In the United States likewise acreage wheat is reported to be being put in that country this year. There is still great need abroad for food supplies from this continent and it is to be hoped that the crops sown this year will yield a good harvest both in the interests of the farmers and of those who depend on the wheat produced here for vital food supplies.

Americans Spent $13,000,000 In Manitoba In 1948

WINNIPEG — Tourists from the United States spent $13,000,000 in Manitoba last year, Mr. Gross said. Although no official figures are available, estimates based on historical rates are essential in the maintenance of Manitoba's tourist industry. R. E. Gross, provincial government director of industry and commerce told the Sales and Advertising club at a luncheon.

Americans spent nearly $13,000,000 in Manitoba last year, Mr. Gross said. About 75 per cent. of these came from Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin and the Dakotas.

Apart from these states, Mr. Gross said, Manitoba had more visitors from California alone than the combined totals of most other central and southern states.

It should not be thought that hotel and resort operators, merchants, transportation agencies and gas and oil companies were the only interests who benefit from the fast-growing tourist industry, Mr. Gross said. Thousands of farmers, food processors, factories and bulk purchasers also benefit from this trade.

"LOVABLE OLD FILM RASCAL"—Crooked Wallace Beery, who recently celebrated his 34th year as the "lovable old rascal" in Hollywood's rough and tumble movies, died at his home of a heart attack. As a young man he was a circus performer, stock and vaudeville actor before he made more than 250 pictures and kept the nation alternately chuckling and weeping for almost four decades. ## Grandma's Advice...

By JANE DALE

Billy, mind your p's and q's when you play at the party
Don't be sassy with the girls or they'll say you're a smarty
Don't let your stockings drag and sag or you may be in danger
Say "thank you", nicely to your host and don't stay late.

Billy, mind your p's and q's when you take the girl walking
Take along some peppermints; they help with the talking
Leave her home at ten o'clock; don't for a moment linger,
Don't try to kiss her on the sly; you may get a stinger!

Billy mind your p's and q's when you go courting
Tell her often that you love her, make it sound right spurring
Keep her really interested until the wedding day;
Then see she minds her p's and q's; she promised to obey!

Manitoba Is Second Largest Inland Fishery In Canada

THE second largest inland fishery in Canada is situated in Manitoba. Although one of the prairie provinces, Manitoba is fortunate inasmuch as it has a surface area of 26,789 square miles of streams and lakes. Hence it was possible during the fiscal year 1946-47 to have a fishery production which amounted to 28,696,600 pounds of edible fish. The production of this huge quantity of nutritious food gave employment to over 7,000 men.

The total value of the fishery crop which marketed was $4,043,276. The greater part of which was paid to the commercial fishermen of the province. As the bulk of this fish catch was exported to the United States, the fishing industry contributed a substantial sum of money toward the value of the province's trade. In addition to those employed in the primary production of fish, many others engaged on subsidiary industries have benefited from the base fishing industry. A provincial boat building industry depends in large measure on the fishery production. Power products in the form of fish oil and fish meal are also the fish products of the province, all of which go to swell the total value of the products derived from the parent fishing industry.

The bulk of the fishery production of the province comes from the lakes in the southern portion, namely Lake Winnipeg, Lake Winnipegosis, Lake Manitoba and Lake Dauphin. Northern lakes, however, contributed 6,000,000 pounds to the total fisheries production. Fifty-four species are commercially fished in northern Manitoba. Two of the northern lakes, Southern Indian and God's Lakes are huge reservoirs of fish, producing between them over a quarter of a billion pounds annually of the choicest varieties for the use of modern freighting equipment in the air, the winter such as tractors and even bombardiers, it is now possible to haul ice-cut fish from these two large northern lakes, which is packed in ice, and which reaches the markets in the main in first class condition. The Manitoba fish production is composed of 14 varieties, the principle being from a poundage point of view, pickerel, whitefish, pike and goldeye in addition to the huge commercial fishing industry, the fish species of Manitoba provide an excellent tourist attraction. Scores of lakes and streams throughout the province provide the angler with sport and recreation and provide a tasty morsel for the pan. During the past year 4,000 non-resident angling licences were sold, the revenue from which was $9,000. The fish culture efforts of the province are directed toward assisting nature to replenish stocks of desirable fish in the lakes and streams by the operation of five fish hatcheries. Four of our fish hatcheries are located on commercial fishing lakes, and the other Whitebelt Trout Hatchery near Wood Hawk Lake is devoted solely to the culture of game fish for sport fishing waters.

U.S. Secretary Of Commerce To Open Trade Fair

OTTAWA Hon. Charles Sawyer United States Secretary of Commerce has accepted the invitation of the Government of Canada to open the 1948 Canadian International Trade Fair on May 31. Right Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Trade and Commerce, announced.

"I welcome Mr Sawyer's acceptance as a gracious expression of the continuing interest in the Trade Fair in both government and business circles in the United States," said Mr. Howe. "It is a significant recognition of the community of interest of our two countries in all matters that have for their purpose the strengthening of our trade relations with each other and the expansion of international trade at large.

"In the preparations for this year's Trade Fair special efforts have been made to attract a greatly increased attendance of buyers, and of business visitors generally, from the United States. Our Exhibition Commission, in placing particular emphasis on that objective has had the benefit of generous and helpful co-operation from the Department of Commerce at Washington, and from its field offices throughout the United States.

Mr. Howe pointed out that prospects for the 1948 Trade Fair are most encouraging. Manufacturers from 32 nations will display their products this year compared with 27 in 1946.

Mr Sawyer was United States Ambassador to Belgium and Minister to Luxemburg before becoming Secretary of Commerce. In accepting the invitation he said, "I welcome the opportunity to take part in the ceremonies opening the Second Canadian International Trade Fair. The display of goods from many parts of the world will undoubtedly attract visitors and businessmen from the United States. The Fair will make possible on-the-spot inspection of practical items for import as well as provide a means of direct contact with these purchasers. It is my hope and belief that businessmen from many other countries as well as the United States, will come to the Fair."

Foundation Layout

The above diagram shows the method of measuring to insure an accurate foundation and also the placing of batter boards to carry the measuring and guiding lines, which are laid in saw cuts.

BUILDING a house always starts with the foundation. Before the excavation is started, however, the builder should have a definite plan of the house in mind. Many times the general location of a building has been established by the road, depending on laying out the foundation before the excavation is started the approximate location of the house should be established. Many times the location of the house is fixed by the septic tank system

Tern, Likeable Little Bird, Face Extinction

NEW YORK — The tern a likeable little bird is dying out along the Atlantic seaboard.

The reason: Too many people. They tramp all over the islands where the tern likes to live. And if there's one thing the tern likes it's a nice quiet household.

Pretty soon unless something is done about it the tern will be as extinct as the dodo. That's why the American Museum of Natural History is trying to get its hands on [illegible] in Great Gull Island, in Long Island Sound.

Dr. Richard H. Pough, the museum's curator of conservation, said the idea would be to make the island an exclusive happy breeding ground for the annual replacements of the tern army fort there would be a vast large point of study the tern's habits.

"Terns most nest on bare ground and in a large protected from [illegible] skunks dogs and men," says Dr. Pough. "Above all they mustn't be disturbed.

The tern is dying out because its home-life has been disturbed. Pierce crowds scare terns from their eggs and hot summer sun hills the embryos.

If the museum has its way a man will be stationed on Great Gull Island to wave panic parties off. Even official visitors will be shushed.

Terns would be a fascinating job, says Dr. Pough. They're pretty birds that look something like small gulls, but they're much more discriminating in what they eat, and much more attentive to personal laziness. And what about nests?

Well, says Dr. Pough a tern can't tell just by looking, say more than one of them.

They just watch each other closely until after the other reveals any female characteristics. If a tern acts like a female, they seem to accept that verdict. A male tern pecks another tern. If he gets pecked back he figures he has pecked a male. He looks further for a female.

But once confusion has been cleared up, the tern family gets on beautifully, Dr. Pough says. The male never returns to the nest without some little present for the female. And she always seems pleased or surprised.

Cow Liked The Bright Lights

SULLIVAN, Ill. — Bernie Freeman's cow is a ready for entrance into the festive lamplight derby which is sweeping the United States.

The electric lights have been going on in Freeman's barn at night for several weeks. It's been Bernie Freeman treats.

He recently turned out the barn lights, got into his car and started to Hillsboro to be stopped into the car the lights flashed on.

That did it. Freeman dashed for the barn. All he saw was restricted cows. He flashed the lights out again and had a duck corner. Then the lights flashed on again.

Joe had rushed up about her front [illegible] and flicked the switch with her nose or her tongue. Freeman wasn't sure which.

Now Freeman disconnects the power line to douse the lights.

"The Rise In The Birth Rate

"The past decade has seen a spectacular increase in births in Canada," says the current Monthly Review of The Bank of Nova Scotia. In 1947, the peak year, 63 per cent more babies were born than in 1937, the last year preceding the war. The very high birth rates followed as a result, high marriage rates, which in turn resulted from a number of factors including a large proportion of young people of marriageable age in the population, a high level of economic activity, and the departure and return of large numbers of young men because of the war.

"A similar development occurred in many other countries, but the increase in Canada has been among the largest. The birth rate in Canada in 1947 was 28.6 for every 1,000 of the population, compared with 27.8 in Holland, 25.8 in the United States and 20.8 in the United Kingdom. Re-inforced in the past two years by the heaviest immigration since the 'twenties, Canada's next big spread of immigration, the sharp upturn in births has brought an increase in population much larger than anything anticipated in recent times."

The Review discusses some of the important social and economic effects of this recent acceleration of the rate of population growth. High marriage, birth and immigration rates have for instance, been a major factor in the housing shortage. The effects of the abnormally large number of infants in the population are abundantly evident. For instance, pressure on supplies of infants' and children's clothing was a constant feature of the wartime textile situation and continued into the postwar. The inadequacy of educational facilities for the larger school population is widely apparent. This is due, of course, in part to the large backlog of building postponed during the depression and the war and to population shifts. So far, the direct pressure resulting from the heavy birth rates of recent years is on nursery schools, kindergartens and the early classes of grade school. In a few years' time it will be felt at the higher levels. While it is true that this poses problems for numbers of pastors and other governments particularly in newer residential areas, the building of new schools is a significant factor sustaining capital investment expenditure at a high level.
